OFFICIALS TOUR CAMPUSES

To Gather Ideas For Union Here

Dr. Harold Eckhoff, Dean of Students, and Mr. John Perry, Business Officer, recently completed a two-day whirl, whistle stop tour of the student union buildings in the area.

The two visited universities in Kansas and Missouri to get ideas to aid in planning the proposed student union building here.

Stops were made at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, Mo.; University of Missouri at Kansas City; Kansas State at Manhattan, Kansas; and Kansas University, Lawrence, Kansas. At each campus Dean Eckhoff and Mr. Perry talked with operators and supervisors of the student union and studied the facilities and services offered.

Eckhoff and Perry were particularly interested in money-making operations in the student union for in order to pay back a $2,000,000 federal building loan, the student union will have to become self-supporting.

The new senators are:

Local Officials Discuss M.U.'s Impact on Area

Officials from eleven north county municipalities met recently in an effort to solve problems created by the rapid growth of the University of Missouri at St. Louis.

The University representatives were Dr. Glen Driscoll, Dean of Arts and Sciences, and Mr. John Perry, University business officer, described the atmosphere at the meeting as "cordial and cooperative."

"They recognized that the University is here to stay, but that the problems must be met," Dr. Driscoll said.

Vince A. Bayer, Mayor of Greenfield, said the meeting was called "not as a protest to the presence of the University," but to form a group that could work together toward solving the problems that will face the local area and the University.

Near the top of the discussion list was the traffic flow problem. Highway engineers estimated that by 1970, there will be over 100,000 vehicles per day moving on the thoroughfares surrounding the University.

Dr. Driscoll said that although a personnel council that had not been formed, the members seemed receptive to Mayor Bayer's suggestion that such a board be established.

Mayor Bayer pointed out that the need for uniform traffic regulations, additional stop signals, and snow and ice removal during winter months will mount as the University expands.

According to an article in the Globe-Democrat, Mayor Bayer said that the traffic flow problem was first brought to the attention of the city of St. Louis. The first meeting was held, and top governing bodies of the 17 municipalities were invited to the meeting. Each would be asked to formally endorse the council and authorize a representative to serve as a member. Mr. Bayer added that he hoped the council would be ready to meet in September.

Chancellor Forms Advisory Council

The newly formed Chancellor's Student Advisory Council, held its first meeting recently, and topping the agenda was the proposed student union building.

Chancellor James T. Bugg, Jr., explained to the group that the purpose of the council was to allow the students to "participate in discussion and decision" and the problems and concerns "which are shared by everyone associated with the University."

Student opinion would be helpful in solving problems like parking, cafeteria service, and curriculum, he stated.

Chancellor Bugg said there would be two agendas at the meetings, his own and the council's. This would allow the Chancellor to learn student opinion and feeling of various matters, and also would let the students make suggestions concerning any University problems or conditions. Representative of a cross-section on the campus, Council members were selected by faculty recommendation upon approval of the Chancellor. The council members are: Alan Burgdorf, Vito Dei, Ken Sigler, Randy Smith, Steve Stover, and Mary Boos.

"The idea is to give the university council a group that could better coordinate matters of interest to the students," Dr. Driscoll explained.

"The budget of the council is not large," Dr. Driscoll added, "but the council will meet two to three times a month to discuss and propose ideas to the Chancellor."

The council is similar to the Student Council which has similar duties. During the discussion last October, 26, several members of the board pointed out the lack of communication between the campuses. The possibility of a large central bulletin board for this purpose is now under consideration by Chancellor Bugg.

Students Vote To Pick Mascot For University

Students will be able to pick the school mascot from three finalist entries chosen by the Image Committee. The three are: The Knights, The Rivermen, and The Geminites.

An election to determine the winner will be held later this month.

"The Knights" is suggested because the city of St. Louis was named for King Louis IX, who was a crusader. Another finalist, "The Rivermen," embodies the colorful, romantic heritage of St. Louis, according to the entry. It also typifies "a vision of unlaunched courage and individualism."

"The Geminites," the third selection is entered because "the Gemini space probe, MU-SI students and faculty are pioneering a new frontier of academic and athletic achievement."

The three finalists were selected from over 30 entries by a specially set up Image Committee.

Dr. Driscoll and Emery Turner, Mr. Carl Haffman, Miss Mary Killenberg, Miss Mary Moore, and Mr. Dave Degler, considered suggestions.

Welcome New Senators!

The Mizzou NEWS congratulates the fifteen freshman senators on their election last Friday. It is an undoubted honor to be one of 15 who represent a body 100 times that number.

But, along with the honor goes the burden or representing each of the 1,500 students, and performing all the Senate obligations while maintaining a 2.0 cumulative grade average.

At first this may not seem too restrictive; however, there are many evenings when Student Association meetings are scheduled. To represent their constituents, however, Senators must be there. Students depend on them to voice their ideas and feelings.

On the other hand, the Senators can't be expected to voice student opinions if the students won't bother to inform them.

The Mizzou NEWS hopes that students will make the effort to meet their representatives and tell them how they feel about campus happenings. Then the Senators will be able to more effectively voice student body opinion. This can be the most progressive year yet for students on the St. Louis Campus—if they want it to be.

Support JCD Bond!

Enrollment at the three locations of the Junior College District is growing at a phenomenal rate—up 38 per cent from last year. The almost 6,000 students are now attending classes in temporary buildings. The enrollment is six per cent more than was expected. Last year the enrollment was 5,000 eleven per cent more than expected. The Junior college expects an enrollment of 16,000 by 1973.

These students will need classroom facilities. Permanent buildings must be constructed now, so they are ready in time. These students cannot possibly be housed in temporary buildings like the present students are now. If the buildings are not built thousands of students will have to look for an education elsewhere. For many this will mean transferring to another school or the University of Missouri at St. Louis—i.e., if they want it to be.

The Mizzou NEWS vigorously supports the Junior College District Bond and urges University students, faculty and staff to get behind this bond issue on Nov. 16.

Mr. James Nelson, head of University Security, stated that beginning today violations of traffic regulations at the University are subject to penalties.

Fines range from two to ten dollars, depending on the violation. For illegal parking for a first offense, the fine is ten dollars; for a second offense, the fine is five dollars; and for a third offense, the fine is ten dollars and referral to the Student Affairs Committee for additional disciplinary action.

$10 Fine

Improper driving as defined in the traffic regulations pamphlet imposes a ten dollar fine for all offenses and on the second violation, the student is again referred to the Student Affairs Committee.

Registration violations incur a five dollar fine for a first offense, ten dollars for second and third offenses and referral to the Student Affairs Committee.

Particular restrictions that will be rigidly enforced, Mr. Nelson said, are as follows:

1. Do not back into spaces--park facing in.
2. Do not stop in drives to load or unload passengers.
3. Do not take up more than one space--bumper blocks mark the spaces.
4. No parking in the area of the new building.

For social events at the University, there will be no restrictions imposed on those who attend.

Mr. Nelson emphasized that while the traffic regulations are being enforced, the purpose of the traffic regulations is to make the campus more pleasant for pedestrians who do not have automobiles.

Scholarship Winners Tell Of Summer Trip To Iran

by Jennifer Ward

After spending two adventurous and educational months in Iran, Miss Marlene Merfield returned to St. Louis and is now in her second year at Missouri University at St. Louis.

Miss Merfield is a twenty year old graduate from Barnes School of Nursing. She plans to major in psychology and to eventually go on to study the specialized field of clinical psychology.

This summer she received one of the four scholarships given in the greater St. Louis area and was made a honorary ambassador of St. Louis. The scholarships were to Poland, USSR, Chile, and the one Miss Merfield received to Iran. They included all expenses paid plus a five day training program.

While in Vermont Marlene and eight other American students studied culture, politics, religion, economic and social life, and languages. They traveled briefly in Shannon, Ireland and Athens, Greece and then went to Tehran, the capital of Iran.

From Tehran they went to Shiraz where they lived with a family and this was the remainder of their time they traveled through the country, up to the Russian border and to the Caspian Sea.

Student Photos For Yearbook November 8-12

Student photos are being taken this week, November 8-12, in Room 211 of the Administration Building. A professional photographer will have his equipment set up from 8:00 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. There will be no charge.

As these pictures will be used in the yearbook, male students are asked to wear a coat and tie and the female students are requested to wear dark clothing.

Most students received cards asking them to appear during a specific time interval. Any student who did not receive cards or who are unable to come during the appointed time may have their photographs taken at any convenient time during the week.

The purpose of their trip was to learn as much as possible about the Iranian people; their culture, education, and their Moslem religion.

Marlene thought the people were hospitable and gracious, although their customs were very different from our own. They always use the table spoon and knife, rarely the fork and never the teaspoon.

Their diet consists of rice, grapes, and melons which the visiting students also ate during their visit. They did decline the Iranian rice, because of the danger of disease, their meat was mainly kabob, which is made from lamb, goat's meat, and beef. The Iranians will not eat any pork or fish with out scales.

Pepsi Signs

United States influence is felt quite strongly in Iran, with Pepsi signs up in many stores and with many commercial products. Marlene feels, that although the Iranians appreciate the United States they think the U.S. is pushing them to become American rather than modify. Also because, Americans are very superior and wealthy based on capital. One of Marlene's Iranian friends said that she learned by the American students living there that they really were human beings.

Although Iran does have modern cities, the main forms of transportation are donkeys, camels, bicycles, and foot. Marlene said, "the rules and regulations of driving, though they do exist, are not strictly enforced. Speed limits are unknown." The donkeys, sheep, etc. use the streets and so do taxis, which need not stop for pedestrians since they do not have the right of way. "It took me two days to get up nerve to cross the street," Marlene laughed.

In the village, however, the huts are still built of mud and women still wash in the streams, cook over open fires, and sleep on their roofs in summer and on the floor during the winter. Malaria is the main disease here and almost 10% of the people live in villages and Nomadic tribal groups.

The young men of Iran all want to be engineers and study in America. The Iranians appreciate us as Americans, they are becoming a more progressive nation, but we must remember that we as Americans cannot equate progress with western civilization. These people have a great deal to offer to the world; they have an age old civilization and unapproachable heritage. Yes, we need better education, better health habits, and better living conditions, but they also need tolerance and understanding from a nation such as ours which is prone to be very superior and egoistical toward less progressive countries. The Iranians need our support, not our criticisms of their customs and religions. They are a very hospitable and gracious group of people who are caught between forces of western civilization and progress and are a unique nation clinging to its own culture and civilization.

Professor Tells About Trip To Washington D.C.

"A meeting of the minds" to Dr. Frances G. Crowley's descriptive phrase of the International Platform Association convention she was invited to attend this summer in Washington D.C.

Dr. Crowley, who is an evening division Spanish teacher, as well as housewife, mother and well-read, reminiscences about her experiences in zesty pot pourri style.

Performing artists, lecturers, show business entertainers, poets, novelists, news columnists and others from related fields gathered annually from all parts of the world in contemporary Chatagniers manner to share new ideas and works. Special emphasis is placed on discovering how to use talent effectively in the development of culture.

Drew Pearson, the "barberge of Presidents," championed the Big Brother movement in a gala barbershop for presidents where Dr. Crowley met him, and almost more important his secretary. "She introduced me to all the Washington secretaries," Dr. Crowley explains and laughs. "When I said I'd been sent by Drew Pearson, his secretary, the response couldn't have been much greater than if I Pearson himself had sent me."

Heard Debates

The convention featured talented work shops, presidential and vice-presidential conferences, a senatorial foreign policy debate and an explanation of the Great Society by cabinet members Wirtz, Udall and Freeman. There were authorizing books from the press and Republicans such as Republican House Minority Leader Ford, expressing their concern for American democracy and the two-party system. News columnists Edward P. Morgan, Clark Mollenhoff, Dr. Bradley and Drew Pearson debated and concluded that the White House was managing news.

Officials Meet; Discuss U.M.S.L.

"Perhaps the University will serve as a catalyst to bring these different communities together, for the benefit of everyone," Dean Driscoll told the Missoulian NEWS.

Other problems discussed were fire protection, parades, dances and parties, places of amusement, recreational needs, co-ordination on normal police matter, undesirable business operations, civil disturbances, health facilities, wider access roads, and mass transportation facilities.

Material Training Helps Combat Stairway Foes

No longer are there classes in the far distant churches at M.U. St. Louis and therefore there is no longer any problem in getting to classes on time. Hah! That's what the administration thought and the students dreamed. True, the problem of hiking across the city or to B.A. Nor has classes been eliminated, but in its place the student has at least twice the traffic and five fewer minutes between classes to contend with. After being late to class a number of times I decided to make a check of the time necessary to get from the cafeteria to the fourth floor of the classroom building. With no traffic blocking my path it took exactly seven minutes. I knew that this three minute margin would not be nearly enough when there would be hundreds of students going the other way and an even larger number with my same goal.

I had to find another route. By going out the back door of the cafeteria and braving the dustiest stretch of path in the world (West of the Mississippi anyway) the time was cut to six minutes and seven seconds. Still not good enough. Next I tried leaving five minutes early--no luck.

Still late to class, I decided to try to fight my way through the crowd instead of going along with it. Everywhere I turned with my shoving method and my firm "Excuse me" I met with huge halting human bodies which should have been going to school elsewhere--on football scholarships. And none who was not about to let me through.

After contemplating for a while, the solution came to me. The answer is simple enough but requires a lot of training. Here it is: the student wishing to get to class on time should enroll in a Marine commando training course and train for sprinting at least four days a week. The commando training will give our man the ability to fight his way into the building, through the halls, and up the stairs. The sprinting will allow him to move faster through the few open spaces he may encounter on the path between the building.

But alas, what about our poor student wishing his girl to class? And even worse what about the ball sessions with the guys about the previous weekend's escapades? These my friends are luxuries of the past. No longer shall we be forced to crowd instead of going along with the crowd.

Students Get Theater Tickets At Half Price

Students will be offered half price tickets for the performances of the National Repertory Theater November 8 through November 27 at the American Theater. This year's productions will be Jean Giraudoux's the "Madwoman of Chaillot," Richard Sheridan's "The Rivals," and Euripides' "The Trojan Women."

Students Half Price

Students and faculty in groups of ten or more will be admitted for one-half the regular box-office price. Reservations may be made by phone -- CE 1-1380 or by writing to Lorraine Klaske, American Theater, St. Louis, Mo.

Critics have hailed "The Mad Woman of Chaillot" as a "fascinating piece of dramatic irony." First produced in this country on Broadway in 1948, it received the Drama Critics Circle Award as the best foreign play of the season. "The Rivals" is a hilarious farce set in Bath, England, the fashionable watering place of the late 18th century. "The Trojan Women" is a Greek tragedy of 415 B.C., deals with the agony and Inutilty of war.
We were sitting in the Roman splendor of the student union (catered) observing:

"Look, there goes another one."

"How many is that?"

"53."

"No, that's 54; the one with the suspenders was 53."

"Yeah, that's right."

"Get the other list, here comes another guy."

"How many does that make?"

"You mean with pierced ears?"

"Let's see... 444, 400 of them were girls."

"Hoo-hah, here comes another one."

"Yeah, Maybe he can't afford the $2.25 for a haircut."

"They'd probably charge him double to trim it."

"Frilly."

"He could go to a beauty shop."

"Wow dude, check out the hair on that guy."

"Which one?"

"The one over there with the unpressed Levis and the faded sweatshirt. Should I add him to the weirdo list?"

"O.K., but it's a girl not a guy."

"Oh, sorry about that."

"That's all right. It's getting pretty bad, hair wise sometimes."

"And since the students have been allowed to select school colors and a mascot, such that they are, why shouldn't we be allowed to select the uniforms our campus cops will wear? So here goes: They should wear a bright-brimmed campaign cap. They should wear tight leather gloves which are not to be removed at any time. This outfit would be practical because it would command respect for the stalwart officers in addition to distinguishing them from other C.C.'s with less imaginative uniforms.

Membership in Newman Club Hits New High

Membership in the Newman Club, an organization of Catholic students on campus, has soared to over 300 persons this year, it was announced recently. Because of the increased membership, the club recently announced a full activities calendar for this semester.

Bob Ludwinski, co-chairman of the Social Committee along with Peggy Monahan, is pleased with the co-operation of the members. "This will be a great year for the club, not only because of the extended membership but, also, because so many are eager to pitch in to make our activities a success. We're all working as a team," Ludwinski said.

Social plans for November include a Bake Party on Saturday, Nov. 13, at the Newman House at 7:30 p.m. Entertainment and refreshments will be supplied by the members. And on Nov. 21, everyone will meet at the Newman House at 11:00 before going on to a picnic and Turkey Shoot.

For December the club has plans for a tree trimming party, a Christmas dinner and caroling in Bel Nor on Christmas Eve.

President Bob Greishaber wishes to stress that the "purpose of the Newman Club is not merely religious but social, too, and everyone on campus is invited to use the Newman House for study and to join in our activities."

Young Democrats Select Officers

Election of new officers and sponsorship of CSCS on campus resuited Wednesday night, Oct. 27, as the Young Democrats held their second meeting. The new club officers are Dave Deper, President; Charlie Clanton, Vice President; Sue Wellington, Corresponding Secretary; Betty Barrett, Recording Secretary; Vince La Vista, Treasurer, and Jim Miller, Sergeant-at-Arms.

John Franks asked the Y.D.'s to be in charge of promoting the CSCS on this campus. The CSCS (College Student and Community Service) is a national organization which is concerned with volunteer work throughout the city. Those present at the meeting voted to take the responsibility and promote the organization on this campus. In so doing, the Y.D.'s will be working along with students from almost all the colleges in the St. Louis Metropolitan area.
