YAF To Probe Student Fee Allocations

The UMSL chapter of the Young Americans for Freedom is planning to investigate the allocation of funds from Student Activities Fees, YAF president Lee Buchschacher announced at the March 15 meeting of the Central Council.

The investigation, Buchschacher said, will attempt to determine "who gets what?" from the Student Activity Fee, it will particularly study the funding policies of the Central Council, with an emphasis on the relationship between the organizations and the amount of money granted to them.

Buchschacher told the current that repeated unsuccessful efforts by YAF to gain funds from the university had prompted the decision to investigate spending policies.

Council treasurer Gail Goldstein said Tuesday, March 17, that the first step in the YAF budget request for a total of $654.50 at an executive committee meeting March 1, two weeks before Buchschacher announced YAF's impending investigation.

The YAF budget request was brought up as old business at the March 15 Council meeting, Buchschacher withdrew the request, saying that YAF could not accept funds from a body which it was about to investigate.

Threatened Expulsion of Council

CIRUNA Representatives Withdrawn

The controversy involving the funding of $100 of Central Council funds to CIRUNA (Council on International Relations and United Nations Affairs) representative Mike Shower was settled Tuesday in a conference between Shower and Council members.

Representative John Hothaus agreed to withdraw his motion offered at the Council meeting last Monday to expel Shower after clearing up with Shower what Hothaus had termed a "gross misunderstanding" surrounding the loan.

The controversy arose after Shower had received permission from members of the Executive Committee for approval of the $100 loan to attend a Model United Nations conference in Washington D.C. March 4. When a request for approval of the loan failed to be brought up for consideration at the March 1 Council meeting, Shower was advised by Dean of Student Affairs David Gans that the Executive Committee had authorized the expenditure since no expenditure was involved. The loan is to be repaid by CIRUNA funds from another university.

Members of the Executive Committee contacted by Shower okayed the loan, apparently interpreting the request as a promise to approve the loan in a formal committee meeting.

After Shower had been granted the loan through a travel voucher approved by Dean Gans and had departed for Washington, the Council officers learned at their meeting March 4 that a check had already been given to Shower.

The officers brought the situation to the Council meeting last Sunday. Hothaus' expulsion motion was tabled until Shower could appear at the next meeting to explain the matter.

The Tuesday conference cleared up the misunderstanding, with all parties indicating that no improper intentions were involved.

The motion to expel Shower was the first attempt to expel a Council representative from the body.

Goldstein Offers Resignation; Sites' Personal Disputes

by Mike Jones, Current Staff Writer

In a frequently heated discussion among Senate members and the ad hoc committee, several senators rose following the March 15 meeting, Council treasurer Gail Goldstein offered to resign if president Sam Bommarito can find a qualified replacement. The Council treasurer is appointed by the president with the approval of the Council. Miss Goldstein has threatened to resign in the past, citing personal disputes with Bommarito.

The Council meeting was adjourned for lack of a quorum after several students left the meeting. The walk-out occurred when a motion to give Bommarito a vote of confidence was introduced.

The proposed vote of confidence was in reaction to an article in last week's Current in which some Council members, including Miss Goldstein, expressed dissatisfaction with Bommarito's leadership and suggested that his $100 a month salary be suspended.

Bommarito stated that he felt that the walk-out indicated that his opponents didn't have enough strength to defeat a vote of confidence.

Elsewhere in the meeting, Bommarito said he was aware of some discontent over his leadership since the beginning of the semester.

Referring to comments in the Current article, Bommarito stated that "if people really believe what they stated, they would bring up a proposal to take away my salary."

Responds to Critics

In response to criticism that he has not worked enough to earn his salary, Bommarito pointed to his activities since the March 1 meeting of the Council. These included serving as a marshal at the ROTC referendum, a trip to Columbus, and helping to establish a health course. Bommarito stated that he also spent time expediting action on permanent student ID's and a speaker system for the platform on campus, as well as writing bylaws for election procedures.

'Behind the Scenes'

Bommarito admitted that he has not spent as much time in the Student Activities office as he did last semester. "I'm student teaching and I can't cut classes like I used to," he stated. He added that he has spent more time working "behind the scenes."

Bommarito said he felt the Council was "heavy with criticism. Ninety percent of Central Council meetings are about funding and interpersonal quarrels."

As amendment offered by Dr. Lyman Sargent (Political Science), was substituted for the committee recommendation. The amendment calls for UMSL to continue the Washington University transfer program but does not mention academic credit for the courses.

The debate, initiated by the Student Senate, was broken by Dr. David Primrose (political science), a substitute motion prepared by Dr. Edward Costello that all ROTC facilities here be located on campus and that all direct and indirect costs incurred be repaid by the ROTC program.

The motion adopted reverses the committee recommendation that the facilities be located on campus, but that a suitable contract in negotiated with the Defense Department. The federal government would have been required to pay "its proportionate share" of costs involved in that the "very limited resources" of the university would not be strained.

Witterden pointed out that was the feeling of the committee that the cost of facilities should be borne by the government while the university would provide secretarial and administrative services.

Several members expressed concern that facilities here would aggravate the present crowded conditions. "We're overcrowded," agreed Senate Speaker Stephen Swiener.

After amending the committee recommendation, the Senate recommended a 12 credit hour program for ROTC to make the credit subject to the approval of the curriculum committee and facilitates of each school, the Senate by a 21-19 vote defeated the proposal.

Report on Library Improvements Sent to Driscoll

Four major recommendations for the library were included in a report by the ad hoc library committee to the Faculty Senate March 12, and were approved.

The four proposals are: the employment of a Director of Libraries and a full-time accountant; conversion to an automatic ordering system; carpeting; and the ordering of all books from this campus rather than through Columbia.

On top of this, the recommendation made by a consultant who studied the library two days in January. The consultant was Mr. Mark Gormley, Director of Libraries. The responsibilities of the Director would be to administer and supervise the overall operations, work in collections development to co-ordinate the Library, Archives, and future programs, and to plan and implement automation.

The hiring of an accountant-bookkeeper was recommended to give the library the ability to "provide exact status of its (the Library's) fund accounts" and "to provide for the organization of this information. The committee advocated the hiring of an accountant beginning in the 1970-71 school year.

Tied in with this proposal was the recommendation that the library discontinue itself from the library in Columbia. "Our consultant clearly indicates that each library administration must have its own order department and must be its own agent to provide efficient service," the report stated.

A new ordering system was also outlined in the report. The committee advocated using an "automatic" acquisitions program, which would assure "the orderly and complete acquisition of serial materials as they are published, i.e., while they are in print and at reasonable cost. Only by developing a blanket ordering system of this type can the library anticipate the requirements of its patrons for current books."

The report mentioned that the libraries at UWM and Washington University use the blanket system. "Most libraries report that such plans have resulted in an increase in the rate of book acquisitions without any increase in staff," the report stated. "UMSL could well use the man-hours saved thereby (library staff and faculty) in a rational building of the retrospective collection."

 Carpeting for the library was advocated to cut down the noise factor, with "first priority" to be given to the marble staircase and the third floor.

Other recommendations listed in the report included better lighting, extension of library hours until 2:00 a.m., rearrangement of stacks and tables to cut down on noise, the establishment of areas for micro-print readers and for storing and listening to recordings, and the placement of all government documents in the document section.

The establishment of "reshelving" areas on each stack level, development of a new security system, banning of faculty loan privileges to graduate students and teaching assistants, and the scheduling of tours through the library for new students during Orientation Week, were more proposals listed in the report.

Folksinger Don Cooper, now on tour with Blood, Sweat, and Tears, will perform in the cafeteria this weekend, March 20 and 21, at 8:30 p.m. He will perform two shows of 45 minutes each. There will be no admission charge to the coffeehouse concerts, sponsored by the Student Activities Planning Committee.

Replacements for Foreign Language Requirement under Study in Arts and Sciences

A proposal to provide alternatives to the present 14-hour foreign language requirement by allowing substitution of integrated bloc courses is now under consideration by a student-faculty Administrative-Articulation Committee of the college of Arts and Sciences.

Under the present bloc system, students must take two years of a foreign language to fulfill the requirement. The committee is now considering a system where a student would take two years of study in an area outside of his major area or a closely related field.

The committee members indicated that a student would be required to take the bloc courses in an area outside of his major area or a closely related field. They said that decision making the decision to implement a bloc program would be left to the disgression of each department. This was necessary, they pointed out that one of the most common arguments in favor of a foreign language requirement was that it presented a liberalized view of the world to students. This program, they feel, will serve the same purpose.

Dispute On Draft Board Notification Ends

The controversy surrounding the registrar's notification of a deferred student's draft board if the student leaves school was ended this week when the UMSL Alliance for Peace agreed to compromise on the matter.

Although the Alliance and Allen had centered around whether or not there was a specific Selective Service regulation requiring the university to notify draft boards on drop-outs, Allen had contended that the certification of a request for a student deferment obligated his office to inform the draft boards.

Among the 55 teams in the tournament are representatives from Sanford, USC, UCLA, U of Georgia, Wake Forest, Harvard, Princeton, Brown, Colgate and Michigan State.

UMLS will be represented by the team of Mike Beatty and H.D. Felber. The two this season have compiled a 44-16 record, won three tournaments and eight awards.

They have defeated teams from LSU, VMI, Vanderbilt, City College of New York, Northern Illinois U., Iowa State, U. of Arkansas, and most of the colleges in Missouri.

Felber is a business major, formerly a Baptist pre-ministry student. Nicknamed “Harvey the Hustler” he is one of the best pool players on campus.

Beatty is a professional judo instructor, formerly ranked fourth in the nation, majoring in philosophy. His hobbies include writing music, playing the guitar and doing imitations.

UMLS captured the state championship at Southeast Missouri State College March 12, 13 and 14. The tournament was open to all colleges and universities in Missouri, and included teams from Washington U., St. Louis U., and UMC.

The duo of Mike Kruger and Bob Hausladen, both sophomores, captured the senior division title by defeating host SEMO in the semi-finals and UMKC in the final round.

In the junior division, the team of Jim Scott and Mark Davis took third place with a 5-1 record. They defeated teams from Central Missouri, Meramec Community College, Missouri Western, Southwest Baptist, and Florissant Valley Community College.

The team of Beatty and Felber finished in fourth also 5-1. Their victims included UMKC, William Jewell, Missouri Western, St. Louis U., and Meramec.

Bob Hausladen was named state extemporaneous speaker at the tournament. This brings the total number of awards to 29 for Rivermen debaters. The team cumulative record is 111-56.

Mike Kruger and Bob Hausladen proudly display the first place trophy they won last weekend in the state speech tournament at Southeast Missouri State College. The UMLS pair won first place in the senior division in debate.

Reischauer Calls Withdrawal Solution in Vietnam

Former U.S. Ambassador to Japan Edwin O. Reischauer said that the best way for the United States to end its involvement in Vietnam is through steady withdrawal. Reischauer made his remarks in a March 15 speech at the Asian Studies Association as part of the Liberal Forum series.

The Harvard professor of Asian Studies expressed the belief that "meaningful negotiations" would take place only after withdrawal of all or most of the U.S. troops. "My hope is that as we withdraw, we would create a situation where Hanoi would be more flexible in its demands," he said.

He also pointed out that the American people should make it clear to the President that the withdrawal should continue. The President has pledged to remove 115,000 troops by April 15, Reischauer noted, but it would be a "bad sign" if the President does not make any more pledges for troop withdrawals after April 15.

Reischauer said it would be the "height of folly" if the United States became involved in Laos. He said that if it came to a choice of escalating there or withdrawing, then the U.S. should "get out."

Reischauer said that he hoped the "intemperance of our experience in Vietnam will help us in making policy in the future." He pointed out that the less developed nations are not the political "vacuum" which post-World War II policy makers felt should be controlled by the U.S. and her allies, rather than by the Communists.

He said that the underdeveloped countries are experiencing an increase of nationalism and that the best course for the United States and other developed countries to take is not to get involved in the internal struggles of the nations. "This concept was implied in the Nixon Doctrine last July, I believe," Reischauer said. "We must lessen the gap between the industrialized one-third of the world and the two-thirds of the nations which are not industrial. The more advanced nations should cooperate in our aid to less developed countries, without getting involved in the internal instabilities of those countries."

Hearnes’ Denial of $1.3 Million Budget Deepens Fiscal Crisis--Weaver

Governor Warren Hearnes’ denial of $1.3 million University of Missouri budget increase has worsened an already serious financial crisis, University President John C. Weaver told the Board of Curators last Friday.

Weaver said the Governor will ask the General Assembly to maintain University spending at the present $60.7 million level. State Budget Director John C. Vaughn rejected a request for the $1.3 million increase in a letter to University President John Weaver, and C. Glenn R. Driscoll, will serve as a liaison to accept the report of the ad hoc committee on the Board of Curators.

Action on ROTC

that with the limiting of ROTC to off-campus facilities and the decision not to grant any academic credit for ROTC courses that the consideration of faculty status for military instructors is "a moot question."

The proposal, when passed as a group in a report to Chancellor Glenn R. Driskoll, will serve as a recommendation to him, University President John Weaver, and the Board of Curators.

The Central Council voted at its March 15 meeting to table a motion to accept the report of the ad hoc committee on ROTC. Committee member John Rettch presented the report, noting that "the faculty completely ignored student opinion as shown in the referendum."
Tell Them Willie Boy is Here

The plot involves an Indian boy named Willie Boy (Robert Blake) and the girl he loves, Lola (Katherine Ross). Her father, like any father, including black or white, does not want Lola to marry Willie Boy for traditional reasons. Willie Boy shoots her during a quite provocative nude scene and runs off with her.

Robert Redford comes to the rescue by taking a pose after him. Redford plays the deputy sheriff, Cooper, whose father was the ideal to which he has to live up to. Naturally, Cooper has this thing going with the Indian doctor, played by Susan Clark.

There are a few points about the picture which are reminiscent of Redford’s former masterpiece, Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid. Many of the scenes appear to have come out of that picture. Other disappointments are centered around Katherine Ross’s performance. Even though she looks the Indian part, I seemed to ask myself: what was the purpose she played and did it actually matter? One might answer yes and no to this question. It was she that made Willie Boy run, producing a tragic plot. However, there was a lack of true professionalism stemming from the way she portrayed. In Hellfighters, with John Wayne and Jim Hutton, Miss Ross showed much more promise than anything seen in the picture as a whole. However, I do feel it was enjoyable. In other places it seemed quite long and drawn out. The scenery was magnificent. All you scenery nuts who saw Easy Rider would appreciate Tell Them Willie Boy is Here. If you just like to see a good picture, then you might stop in and give it a once-over.

“Lady’s Not For Burning” Next Play, In Early April

The University Players will present Christopher Fry’s The Lady’s Not For Burning on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, April 3, 4, and 5 at 8:00 P.M. in the Boston University Theatre. Admission is $1.00 in advance and $1.25 at the door.

The Lady’s Not For Burning concerns Thomas Mendip, a discharged soldier who comes to a small town announcing that he has committed (at least) murder and demands that he be hanged. Shortly afterwards a young girl, acting still is extremely well done. I look for bigger and better things for him.

The biggest reason someone might see Tell Them Willie Boy is Here may and should be Robert Redford. His timely humor is easy to digest and enjoy. Since Barefoot in the Park, Redford has had perfect casting. With each picture he shows that he belongs with the Steve McQueens, Paul Newman, and Marlon Brando’s. Of course, with his blondish locks and all-around good looks, he will be the favorite among the women in the audience. Other reviewers have rated this picture as “One of the Year’s Ten Best.” I cannot go along with them but I do feel it was enjoyable. In some places it seemed quite long and drawn out. The scenery was magnificent. All you scenery nuts who saw Easy Rider would appreciate Tell Them Willie Boy is Here. What’s so special about Beechwood Ageing?

We must be bragging too much about Beechwood Ageing. Because we’re starting to get some flak about it. Like, “Beechwood, Beechwood... big deal.” And “If Beechwood Ageing is so hot, why don’t you tell everybody what it is?”

So we will.

First, it isn’t big wooden casks that we age Budweiser in.

But it is a layer of thin wood strips from the beech tree (what else?) laid down in a dense lattice on the bottom of our glass-lined and stainless steel lagering tanks. This is where we let Budweiser ferment a second time. (Most brewers quit after one fermentation. We don’t.)

These beechnut strips offer extra surface area for tiny yeast particles to cling to, helping clarify the beer. And since these strips are also porous, they help absorb beer’s natural “edge,” giving Budweiser its finished taste. Or in other words, “a taste, a smoothness and a drinkability you will find in no other beer at any price.”

Ah yes, drinkability. That’s what’s so special about Beechwood Ageing. But you know that.

Budweiser is the King of Beers.

(By but you know that.)

No American Involvement in Laos

Even with the lesson of the Vietnam quagmire and the social and political consequences for the United States, the Nixon Administration appears to be escalating American involvement in Laos in an effort to pressure the North Vietnamese into negotiated settlement. This limited support, according to Administration spokesmen, has been requested by the Laos government and is purely defensive.

The Administration admits to American bombing and reconnaissances flying, which delicately skirts the issue as to whether any combat troops are committed to defending the guaranteed neutrality of Laos. While there may be no soldiers in uniform, it seems highly unlikely that some "volunteers" are in Laos because they enjoy warfare.

Obviously the Nixon administration will not try to cut its throat politically by becoming heavily committed in a frequently quoted "drama" of two forces that take turns capturing and trading "strategic" points regularly.

But the effort to force "neutral" Laos out of the Vietnam war has been pressed by the North Vietnamese in pressing for a solution to the Vietnamese war makes us jittery. As Newsweek magazine points out this week, this aggressive policy towards a former neutral buffer that interests no one would upset the cherished hope of peaceful "Vietnamization."

Why does the United States need to become bogged down once again in Southeast Asia? Have no majorities in this country ever been won over from Vietnam? The Nixon Administration should take a long, hard second look at its definition of American strategic interests in Laos, for it is now clear that the United States cannot afford the destructive social consequences resulting from another Vietnam.

Pollution Is Everybody's Problem—Let's Solve It

Dr. Rolf Ellassen, professor in environmental engineering at Stanford University, told the Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution, "We have to blame it (nonreusable packaging) on the women, I guess, because they don't like return bottles; so the beverage people have developed glass or plastic, nonreusable bottles. The women like paper bags and other disposable packages, all of which build up refuse quantity."

Whether the women of America or the industry created all the convenience-type packaging is unimportant in recognizing the problems of solid waste pollution.

Another statement will help to illustrate the situation. Dr. John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard commented recently about the TFX aircraft, alias F-111, "There was no grass-roots demand for a second generation swept-wing aircraft of supersonic capabilities... The initiative obviously came out of the Air Force, possibly from a team at General Dynamics or Boeing working on a set of plans,... They then pressed for funding, and the country illustrated the problems of solid waste pollution."

What does this all mean? Its simplicity makes us jittery. As Newsweek magazine points out this week, this aggressive policy towards a former neutral buffer, that interests no one, would upset the cherished hope of peaceful "Vietnamization."

Why does the United States need to become bogged down once again in Southeast Asia? Have no majorities in this country ever been won over from Vietnam? The military is more interested in covering them up. The opportunities for joint drama-military productions would be huge. For instance, students could gain acting experience by portraying rioters when ROTC scheduling prevents them from entering the political arena.

The University will be doing a great injustice to its students if it does not avail itself of the opportunity to combine such worthwhile programs of study, how else can students gain such practical and artistic training? Here we have the opportunity to have a teacher tell his students to "go out and knock 'em dead-without knowing whether the student is able to be killed."

Second, since both the Army and Acting require costumes, UMSL could save great quantities of money and pick up large amounts of olive drab material to be used for both groups.

Another advantage is that both groups would be able to participate in public relations classes, since publicity is so important to both modern drama and modern military. So, it is necessary here, however, since the acting establishment is interested in making events known while the military is more interested in covering them up.

NAIA Rules Revisions May Influence UMSL

by Marty Hendin

Associate Sports Editor

According to Athletic Director Chuck Smith, three proposed changes in NAIA national basketball rules will influence the decision of UMSL's Student-Faculty Athletic Committee regarding the question of UMSL's affiliation with the NAIA or NCAA.

These rules, which are being voted on by all NAIA basketball coaches across the country, would eliminate foul throws except in the last three minutes of each half, provide for two free throws on each foul in the last three minutes of each half, and provide a thirty second time limit on offensive plays.

In Smith's opinion, "These rules will split college basketball and create nothing but problems." These problems will be intensified in the case of teams like the Rivermen who played a mixed schedule of NAIA and NCAA teams. The new rules would be employed in games against NAIA opponents and in all playoffs and tournament games, but in games with NCAA opponents, the NCAA rules will be used no matter where the game is played.

The sub-committee studying the NAIA-NCAA affiliation is awaiting the results of the rule change vote before making their recommendation to the whole committee. This sub-committee, consisting of Smith, Dr. Robert Markland (business) and Dr. William Hamlin (English), hopes to have their report ready early in April.

If the Rivermen affiliate with the College Division of the NCAA, they would join opponents such as Eastern Illinois, UTEC, LSU, UCM, Southern Illinois, UTI, William Jewell and UWM. While no decision on affiliation has yet been made, Smith prepared for UMSL staying in the NAIA by trying to schedule District Seventeen for Culver-Stockton, but he was unsuccessful. Smith said that he has been unable to schedule district teams because "They are trying to build an easy schedule."

The coach hopes to complete his 1970-71 schedule when he meets with other coaches at the NCAA tournament finals this weekend. One schedule possibility is rival Drury, however, Smith pointed out, "If we play Drury it will be in St. Louis or not at all."

One game on next year's schedule has already been announced. That will be the season opener December 1 when a St. Louis University doubleheader will be played at the Arena. UMSL will meet SIU-Edwardsville at 7:00 and Washington U. at 8:15 in the closest thing to the long-proposed tournament between St. Louis teams.

While concentrating on his schedule, Smith has also been working on next year's freshmen. Six high school stars visited the UMSL campus last Friday but have given no definite commitment to the Rivermen. These players are 6-1 Bynum Ahlbaugh from Carthage, Missouri High School, who aver-

Golfers Go South for Six
by Mike Olds
Current Sports Editor

The UMSL Golf team heads South for the six day Gulf-American Classic beginning March 20 in Coral Gables, Florida. The south- ern trip will serve as a valuable Classic tuneup for what 6 percent of the 1970's matches will pit the letic teams have faced.

A glance at that schedule confirms Berres' opinion. One third of 1970's matches will pit the Rivermen against NCAA Division teams, including St. Louis University, Southern Illinois-Carbondale and Bradley University. Performance in the rugged Gulf-American is an accurate indicator of the calibre of a team. Berres feels that if UMSL is an accurate indicator of the improved schedule. The state consists of ten matches and includes meetings with St. Louis University, Washington University and Southwest Missouri State. The Rivermen will open their season at Washington University with an April 2 match with the Bears.

Tennis Roster Still Open

UMSL Athletic Director Chuck Smith this week announced the 1970 Riverman tennis schedule. The slate consists of ten matches and includes meetings with St. Louis University, Washington University and Southwest Missouri State. The Riverman will open their season at Washington University with an April 2 match with the Bears.

Coach Gene Williams has been holding practices on the campus courts but, beginning March 25, the site of the workouts will be shifted to Forestwood Park, in Ferguson. There is still time to try out for the team since Coach Williams has not yet finalized his roster. Students interested in playing for the Rivermen may contact Williams at 371-7456 or call the Athletic Department, 453-5641.
