Poll Shows Faculty Favors Joint Student-Faculty Senate

by Matt Mattingly, Current Staff Reporter

A majority of Faculty Senate members favor the conversion of the present Faculty Senate into a broadly representative University governing body including students with voting power, a recent Current poll revealed.

Two plans for changing University governance will be considered at the Thursday, February 12 meeting of the Faculty Senate. One plan would create a University Senate, while the other would seek to improve communications between students, faculty and administrators while maintaining the present separation between faculty and student government.

Completion of UMSL's parking garages will come within the next three to four weeks - weather permitting. Recent cold weather has slowed construction Ken Smith, physical plant superintendent, said.

Council Considers Three Governance Alternatives

On Sunday, February 15, Central Council will be considering three very different proposals: the question of student representation on the Faculty Senate, the proposed Central Council Bylaws, and the "Articles of Student Government." The Faculty-Student Committee of the Faculty Senate has sent its report to the Central Council for deliberation. This report includes two plans, the first calling for student representation on the Faculty Senate. The ad hoc student faculty committee endorsed this plan.

Under plan one, students are assured of not less than 25% representation on the Faculty Senate. The report asserts that "Students must have a large enough representation to make them feel they have an effect. The current lack of interest of many students in student government is probably the result of their perception of a lack of potential influence." The assumption underlying the plans position is that student representation on the Faculty Senate will both increase and enhance effective participation in University affairs. Some of the new avenues of influence opened by student representation on the Faculty Senate will enable student to contribute to the formulation of recreation, bonding, and birthing programs. It should be a driving force in school and community affairs.

Congressman James Symington will inaugurate a new speakers series with a speech Friday, February 13, in 105 Benton Hall at 11:45 a.m. There will be no charge for admission.

The speakers program, sponsored by the UMSL Alliance for Peace in conjunction with the Student Activities Planning Committee, is called CENTURY III to bring attention to the fact that the 1970's will usher in the third century of the United States' existence.

Student-Faculty Equality in Budgeting Urged

At a meeting Wednesday, February 4, the Student Affairs Committee of the Faculty Senate approved a plan for a Student Activities budgeting committee that would feature equal faculty and student representation. The proposal must be approved by the Faculty Senate before being submitted to Chancellor Glenn R. Driscoll.

The recommendation from the Faculty Senate will be one of two formal recommendations to be submitted to the Chancellor. A second proposal will come from an ad hoc committee of the Central Council. In addition, Driscoll has stated that he will accept recommendations from any other source on campus.

Under the plan approved by the Student Affairs Committee, the Student Affairs Committee itself would serve as the budgeting committee which would make recommendations to the Chancellor concerning the allocation of the Student Activities budget.

The recommendation of this subcommittee would have to be approved by the entire Student Affairs Committee before being submitted to the Chancellor.

Except for the composition of the budgeting committee, the Student Affairs Committee's recommendation follows Dean of Student Affairs David Gan's working paper on the subject, detailed in an earlier issue of the Current, which called for a separate budgetary recommendation for athletics being made directly to the Chancellor by the Athletic Committee of the Faculty Senate. Five dollars of the twenty dollar Student Activity Fee would be subject to the recommendation of the Student Affairs Committee.

In conjunction with this proposal, the Student Affairs Committee will recommend that its composition be changed from the present eight faculty members, four students and the Dean of Student Affairs to an equal number of faculty members and students plus the Dean of Student Affairs. This will require a change in the Faculty By-Laws and approval by the faculty and the Board of Curators.

The Student Affairs Committee had earlier approved a plan in which each campus would have participated in the budget hearings, with each of the four students receiving a full vote and each of the faculty members receiving one-half a vote.

"I don't think that the decisions would be any differently with students than otherwise," according to Dr. Donald Driemeier (Business), while there is "much to be gained by student-faculty contact in a University context," there still remain matters of primary interest either to faculty or students, but not to both groups.

Dr. Robert L. Allen (Economics) said that a 60-member Senate is "unwieldy... it should be a smaller body, with students making up about 25 percent." A few who approved a University Senate did so reluctantly, indicating that the plan had not been thought out sufficiently to make it a viable means of University governance.

Allen Disputes ACE on Ending Student Deferrals

Glen Allen, Assistant Director of Admissions and Registrar at UMSL, challenges the beliefs of the American Council on Education that the ending of student deferments won't affect the flow of highly-educated manpower.

The ACE recently reversed its policy of supporting student 2-S deferments, adopting a resolution that no more draft deferments be granted to the nation's college students. The ACE, however, supported 2-S deferments since 1951 in the belief that there should be as many educated young people going through college and into civilian life as there were participating in the military.

Allen stated that "the whole country would be affected" if the 2-S deferment were dropped, and that the student would be hurt more than the university.

He also stated that fewer students would try to obtain a higher education if they knew they were to be drafted, and that those drafted early in college would not come back after fulfilling their service requirements. Enrollment would probably decline three percent.

"No doubt you would probably graduate universities in America, he said.

Pollution Meeting Monday, Feb. 16

Students concerned with the ecological and environmental problems will meet Monday, February 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the University Center. The meeting is fashioned after a meeting of the New York Student for a Clean Environment held in New York City last week. The New York Student for a Clean Environment is a group that has been active in a wide variety of efforts to bring about a cleaner environment.

The Nationwide Teach-in, an attempt to mobilize large-scale response to air and water pollution, the population explosion and other environmental dangers, will take a variety of forms in communities and on campuses across the country. In St. Louis, the coalition for the first meeting began at 4:00 p.m. in room 101, Life Sciences.

All panel discussions and speeches will be held in Pierson Hall.

If you, the organizer of this effort, said that she felt that repeated complaints to university officials, because of the noisy situation, have resulted in nothing but "frustration." No one, she commented, seemed interested in remedying the noise.

She warned that failure to establish a plan of action at this meeting would strongly eliminate any chance of seeking library improvement in the near future.

Discussion on Black Needs at UMSL Friday

A symposium for black students is scheduled for Feb. 13 from 11:30 to 12:30 in CH 106. The purpose of the program will be the discussion of what the needs of black students are on campus.

Questionnaires containing certain suggestions, such as possible activities, will be distributed at those present. They will also query black views of issues of importance to the black student at UMSL.

One portion will deal with the recently formed tutoring program. The program was organized to help blacks stay in school here instead of leaving after a few years.

The symposium has been in the planning stages since a discussion last Dec. 22 on the future direction of black students here. However, organizers said that it should not be regarded as a direct sequel to that meeting.

A discussion of the needs and desires of the black man by a four-member panel will head the program.

Center Needs Volunteer Tutors

The Easton-Taylor Gateway Center, 4800 Natural Bridge Road, needs volunteers to tutor students in grades four through eight. Tutoring will be primarily in reading and math, Monday-Thursday from 3:00-5:00 p.m.

Interested students should contact John Mercadante or E.N. Mersonen at 385-5990 from 5:00-9:00 p.m. or after at 652-9526.

ommendations to the Chancellor, who in turn represents the campus in the University of Missouri system. The report states that plan one would transfer this body (the Faculty Senate) into a University Senate which would represent all or most of the community in a single legislative organization. This plan, therefore, allows for participation of university groups as problems arise, so that decisions do not have to be reversed by otherwise separate legislative bodies because of inadequate information and faculty communication.

Plan two of the report, which would preserve the Faculty Senate and the Central Council as independent governing bodies, proposes numerous methods of increasing communication and coordination between these two bodies. Examples of such improvements include creating a "super-council" composed of elected members from both the Faculty Senate and the Central Council, adding more students to the Faculty Senate committees, holding joint meetings of the executive committees of the two bodies, publishing agendas of forthcoming Senate meetings, and exchanging the minutes of the two bodies.

Those who support plan two argue that certain matters concern primarily the Faculty, such as tenure, and others concern primarily students, such as social planning. Any combined student-faculty government, in their view, will neglect these particular and important areas.

Also coming up for adoption are the Central Council Bylaws. These Bylaws deal with procedural functions of the Council. The committee system, with which the Central Council has been operating since the adoption of the new constitution last May, is formally incorporated in the Bylaws. The proposed Bylaws also provide for the replacement of elected representatives and establish the policy toward meeting attendance and the expulsion of members.

The "Articles of Student Government," a proposal for a student constitution to replace the newly adopted one, will be brought up for consideration at this meeting, its author Michael S. Shower said. The "Articles" cannot be voted on at this meeting, he according to Central Council Chairman, Stephen Heist, may be referred to the Rules Committee.

These three proposals, student representation on a University Senate, the Bylaws, and the articles of student government, offer three alternatives to the Central Council. Membership in the University Senate may afford students greater influence in University life. It would also eliminate, or at least dilute, the Council. The Bylaws, on the other hand, will maintain the status quo. And finally, the new "Articles of Student Government" will attempt to create an entirely new student government, involving the Council once again in difficulties of adopting and adapting a constitution.

Interivestation Conflict Continues

The interivestation controversy at the University of Missouri-Columbia campus continued last weekend when several hundred university independents killed a last-minute attempt to ban illegal interivestation at six university dormitories last Friday night from 6-12 a.m.

Reports on the interivestation should be reaching the Dean of Students office sometime this week, according to Dean of Students Jack Matthews.

"We will get the facts and then act upon them as quickly as we can," he said. "For any violation there are established procedures set up by the board of Curators. The Head Residents of the dormitories indicated that lists of students who participated in interivestation will be sent to the University Housing office.

Head Residents were instructed to follow normal interivestation rules and get the names of those students.

"We were told to instruct them as they went upstairs that their actions were illegal. When they reached the dormitory, the male assistant again warned them and asked them to leave. If a man entered a room, the Head Resident and Person in Charge were to warn him a third time and asked him to leave. If he did not, we were to take him to the dean's office," said Anne M. Calvert, Head Resident of Jones Hall.

The interivestation, sponsored by the Independence Residents Halls Association, was taken as a result of illegal interivestation at 20 fraternal organizations, all of which were subsequently suspended January 17 by University Chancellor John Schwada, the interivestation Council January 10 dissolved university housing regulations by allowing coeds in fraternity rooms.

Schwada took the suspension action after the Board of Curators met January 17 after a meeting of the Columbia campus.

Schwada said he took action against the fraternities contrary to the curators' decision because he had received new information concerning immoral conduct and drug usage in the Greek houses during the past two weeks.

When the fraternities were informed of their suspension by Schwada, they expressed shock at the action.

The fraternities had met with Jack Matthews within a few days after the January intervisitation, and according to several of the Greek house presidents, it was the first time in the house's history that they would be handled by an approved University student-faculty committee.

"After talking to Dean Matthews I decided to go to an appropriate student-faculty committee. Then Schwada stepped in and did this. I feel we were handled fairly," said Richard H. Lackey, president of Farm House, said. "I think that his action was a little bit harder than it should be. Under normal circumstances we wouldn't have been reprimanded this harshly.

"The 20 fraternities faced hearings before the student-faculty committee, and suspension by the Board of Curators, and Government, and Activities February 3 and 4. That committee placed all 20 fraternities on disciplinary probation for the rest of the academic year.

At the time these closed hearings were held, UHS was forced to endorse the illegal interivestation held by the dormitory residents.

Sixty-two of the ninety dormitory houses approved the resolution to endorse the interivestation. Only 45 of the houses needed to approve the resolution for its adoption.

In sessions explaining the interivestation proposal before the vote was taken, Mike Conger, IRHA president, told dormitory residents the University could take three courses of action against those involved in the illegal interivestation.

He said action could be taken against IRHA for endorsing the proposal, possibly even disbANDING the organization; individual houses could be suspended; or action could be taken against the individual students taking part in the interivestation. Thus far, no action has been taken by the University.

Conger said it was his position that action against inviduals was too severe and that the University should first take action against the student in the dormitory after midnight if or the dormitory group. The opposite sex is in the room.

Many of the students, however, feared that individual punishment would take precedence over house punishment.

Brian Patrick, President of the Independent Residents Halls Association, called a that at a council meeting it was emphasized that a "person could grow up.

"In the future, "I tried to follow the Curators at their action by the Curators at their February 13 meeting, Conger said he had told them "to grow up very good source" that the Curators were not even planning to consider the issue at that meeting.

Civil Service Exam Feb. 4

A special, on-campus Federal Service Examination was conducted by the U.S. Civil Service Commission on Saturday, February 14, beginning at 9:00 a.m., in room 309, Benton Hall.

The two-hour qualifications examination is the principal test of the Civil Service Exam and is designed to determine an applicant's ability to do the work for which he applies.

The Intermediate Philological Review, according to the Philosophy Club, is intended to encourage students to write articles of originality, and to promote the spirit of inquiry and devotion to the field of knowledge.

"Philology has been written in room, abstract, expository form by professional men who have determined to present the reader an exact idea of what constitutes the last mode of expression."

This was a type of reasoning that was used by the University, and it is possible that it reflects the human condition and records the history of the university by the date of expression.

"It was this reason for that led to the formation of Zarathustra's Enema, a publication whose proceeds will be used to fund The Review. Named after the legendary Persian creator of morality and edited by Richard Nader and Hoffman, Zarathustra's Enema will be sold for twenty-five cents very shortly.

Both publications, as described by Hoffman, will communicate philosophical ideas characterized by novelty and fluidity through refreshing artistic styles in poetry, prose, and the short story. Illustrations will also be included. In short, each will be a dynamic escape from analytical exposition, Hoffman said.

Put Quality, Not Quantity, on Faculty Senate

Both student and faculty governing bodies at UMSL are presently considering proposals for revising University government. One proposal, a Faculty Senate, would replace the current Faculty Senate and Central Council as distinct bodies with separate functions while creating a "super-council" to coordinate their efforts.

The first proposal is clearly superior to the second for at least two reasons. In terms of administrative effectiveness, the University Senate will reduce the duplication of effort from overlapping jurisdiction. In some instances, Senate rules have been interpreted to mean that there is merit in offering assistance, rather than interfering with existing policies.

The second advantage of the University Senate proposal is the qualitative promise of an integrated student-faculty government. Universities consist of students, teachers, and administrators, each dependent on the others: any separation of these groups fosters false independence and alienation from the whole of the University community. That is, separation of these groups leads to the development of interest group politics in which faculty seeks to safeguard faculty privileges, students seek to increase student power, and administrators seek to preserve administrative autonomy. This interest fragmentation is artificial, for none of these groups truly depend on the others.

The interests of every member of this academic community are interably intertwined and represented in the interests of UMSL.

We are not suggesting any Rousseauian theory of a general will, but we are suggesting that students, faculty, and administrators can work together for the common good. We are also suggesting that the University Senate will provide an instrumental in the creation of a University-oriented outlook on the part of all three groups.

For these reasons, those individuals who promptly pray for a "super-council" will not have a significant representation for students in the Senate. Despite its lack of meaningful role will prove to be a temporary habitation. Rather, the concept of a "super-council" is a recognition of the need for a renewed belief. Education theorist Theodore Newcomb suggests a University where black separatism is a positive good.

There appears to be a misconception among some white students here that black separatism is a natural evil. Apparently these students, adhering to the idealistic beliefs of the defeat civil rights movement of the early 1960's that died, believe that whites have lost their zeal for racial equality, are troubled that a separate racial identity is desired, and that they fail to realize that only the black community can organize itself with any hope for recognition of racial equality and social justice.

Bill Adams

Whites Need New View of Black Separatism

A defensive reaction to white bias has been by black student groups, such as the Association of Black Collegians (ABC). These groups are seeking to establish their own identity in a black-dominated society, that is, to focus on black separatism. Once they have achieved an identity as a people, whites hope to take on the role of a black protest over political, economic, and social discrimination.

Another cause of white concern is the point of view from which black students are taught. White students should realize that the separatist viewpoint is stressed and that blacks have occurred in the view of an oppressed black. Blacks can be proud of America only if they can see the injustices in white of white discrimination.

Correctly or incorrectly, black students believe that there was a deliberate attempt to exclude blacks from the UMSL. There is a hope among blacks that the two contests can be integrated into one next year if the sufficient can be settled. Meanwhile, the Student Senate is inquiring into the charges of racial prejudice.

How to Beat Mediocre Lectures

Last semester, students and campus punished in the classrooms against boring irrelevant lectures and archaic testing procedures.

One class staged a walkout and sat back while the administration's axe because they were tired of their boredom. The students were unhappy and then reached the consensus that they must actively encourage better teaching.

Liberal labor spokesman Walter Reuther has said that his free individual decisions must be overset by a "national planing agency," while former Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania believes that the vast expansion of government is a positive good since, according to Jefferson, "government is not best that governs least but that governs best when it is the least expressed by liberal spokesmen the need for interference. The decline in the importance of the individual has been blamed on everything from an exploding technocracy to real or imaginary teaching assistants and sterile, body-packed halls.

Students all over the world are getting tired of shoddy education and are halting the process by subtle means. For instance, West Berlin university students charged in unions during boring lectures. Student governments in America have started publishing "Educational Evaluation Booklets" to help our students avoid obvious disasters.

What happens if you're already trapped and you're reading this at the same time the professor is إلىن ظنطو دين رونث جريغ. So now up and roll the man he's a bore and then see if that doesn't make him wake up.

How about if you're searching in a magazine article, Dutch a language taught by digitized tape recorders? Well just stop, what will happen if everyone just decides that he is not going to fulfill his language requirement? The only graduates here would be the ones with the highest majors.

Useless University committees have been arguing about this for months and getting nowhere.

If you want something done about your courses, you have to do it yourself. Your greatest weapon is your attendance at a lecture. You must just have to walk out during the lecture. You have an ultimate weapon. Use it and bring student government back into the classroom to show its power.
Black Bigotry

Dear Editor,

I am a new student at UMSL and frankly, I am trued off over the run-around that I have received. A friend of mine and myself visited the bookstore, only to find upon our leaving that someone had stolen her book. This has happened to me. As if losing the book was bad enough, she also lost an important paper with it. We thought if we reported this, something might be done. We were never wrong! Instead of help, we were sent around in circles from one office to another, and received no help.

I happen to know that this is not the first time that this has happened. Many more have received the same run-around treatment we received. I think it would help things a great deal if they either put up more lockers or moved the bookshelves. If this doesn’t work, perhaps they should be considering someone to stand guard?

I believe that something should be done; and fast, because while we’re being sent around in circles, we’re also losing money that we were not only maintaining, but also expanding service, and vice versa. So fast and furious there can be no doubt that the railroad companies have an agreement among themselves that they will try to remove all passenger train service throughout the United States here.

There usually are only a few public protestations at these hearings but I was again at the last hearing in which I testified when it developed that I was the only public witness.

It is essential to the welfare of our nation that we not only maintain existing passenger train service but also expand such service, especially in view of the obvious need for future rapid mass transit systems. Therefore, I hereby appealing to individuals and organizations to become active during this year of 1970 and make appearances at hearings to protest against any future passenger train discontinuance.

I can find no one, except the railroad lawyers who try these cases, who seem to feel that railroad passenger trains should really be discontinued. Even some of these lawyers seem to be not too sold on their case.

Dear Editor,

Within a twelve month period I have appeared six times before the Interstate Commerce Commission on discon­tinuations hearings in St. Louis to protest against the discontinuance of various passenger train services. These discontinuance cases are coming so fast and furious there can be no doubt that the railroad companies have an agreement among themselves that they will try to remove all passenger train service throughout the United States.

There usually are only a few public protestations at these hearings but I was again at the last hearing in which I testified when it developed that I was the only public witness.

A Review

Saturday, February 7 marked the third performance of Rosalyn Miller's play, "A View from the Bridge." The Webster College Conservatory Theatre production was directed by George Valadis.

Miller presents an interesting psychological drama about "A View from the Bridge," that of maintaining dramatic equilibrium amid a gradual mounting of emotional intensity to a point (or points) of outburst. Balance and gradual development are the key ideas here.

The main characters are four: Eddy, a man torn between obsession to abide by marital ethics and an illicit love for his niece; Kate, Eddy's niece, likewise torn between a niece's love and gratitude for her husband Eddy; her, and immigrant relatives, and the realization that her home life is undergoing a slow and painful destruction. For each of these characters, maintenance of that dramatic equilibrium is essential. Without it, the gradual build-up to fever pitch, wherein lies much of the power of the play, is destroyed.

But Miller wants it to explode.

Dan Guilvezan's performance as Eddy was fairly consistent. Engagement of his wife and a refusal to admit to himself that he is in love with his niece creates an inner tension in Eddy. An angry man, his anger is kindled further in her fierce disillusionment with her husband Eddy, her niece, and immigrant relations, and the realization that her home life is undergoing a slow and painful destruction. For each of these characters, maintenance of that dramatic equilibrium is essential. Without it, the gradual build-up to fever pitch, wherein lies much of the power of the play, is destroyed.

But Miller wants it to explode.

Playoff Spot At Stake
In District Meeting

Members of the executive committee of District Sixteen, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic, will meet Sunday, February 22 to select representatives for the district basketball playoffs.

The four team playoff will be held Saturday, February 28 and Monday, March 6 at locations to be determined after team selections have been made.

Two games will be played Saturday, February 28 at the sites of the first and second ranked teams.

The top-ranked team of the two winners will host the playoff championship the following Monday.

Pairings are expected to match the first and fourth seeded teams and the second and third seeded teams.

The district committee will make the selections.

Criteria to be used by the district committee in making the selections is, in order, won-lost records, success against other district teams and common opponents, national ranking service (if available), and strength of schedule. Emphasis will be placed on the first two standards.

The champion of the Missouri College Athletic Union and the top ranking non-conference team are assured of places in the playoff.

The district committee, as determined by the committee, will round out the playoff field.

As of February 10, Drury leads the MCAU with a 9-0 league record and a 16-3 season mark, Missouri Southern, 19-0, is second. Parkville, independent, has the best record among district teams.

The games under consideration for a playoff are MCAU member Culver-Stockton (13-6) and independents Rockhurst (15-7), Southwestern Baptist (12-7) and UMSL (10-7).

UMSL has played only two district teams, beatting William Jewell and losing to Rockhurst.

Members of the district committee who will make the playoff selection are chairman Ed Nelson of Park College, Charley Burris of Missouri Western, and Don Pearson of Evangel. Jack McBride of Culver-Stockton, Rex Brown of Southern Baptist, Bill Hard- ing of Drury are also committee members.

Chuck Henson, Joe Laukemper, and Deny Whelan will be honored for their contributions to the Rivermen and at halftime, Eastern's post-pun group, The Pink Panthers, will entertain.

Greg Scott

Greg Scott scored 40 points and pulled down 20 rebounds in UMSL's 98-75 win over UWM and McKenzie extending the Rivermen winning streak to five ball games.

The 6-1 jump-shock, junior forward from East St. Louis is averaging 10 points a game and has given the UMSL cagers a lift each time he enters a ball game.

Although the Rivermen have been playing exceptional team ball, it was easy for the coaching staff to select Greg Scott, "Riverman of the Week."

Mark Bernsen was selected "Riverman of the Week" by the coaching staff for his performance against the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle and Louisiana State University-New Orleans, both Rivermen victories, the UMSL win streak to five. In the UCCC contest Mark played his usual steady floor game, scoring ten points, hitting four of nine shots. Against LSUUNO, the 6-0 sophomore played outstanding defense, intercepting numerous passes and upsetting the Privoters back line. Bernsen included in this fine performance, 10 points and nine assists, a 1967-68 Rivermen high. This is Bernsen's first selection as "RW."

Senior Chuck Henson has been selected "Riverman of the Week" by the UMSL coaching staff. While picking off 11 rebounds and playing a strong defensive game, the 6-7 converted center scored 19 points in a losing effort last Saturday (February 7) against the Panthers of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Chuck is currently second in team scoring (14.1) and rebounding (7.2) and continues to be one of the steadier players on the Riverman squad.

This is Henson's second selection as RW.

McKenzie

Greg Scott entered UMSL's January 14 game with McKenzie with 9-25 remaining in the first half. He scored his first basket to tie the game with 7:52 left. He scored again with 5:13 left to tie the score, and then stole the ball and scored to give UMSL a lead they never relinquished. In the last 5:13 of the half the only junior from East St. Louis scored 10 points while the whole McKenzie team could manage only 6. Due to Scott's efforts the Rivermen took a 39-36 lead into the locker room at halftime.

For the game, Scott played 24 minutes, scored a game high 28 points and grabbed 9 rebounds. Scott was not the only UMSL's "Riverman of the Week" as Chuck Henson contributed 12 points and 13 rebounds, and Joe Laukemper 11 points and 11 rebounds.

Rivermen at Rockhurst Saturday

After a Wednesday night encounter with St.-Edwardsville, for which results were not available at deadline, the Rivermen will determine their District Sixteen playoff chances when they travel to Kansas City, Missouri Saturday to take on the Rockhurst College Lynx in an 8:00 game.

Due to Rockhurst's 96-36 win over UMSL at the Arena in December, the Rivermen know that they must beat the Hawks on their floor in order to have a chance to defend their district title. The Hawks currently have a record of 15-7 and have spent much of the year ranked among the NAIA's top ten teams in the country.

Rockhurst is led by senior forwards John Brownrigg who contributed 24 points to Rockhurst's December win and 6-4 all-district forward Carl Cook who scored 21.

Next Wednesday, the Rivermen will travel across the river to take on St.-Edwardsville in an 8:00 game at Edwardsville High School. They will play a surprisingly tough (15-2) and tall Concordia team at the Seminary Febraury 20 before ending their regular season against Eastern Illinois (7-11) Monday February 23 at 8:00.

Before the Eastern game UMSL's seniors - Denny Caldwell, Chuck Henson, Joe Laukemper, and Denny Whelan who are in their third year have contributed to their season high 17 while the whole Memphis team grabbed only 10.

The Lynx visited St. Louis January 17 and learned the meaning of revenge, as a fired up team of Rivermen hit their highest free throw percentage of the year in rolling up a 117-70 victory. UMSL outshot the Lynx from the field 54%-407 and the free throw line 58%-42 while outrebounding Memphis 51-24. The victory was Chuck Scott's 150th as a college coach.

The Rivermen had seven players in double figures as everybody played and all but one player scored. Denny Caldwell led the way with 25 points, Chuck Henson scored 20, Greg Scott 12, Doody Rohn and Shedrick Bell 11 each, and Mark Bernsen and Denny Wielan 10 each.
