1-7-1971

Current, January 07, 1971

Tim Flach

University of Missouri-St. Louis

Follow this and additional works at: http://irl.umsl.edu/current1970s

Recommended Citation

http://irlumsl.edu/current1970s/30

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspapers at IRL @ UMSL. It has been accepted for inclusion in Current (1970s) by an authorized administrator of IRL @ UMSL. For more information, please contact marvinh@umsl.edu.
Gripes Mount on Winter Semester Class Schedules

The effect of the shortage of faculty and physical facilities caused by the university budgetary crisis has been further manifested in the volume of student complaints over their class schedules for next semester.

Glen R. Allen, assistant director of admissions and registrar, said that the complaints were "the largest number we've ever had." However, he said they were not unanticipated. "In fact, there were not as many as I expected."

He attributed the situation to a sudden demand for courses that had failed to fill a classroom in previous semesters.

Previously, he said, the various departments had been forced to turn down significant numbers of applicants included English, history, and history. Students who enrolled for the interdisciplinary course, the City, stood a greater chance of being dropped than in the case of any other single course. Allen said that a student's classification was the greatest determining factor in assigning courses, with seniors usually taking priority over others.

The main exception to this rule was The City, described by the university catalogue as designed for underclassmen. Allen estimated that half of the time-schedule conflicts had resulted from revisions after the chairman of the course had failed to get their opinions, though. Students enrolled for the course, which should be available soon, will not affect day students.

Evening and graduate students usually know fairly well how their courses will be scheduled. Allen explained, but "the number of changes this semester had made the scheduling a bit of a challenge."

The revised schedule of courses, which should be available soon, will include student participation in the screening process.

Faculty cooperation will be needed to conduct the project, according to Wilhelm. "About five minutes" will be needed during the next two class meetings of the semester to get the survey and the second to collect it. The Curriculum Committee of the council presently has only seven members, and Wilhelm admitted that more help is needed.

"We'll welcome anyone willing to work," he said. Even if evaluation forms are passed out this semester, the results will not be available in time to allow students to change their schedules for the coming semesters. Continued on Page 2.

Course Evaluation Sought

By MIKE JONES
Current Associate Editor

A limited course evaluation project, dealing with large lecture-type classes, will be conducted at the end of this semester by the Curriculum Committee of the Central Council if enough faculty support and student workers are available.

"I don't know if we can get everything together by then," Paul Wilhelm, chairman of the committee told the Current.

Wilhelm will present the committee's plans to the Curriculum Committee of the Faculty Senate this Friday "to get their ideas."

However, the students plan to conduct the project even if the senate committee discourages them.

"We will still go ahead with it," Wilhelm said. "It doesn't really matter that much. We would like to get their opinions, though."

Faculty cooperation will be needed to conduct the project, according to Wilhelm. "About five minutes" will be needed during the next two class meetings of the semester to pass out the survey and the second to collect it.

The Curriculum Committee of the council presently has only seven members, and Wilhelm admitted that more help is needed.

"We will welcome anyone willing to work," he said. Even if evaluation forms are passed out this semester, the results will not be available in time to allow students to change their schedules for the coming semesters.

Continued on Page 2.

As Informal Members

Students On Screening Group

The effect of the shortage of faculty and physical facilities caused by the university budgetary crisis has been further manifested in the volume of student complaints over their class schedules for next semester. Glen R. Allen, assistant director of admissions and registrar, said that the complaints were "the largest number we've ever had." However, he said they were not unanticipated. "In fact, there were not as many as I expected."

He attributed the situation to a sudden demand for courses that had failed to fill a classroom in previous semesters.

Previously, he said, the various departments had been forced to turn down significant numbers of applicants included English, history, and history. Students who enrolled for the interdisciplinary course, the City, stood a greater chance of being dropped than in the case of any other single course. Allen said that a student's classification was the greatest determining factor in assigning courses, with seniors usually taking priority over others.

The main exception to this rule was The City, described by the university catalogue as designed for underclassmen. Allen estimated that half of the time-schedule conflicts had resulted from revisions after the chairman of the course had failed to get their opinions, though. Students enrolled for the course, which should be available soon, will not affect day students.

Evening and graduate students usually know fairly well how their courses will be scheduled. Allen explained, but "the number of changes this semester had made the scheduling a bit of a challenge."

The revised schedule of courses, which should be available soon, will include student participation in the screening process.

Faculty cooperation will be needed to conduct the project, according to Wilhelm. "About five minutes" will be needed during the next two class meetings of the semester to get the survey and the second to collect it. The Curriculum Committee of the council presently has only seven members, and Wilhelm admitted that more help is needed.

"We will welcome anyone willing to work," he said. Even if evaluation forms are passed out this semester, the results will not be available in time to allow students to change their schedules for the coming semesters.

Continued on Page 2.

Course Evaluation Sought

By MIKE JONES
Current Associate Editor

A limited course evaluation project, dealing with large lecture-type classes, will be conducted at the end of this semester by the Curriculum Committee of the Central Council if enough faculty support and student workers are available.

"I don't know if we can get everything together by then," Paul Wilhelm, chairman of the committee told the Current.

Wilhelm will present the committee's plans to the Curriculum Committee of the Faculty Senate this Friday "to get their ideas."

However, the students plan to conduct the project even if the senate committee discourages them.

"We will still go ahead with it," Wilhelm said. "It doesn't really matter that much. We would like to get their opinions, though."

Faculty cooperation will be needed to conduct the project, according to Wilhelm. "About five minutes" will be needed during the next two class meetings of the semester to pass out the survey and the second to collect it.

The Curriculum Committee of the council presently has only seven members, and Wilhelm admitted that more help is needed.

"We will welcome anyone willing to work," he said. Even if evaluation forms are passed out this semester, the results will not be available in time to allow students to change their schedules for the coming semesters.

Continued on Page 2.

As Informal Members

Students On Screening Group

Four university students, one from each campus, will participate as non-voting members of the search and screening committee for a new university president during its initial meetings.

The four will be the chairman of committees now being formed on each campus to coordinate student participation in the screening process.

"We are concerned that the students of the university be provided a meaningful role in the search and screening procedures," said Dr. Elmer L. Horseman, professor of law at the Kansas City campus and chairman of the committee, in a statement.

"It's charge to the committee," Horseman said, "the Board of Curators indicated its concern for the consultation and input by the students in the process of selection. It charged the committee with devising the means for receiving and considering students' inputs, opinions and suggestions."

Horseman announced that the search committee will meet with the student committees on each campus this month to discuss the selection of a new president. The search committee will meet with students here on January 15. The time and location have not yet been announced.

The student committees should "collect, coordinate, and represent student opinion," according to Horseman. The committees will assist the screening committee members from their campus throughout the selection process.

Student president Barry Kaufman was asked to form the student committee here. Dr. Robert L. Allen reported: Allen, chairman of the department of economics, and Dr. Robert S. Sullivan, dean of the Graduate School, represent UMSL on the search committee.

Kaufman has appointed seven students to serve on the committee in addition to himself. The students are Jean Heishaus, secretary of the Central Council; Michael Show, president of the Alliance for Peace; and Dan Sullivan, president of the Student Association. Continued on Page 3.

The effect of the shortage of faculty and physical facilities caused by the university budgetary crisis has been further manifested in the volume of student complaints over their class schedules for next semester. Glen R. Allen, assistant director of admissions and registrar, said that the complaints were "the largest number we've ever had." However, he said they were not unanticipated. "In fact, there were not as many as I expected."

He attributed the situation to a sudden demand for courses that had failed to fill a classroom in previous semesters. Previously, he said, the various departments had been forced to turn down significant numbers of applicants included English, history, and history. Students who enrolled for the interdisciplinary course, the City, stood a greater chance of being dropped than in the case of any other single course. Allen said that a student's classification was the greatest determining factor in assigning courses, with seniors usually taking priority over others.

The main exception to this rule was The City, described by the university catalogue as designed for underclassmen. Allen estimated that half of the time-schedule conflicts had resulted from revisions after the chairman of the course had failed to get their opinions, though. Students enrolled for the course, which should be available soon, will not affect day students.

Evening and graduate students usually know fairly well how their courses will be scheduled. Allen explained, but "the number of changes this semester had made the scheduling a bit of a challenge."

The revised schedule of courses, which should be available soon, will include student participation in the screening process.

Faculty cooperation will be needed to conduct the project, according to Wilhelm. "About five minutes" will be needed during the next two class meetings of the semester to get the survey and the second to collect it. The Curriculum Committee of the council presently has only seven members, and Wilhelm admitted that more help is needed.

"We will welcome anyone willing to work," he said. Even if evaluation forms are passed out this semester, the results will not be available in time to allow students to change their schedules for the coming semesters. Continued on Page 2.

As Informal Members

Students On Screening Group

Four university students, one from each campus, will participate as non-voting members of the search and screening committee for a new university president during its initial meetings.

The four will be the chairman of committees now being formed on each campus to coordinate student participation in the screening process.

"We are concerned that the students of the university be provided a meaningful role in the search and screening procedures," said Dr. Elmer L. Horseman, professor of law at the Kansas City campus and chairman of the committee, in a statement.

"It's charge to the committee," Horseman said, "the Board of Curators indicated its concern for the consultation and input by the students in the process of selection. It charged the committee with devising the means for receiving and considering students' inputs, opinions and suggestions."

Horseman announced that the search committee will meet with the student committees on each campus this month to discuss the selection of a new president. The search committee will meet with students here on January 15. The time and location have not yet been announced.

The student committees should "collect, coordinate, and represent student opinion," according to Horseman. The committees will assist the screening committee members from their campus throughout the selection process.

Student president Barry Kaufman was asked to form the student committee here. Dr. Robert L. Allen reported: Allen, chairman of the department of economics, and Dr. Robert S. Sullivan, dean of the Graduate School, represent UMSL on the search committee.

Kaufman has appointed seven students to serve on the committee in addition to himself. The students are Jean Heishaus, secretary of the Central Council; Michael Show, president of the Alliance for Peace; and Dan Sullivan, president...
NABS - Working For The Community

By CAROLYN PERRY

For the Current

A sense of accomplishment and a pride in faculty and student activism of the black student on a university campus were the rewards for students attending the regional meeting of the National Association of Black Students (NABS) in Washington, D.C., Dec. 26-30.

The midwest was well represented at the meeting with delegations from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale and Edwardsville, the State University, and the campuses of the University of Missouri.

NABS was founded to bring together black students who have common ideas and a sincere interest in solving some of the problems that black students face on campus campuses. The organization has committed itself to serving not only for the black college student, but for all black people.

Black organizations which have taken part in past NABS conventions include the Black Medical and Science Students Association, the DuBois Club, the Institute of Creative Studies, and the Urban League. NABS welcomes any organization or group of people working in the interest of black students and all black people to participate in its conventions.

NABS is considering holding its next national convention in St. Louis, although plans for the same meeting have not yet been completed.

Although NABS hopes to become self-supporting, like any other organization it needs money and supplies to survive. Small things such as office supplies and equipment are badly needed in its community center.

The community centers are designed to relate to the needs of the people. For example, the emphasis is on self-help and education in Philadelphia. In New Orleans the objective is to generate high school students' interest in education and provide some type of guidance. The Faison Institute in Washington, D.C., will be mainly an educational center working closely with other community groups.

The NABS speakers bureau has been set up to provide speakers for organizations and communities. Poet LeLofi Jones, Dr. Ralph Abernathy, director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Reverend Charles Koehn, actor and director, and many other prominent black leaders comprise a long list of speakers who have made commitments to NABS.

Another project of NABS is its "Talent Scouts Desk." The program is designed to bring top black artists and entertainers to black college students across the country at discount prices. Among the acts available for booking are The Four Tops, Archie Bell and the Drells, Stevie Wonder, the Impressions, and Aretha Franklin.

NABS is in the process of setting up a research branch. It will be mainly interested in studying how to go about solving those problems. Among the arts available for booking are The Four Tops, Archie Bell and the Drells, Stevie Wonder, the Impressions, and Aretha Franklin.

In the interest in solving some of the problems that black students face on campus campuses, the organization has committed itself to serving not only for the black college student, but for all black people.

Robert L. Davenport, assistant dean of student affairs, will take part in a forum on student unrest throughout the world, to be held Jan. 14 at 5 p.m. in the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel.

Educators from other area campuses will also participate in the forum, sponsored by the St. Louis Council on World Affairs, Inc.

Reservations, required for attendance, will cost $1.00 each, or $5.00 per member of the Council on World Affairs, $2 for guests, and 75 cents for students.

McNeal Named Curator

Continued from Page 1

The governor's recommendation of a $28 million increase in appropriations to the university is "in the ballpark," he declared.

"I don't know if the board was right or wrong. The people on the board before me were good people, in my opinion."

He stated that he did not object to some student participation in university administration but added firmly, "People chosen by the board should be the ultimate decision-makers." It was learned that McNeal was not on the list of recommendations for appointments to the Board of Curators presented to Governor Hearnes Dec. 16 by university student government representatives. McNeal is a retired national officer of the Sleeping Car Porters' Union. During the just finished special session of the legislature, he was the floor manager for several tax revenue bills passed--raises in individual and corporate income, beer, wine, and liquor taxes. The increases are intended, among other priorities, to provide more money for state education.

Three other appointments for full six-year terms to the board have yet to be announced by Hearnes.

--

Discussion On Student Unrest

Robert L. Davenport, assistant dean of student affairs, will take part in a forum on student unrest throughout the world, to be held Jan. 14 at 5 p.m. in the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel.

Educators from other area campuses will also participate in the forum, sponsored by the St. Louis Council on World Affairs, Inc.

Reservations, required for attendance, will cost $1.00 each, or $5.00 per member of the Council on World Affairs, $2 for guests, and 75 cents for students.

Course Evaluation Planned

Continued from Page 1

The committee has agreed to use the evaluation questionnaire developed by the Missouri Student Association, which has been in use on the Columbia campus for a number of years.

Normandy Bank

7151 NATURAL BRIDGE

SAINT LOUIS, MISSOURI 63121

Between homework and classes there's little time left for leisure. Don't spend it running around to pay your bills or purchase money orders. A mere 5¢ stamp will deliver your check. Your cancelled check is your receipt. Your check book will help you manage your money wisely and help prepare yourself for business or home making in the near future.

THE ALL NEW REMODELED NIGHT SPOT IN ST. LOUIS

* Lighted Parking Lot
* Largest Dance Floor In The Area
* Seating For Over 400

Fri., Jan. 6 - Midwest Rock Ensemble
Sat., Jan. 9 - "72"

EVERY FRIDAY STARTING JAN. 15 - THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS
EVERY SATURDAY STARTING JAN. 16 - THE STARLIGHTERS

Gals - Get Here Before 9:30 p.m. For Free Admission

9765 St. Charles Rock Road
For Information Call 429-7777
PCBs: Another Threat To Environment

(CPSI—Come the Silent Spring when life on earth is dying and helpless man finds himself at the mercy of those chemicals, pesticides and synthetic substances he has poured into his environment like "the gas"
"g耄" will come back to haunt him.

Along with DDT, mercury, 2,4,5-T, dieldrin, paraquat and other deadly substances, the autobiography of earth will reveal another compound whose recently-detected effects are widespread, chronic, and insidious.

This latest chemical infiltrator is a polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB), a special class of compounds with myriad household and industrial uses. The prevalence of PCB in the environment was not discovered until 1966, when Swedish scientists found it in concentrations as high as DDT.

Like DDT, the PCB compounds contain chlorine, hydrogen and carbon. Also like DDT, they are non-water soluble, resistant to oxidation, persistent in the environment and extremely persistent in the environment.

The major difference between the two is that DDT has been distributed widely as a pesticide, and PCB may be accidental, and no one knows exactly how or when it will occur or how much escapes.

But in the past four years, scientists have proven PCB's presence in birds, water, trees, sediment and—in inevitably—in human fat and mothers' milk.

In America, PCBs are manufactured by over 100 companies and sold under the trade name "Aroclor." They are also made by chemical companies in Europe and Japan and have been used extensively since World War II. PCBs are sold in containers ranging from 50-pound drums or as 600-pound drums or are available by the railroadcar load.

The unique qualities of PCBs make them useful as flame retardants in electronic plasticizers and coating compounds. Consequently, they may appear in a variety of household products in both household and industrial uses. The two predominant forms of industrial use, such as leakage of hydraulic fluids from supposedly "closed-system" transformers, capacitors and heat transfer fluids, as well as environmental spills, is not preventable and disposal of the end-products cannot be controlled. The company that said it would no longer sell PCB-containing hydraulic fluid ("Pyralon") is Monsanto's trade name after Dec. 31, 1970. And finally, Monsanto recently offered a recovery service for spent fluids used as coolants in transformers and other closed-systems, and began research to develop modified, bio-degradable PVC's.

Limited Work-Study Budget To Force Employee Discharge

By MATT MATLINGLY
Current Staff Writer

The College Work-Study Program here has been forced to curtail its operations.

Emory Ryan, assistant director of admissions and financial aid, said that 141 students had applied for the program effective July 1. Of these, 100 were working by December. Fifteen will be dropped due to the depletion of their eligibility in the near future and we have received notices to this effect.

This "eligibility" refers to the limit on the 1st-spring term through a "needed analysis" filled out by the applicants when they apply for the program, based on their expenses for going to school.

This indicates that only fees but transportation costs.

Jackson said the notification was "routine" but many students had reached their limit earlier than expected due to the scarcity of summer work and many of them to work on campus rather than elsewhere.

Another contributing factor is the fall of the federal government's 15 per cent of the program's funds, to raise the level of its appropriations, although the number of new colleges have appeared in recent years, and many can further a drain on these funds.

A major new competitor has been the junior college system, he said.

In addition, the budget crisis has prevented the university from having the capability to ease the financial strain on the work-study programs.

The program was designed as a supplement to assist with academic expenses, Jackson said, both as a separate income.

With the surplus from the allowed funds, he added, "you could make one good-sized refrigerator payment, and that's about it."

A number of those enrolled had been "hazy" about the limits imposed, he added, "and there had been a "lack of communication" because those involved in the program had been too numerous for individual counselling.

It was possible, Jackson added, that some of those enrolled had become eligible for increased earnings to the side financial resources that they filled out their need analyses.

If not, those at the end of their eligibility would be able to reapply in the next fiscal year begins July 1.

Sandwiches, cocktails, students & faculty welcome

Carpe Diem

At our book seller or write:
$1 at your book seller or write:

Be sure to have your study aid on college campus nationwide. (Pick the title you need in today's busy world. It holds the key to efficient use of your study time.)

Cliffs' Notes are written by scholars and professors to help you study. (Pick the title you need in today's busy world. It holds the key to efficient use of your study time.)

Cliffs' Notes are written by scholars and professors to help you study. (Pick the title you need in today's busy world. It holds the key to efficient use of your study time.)

Cliffs' Notes are written by scholars and professors to help you study. (Pick the title you need in today's busy world. It holds the key to efficient use of your study time.)
Reflections On The Campus Mood

Many students here probably are unfamiliar with Theodore McNeal, the newly named Curator. We feel, however, that the appointment could be significant.

Since the appointment was announced, various political observers have unanimously commented that it was "a good one." They point out that McNeal's knowledge of state government is a definite political asset at a time when the university needs every friend it can get. As the retiring senator himself observes (see story, page 1), his role will be to explain the university's obligation to the legislature and, we add, to the people.

While McNeal learns his new job in the next few months, we hope that he will take the time to talk to a number of students on all four campuses. We still dream of a day when trust felt toward the university administration will not be significant. McNeal's knowledge of state government is a definite political asset at a time when the university needs every friend it can get. As the retiring senator himself observes (see story, page 1), his role will be to explain the university's obligation to the legislature and, we add, to the people.

Disciplinary actions springing from student activism here and on the Columbia campus last spring have demoralized the university. While there is a number of aspects to the pros and cons of their decisions, the Curators made it painfully clear to students that their thoughts regarding educational philosophy in the Nineteenth Century. Decrying a growing politicization of the university, they then allowed their politics to settle the situation in a vengeful manner.

Perhaps it is wrong to dwell on the past in a new school year. Yet the lesson of that period has convinced many students that the Curators will, whenever they please, enforce their will without any regard for established procedures. The attitude of "students should be seen and not heard" has produced disenchantment.

The fiscal crisis has also resulted in a turned-off student body. With a lack of money, the university has stripped its program back to essential services. With many attractive proposals that could diversify curricula and contribute to academic improvement, students wonder about what direction their education is taking.

For instance, this campus is touted as "an urban university." What good is that claim when any work aimed at professional research?

The fiscal crisis has also resulted in a turned-off student body. With a lack of money, the university has stripped its program back to essential services. With many attractive proposals that could diversify curricula and contribute to academic improvement, students wonder about what direction their education is taking.

The economic recession has allowed many bargain-counter liberals who spouted concern for social advancement to go back to worrying about obtaining a four-year union card to make the dollar. Sex, drugs, and lies also top the list of diversions.

This lack of trust stems from recent decisions by the Curators made with false promises made. The first is the fault of the Curators; the second only partly so.

The position of students on this campus is not good. We are confused, disorganized, and leaderless. But in recent days their resolve has appeared and a new determination to get things done. Perhaps our self-confidence is returning.

It is sad news to hear that the university must lay off some students on the work-study program due to financial limitations. To our knowledge, this is the first year that the restrictions on earnings have been so strictly enforced.

The jobs provide necessary income for many students who need the money.

Sources of revenue in the current economic slowdown are scarce and rapidly drying up. The story is the same for the federal and university funds that pay for the program. Unfortunately, the student is hurt more by the loss of income that the university by the work not done.

We urge that the Placement Office investigate alternate methods of funding the program and seek to provide job opportunities for those discharged from it. We don't believe that those discharged feel that the action is just "routine."

No Jobs

The Current is the student publication of the University of Missouri-St. Louis. It is entirely student edited and produced weekly. The Current is located at Room 210, Administration, University of Missouri-St. Louis, Telephone (314) 246-1174.
Dear Editor,

For the past several years, the students at UMSL have given a student gift at Christmas to the children of an inner city school--Clanton Branch School. Great efforts have been made to keep it "silent," for the student who gives the gift on a one day a year does not relieve poverty.

The gifts have been personal and on a one-to-one basis. The gifts have been not enduring, but the thought and the giving been given. The children who receive them long remember that some one cares.

Some may charge that this campus is not "involved" in the inner city. On behalf of all the students who made, decorated, and gave of their time this year, I invite these other people who have not been involved to join those who have been and are now involved. Do not wait for a day, a season, or an invitation--go on your own and find a way to serve.

Again, to you who silently made "Christmas" for four hundred children, I say "thank you" for being concerned and involved.

John Morris
Assistant Professor of Education

---

CASTIGATES SECURITY

Dear Editor,

I am "security" really the correct name for the men who drive the campus police cars?

Do they really scan the campus to check for disorder and crime? I think the security force at UMSL is not nearly as efficient as it should be.

Just the other day, while the campus police were Lord only knows where, some ill-reared person or persons broke the window of my car and stole the passenger seat, my spare tire, and items from the glove compartment. All this while my car was parked on campus!

What kind of warped administration continually makes students pay the ridiculous parking fee of $25 per semester if there is no protection of their automobile included in the fees? Not only do the campus police fail to check campus grounds for crimes being committed, but they are also not available when you need them to report the crime.

If night students have to pay their money to park, campus police should be around to serve them. Why hire them if they are not going to be around a full day (and night) when classes are in session? Crime and disorder does not lie dormant when night falls.

I sincerely hope this kind of vandalism by students or outsiders can be dealt with, and better still, eliminated. I certainly hope the campus police will begin earning the money students work so hard for to finance their education.

It's more than pathetic when students can't park their car without fear on the same lot with people who are, presumably arriving for a similar goal--to achieve betterment. It is absolutely robbery to have to pay $25 per semester to park with no protection of your car from outsiders who come on campus. The so-called "incidental fees" (not tuition) is enough without having to pay for damage imposed on your car while parked on the campus.

Dorothy Reid

---

Post-Flight: The Birds And The Airplane

Five years ago, country rock was a term that brought little, if any thing, to the minds of American music aficionados. Now, thanks to many devotees of ear hard rock have discovered that earamentals are performed with the vocals. Their interweaving of the same precision they lend to their concert instrumental, "Eight Miles

Record Reviews

By Carl Dory
Current News Editor

On the studio portion, the Byrds get into some really neat stuff like Chestnut Mare and Just a Season. Lead guitarist Clarence White also contributes his raucous voice to the lead vocals on Track Stop Girl and a lively little "oake" song, Take a Whiff. If anyone has given country rock a country rock label, it would have to be the Byrds.

The rush of "greatest hits" type albums are upon us again. One of the better offerings is the recently released Worst of the Jef ferson Airplane (RCA Victor). The album features some very early recordings by the Airplane, circa 1965. Those early days include vocals by the Airplane's first vocalist, Sine Teles, and guitarist-turned-drummer Skip Spence (both replaced after the first album) assisting on some curious numbers.

Worst also has an improved version of the Airplane classic White Rabbit, produced by re- mixing the original vocal and instrumental tracks (tape recordings). If you liked the first version, you'll love the songs on the new release as well as the entire album, if you are an Airplane follower.

Speaking of the Airplane, I recommend two new "solo" albums by members of the group. The first is Hot Tuna (RCV Victor) featuring Jorma Kaukonen on guitar, Jack Casady on bass and various rock drummers on a jam-type album that can give you a bit of freshness that is so absent in some of today's groups doing the same old stuff over and over again. I have to admit that one put your foot through the FM set.

The second album Blows Against the Empire (RCA Victor) is Paul Kantner's first solo work, with Grace Slick, David Crosby and Joey Covington (the new Airplane drummer) providing their talents. Kantner's album, limbs, and specifically, creative ability shines as bright as the name of his "group." The Jefferson Starship, is a new album.

The music will remind you that the Airplane's Voluntarioes album somewhat because Kantner and Slick wrote several songs. The album also has an excellent quality not unlike their fourth album, Crown of Creation. In this case the child is definitely the father of the man.

The Jefferson Starship won't put the Airplane into retirement but it's certainly worth listening to, especially the title cut, Starship.
International Affairs Poll Conducted

A recent survey on campus indicated that 79 per cent of students questioned were unaware of the current military budget. The survey was conducted at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville by the Greater St. Louis Chapter of World Federalists. Their purpose was to determine student interest in the United States, the United Nations, and in a World Government.

"The (students) have always raised criticisms, but now they have a chance to do something constructive," remarked Eugene P. Schwartz, program coordinator of the Administration of Justice program, extension division. "They now have an opportunity to participate."

The survey showed that only 47 per cent of the students believed that the United States should do everything possible to promote a World Government. There is currently a World Federalist Youth Organization designed on this international aspect. Only five students showed a willingness to work at promoting such an organization on campus.

There was legal action in Congress recently concerning the formation of a Department of Peace. According to Schwartz, this bill was not acted upon due to lack of support and interest. Only 25 per cent of the students surveyed felt that a Department of Peace would be a waste of time.

The survey was also used as an educational tool, according to Schwartz. Students were given an answer sheet after filling out the questionnaire. There were many things that the students were unaware of, although there are many opportunities to learn them, Schwartz said.

"They can't be pushed," he claimed, "they have to find out on their own." 159 students were polled in the survey.

Re-elections Completed

All eleven candidates for election as day school representatives to the Central Council were officially elected, according to George Wilhelm, chairman of the council's election sub-committee. Only eleven positions needed to be filled.

The results of the election, held Dec. 9 and 10, had been withheld by Wilhelm until they received the approval of the Appointments and Elections Committee of the council Dec. 17.

Re-elected to the council were Stollhans, and Debbie Winship.

Their purpose was to determine the current military budget.

From the Southern Illinois University Dec. 17. John Heithaus, Greg Tyc, Mary Schwartz, and undergraduates showed a willingness to work at promoting such an organization on campus.

"They have always raised criticisms, but now they have a chance to do something constructive," remarked Eugene P. Schwartz, program coordinator of the Administration of Justice program, extension division. "They now have an opportunity to participate."

The survey showed that only 47 per cent of the students believed that the United States should do everything possible to promote a World Government. There is currently a World Federalist Youth Organization designed on this international aspect. Only five students showed a willingness to work at promoting such an organization on campus.

There was legal action in Congress recently concerning the formation of a Department of Peace. According to Schwartz, this bill was not acted upon due to lack of support and interest. Only 25 per cent of the students surveyed felt that a Department of Peace would be a waste of time.

The survey was also used as an educational tool, according to Schwartz. Students were given an answer sheet after filling out the questionnaire. There were many things that the students were unaware of, although there are many opportunities to learn them, Schwartz said.

"They can't be pushed," he claimed, "they have to find out on their own." 159 students were polled in the survey.

ECC Meeting

The Evening College Council will meet Jan. 7 at 8-10 p.m. in room 117, Administration Building. All evening students are invited to attend.

On Campus

THURSDAY, JANUARY 7th

9 am - 3 pm  English Club Literary Magazine on sale, Lobby, Admin. Bldg. and 1st floor, Benton Hall.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 8th

9 am - 3 pm  English Club Literary Magazine on sale, Lobby, Admin. Bldg. and 1st floor, Benton Hall.

7:30 and 9 pm  Film Series: "In the Heat of the Night" with Sidney Poitier and Rod Steiger. Room 101, Life-Sciences Bldg. 5:00 with ID. Sponsored by University Program Board.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 10th

1:00 pm  Central Council meeting, Blue Building.

1:30 pm  Film: Marat/Sade, Room 101, Life-Sciences Bldg. No charge. Sponsored by University Program Board.

MONDAY, JANUARY 11th

9 am - 3 pm  English Club Literary Magazine on sale Lobby, Admin. Bldg. and 1st floor, Benton Hall.

8 pm  Basketball: UMSL Rivermen vs Rockhurst at Viking Hall.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 12th

9 am - 3 pm  English Club Literary Magazine on sale Lobby, Administration Building and 1st floor, Benton Hall.

9 am - 3 pm  Delta Zeta Bake Sale, Cafe, Admin. Bldg.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 13th

8 am - 3 pm  Sigma Pi Bake Sale, Cafe Admin. Bldg.

9 am - 3 pm  English Club Literary Magazine on sale Lobby, Admin. Bldg. and 1st floor, Benton Hall.

8 pm  Film: Blow-Up with David Hemmings and Vanessa Redgrave. Room 101, Life-Sciences Bldg. No charge.

LIVE THE LIFE YOU LIKE

DOWNTOWN • ON THE RIVERFRONT • WHERE EVERYTHING IS

Enjoy the ultimate in convenience and security plus a full and varied activity program in a Total Environment embracing vitality, charm, and carefree gracious living in the heart of the bright, gay and exciting Downtown-Riverfront Area—all at reasonable cost.

Four Student-Graduate Apartment Plans have been designed especially to meet the housing needs of college students, nursing students, graduate students, residents, interns, "under 30" graduates, and night students.

All Mansion House apartments are quiet-engineered, individually climate controlled, and professionally administered. For your security there is a 24-hour guard force, courteous doormen, a lobby-apartment intercom, and lobby door control from each apartment. One-way viewers are on each apartment door.

All plans include apartments that have GE kitchens with refrigerator, stove and disposal sink; cozy, quiet-engineered walls overlooking 83-acre park and overlooking 83-acre park and swimming pools, putting green, recreation room, art studio, and 24-hour security, doormen, on-site shops, cafeteria, supermarket, drug store, near stadium, theaters.

DISPLAY APARTMENTS OPEN 10-9 DAILY - 17th FLOOR

400 N. FOURTH ST. 241-9700

4-SHARE STANDARD SUITE PLAN

$25 per week per person includes:

- Living room with couch, chairs, lamps, bookcase, TV antenna.
- Separate bedrooms for 2 each with twin beds, double dressers, night stands.
- Dining alcove with dinette set.
- Bath with shower.

4-SHARE STANDARD SUITE PLAN

$50 per week includes:

- Living room with couch, tables, lamps, chair, bookcase.
- Dining alcove with dinette set.
- Private bedroom with double bed, double dresser and nightstand.
- Bath with shower.

$65 per week also includes:

- Larger private bedroom.
- Study table-desk with chair and lamp.

SINGLE STUDIO PLAN

$60 per week includes:

- Large combination living/sleeping area with hideaway or twin couch bed, tables, chairs, lamps, desk, dinette set.
- Bath with tub and shower.

Mansion House

* bus within one block
* laundry, lobby phones
* Downtown-Riverfront location
* full time social director
* recreation room, art studio
* swimming pools, putting green
* overlooks 83-acre park and Arch
* quiet-engineered walls
* 24-hour security, doormen
* on-site shops, cafeteria
* supermarket, drug store
* near stadium, theaters

You're invited to the...
Fall Golf Tournament Scheduled

Following two years of planning, the Athletic Department has announced its intentions to host a major intercollegiate golf tournament next fall.

The tournament has not been officially named, "but it will probably be something like the Mid-American Intercollegiate Golf Classic, commented golf coach and tournament organizer Larry Berres.

The event will pit 20 intercollegiate golf teams in one day, 18-hole competition.

A sponsor, not yet announced, has already agreed to foot the bill.

"There is no comparable event of this magnitude," said Berres, pointing out that the price is right considering the amount of publicity such an event will bring the school.

"There is no comparable event in the midwest," added Berres. He went on to say that such a tournament could be of great value to college golf teams, which need an early look at young golfers.

"Some players are great in practice," he said, "but come off very poorly in competition.

Since the competition will take place in October, it will also be a last opportunity for some northern teams to play before winter shuts down their courses.

Invitations have gone out to 32 schools thus far and Berres foresees little difficulty in filling the tournament.

"The competing schools will have to pay only for their transportation," he said, "adding that another selling point of the contest will be the fact that it will be played on Monday, allowing most of the teams to learn to compete with only a minimal loss of school time.

The program will begin on the chosen Sunday (the exact date has not been decided) with a banquet for the contestants and coaches.

The players will have breakfast at 7 a.m. Monday and tee off beginning at 8 a.m.

Lunch will be served to the players at the end of the day's rounds, followed by an awards presentation at which the trophy winners will be announced and complimentary gifts presented to all players and coaches.

The idea of a fall tournament is not revolutionary, Berres said. The Rivermen have hosted several small ones this past autumn.

"The trend is to fall golf and baseball," said Berres, explaining that the tournament is more than a novelty. "As a matter of fact, it is becoming an integral part of its baseball competition in the fall.

He cited abbreviated spring schedules, caused by changes in academic calendars, as the underlying reason for the switch.

Northern schools ending classes in May may have only a few weeks in which to complete a full baseball, golf and track program.

Berres told the Current that at last count, eight schools had accepted bids in the American Intercollegiate Golf Classic.

Up And Down Cage Season

Continued from Page 8

center Jim Buford with 14. Dan Ehlenbeck led the losers with 11 points, but even he hit only three of 15 from the field, a tribute to the tough Rivermen defense.

The Rivermen have shown considerable improvement at the free throw line, too. They hit 72 per cent of their free throws in the William Jewell contest, including 6 of 7 by Mark Bernsen and 7 of 8 by Ron Crimm.

Before coming home to play Houston Baptist and William Jewell, the Rivermen lost to Arkansas University and Memphis State University and beat the University of Tennessee-Martin, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.

The Rivermen led by 13 at halftime, in the Arkansas game, only to suffer in the second half and lose, 91-84. They were never really in the game against the Memphis, all on the road, over the holidays.

Bell took honors for the Rivermen in the Arkansas and Memphis State games with 29 points in each.

Berens contributed 25 points against Arkansas.
Rivermen Seek End To Hawk Mastery

The always tough Rockhurst Hawks invade Viking Hall for the first time Monday night for an 8 p.m. contest with the Rivermen.

The Hawks boast a good deal of height, led by 6'8" Jim Oliphant (10), who contributed 10 points to the Hawk scoring attack.

Guard Shedrick Bell puts the move on Houston Baptist’s Jim Skages (14) and Art Gaze (16) before passing off to teammate Ron Carhkm (29) as Rivermen Glen Bohn moves in. On the left is Husky E. C. Coleman (44). Houston won 67-63.

3 Soccer Stars Honored

Three Rivermen soccer players were honored recently by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America.

The association named forward Tom Fitzsimmons, halfback Greg Kramer and linkman Kevin Rhem’s Hawks, it will mark the first regular season victory over Rockhurst.

The Hawks hold a 3-1 edge in the four-year-old series.

Last season the two squads met in a home and home series for the first time. Rockhurst defeated the Red and Gold in a "home" game at the Arena and swept the series with a late season victory in the Hawk fieldhouse.

The two squads first clashed in 1968, UMSL’s second season of intercollegiate play, in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 16 semifinal game. The contest was held at neutral Missouri Valley College in Marshall, Missouri.

Rockhurst demoralized their opponents with a scoring burst that sent them ahead 18-2 in the opening moments and ran to a rather impressive victory.

In 1969, with a year’s experience under their belts, the Rivermen had an opportunity to avenge the previous year’s defeat.

That Riverman team, led by all-time leading scorer Jack Steiner and newcomers Greg Daust and Denny Caldwell, beat the Hawks 80-82 in the NAIA District semi-final at the Brewer Field House in Columbus for their lone victory over the Rockhurst squad.

Future Bus Trips

The Steamers Club Executive Board has voted to submit two additional trips for membership approval at the next organization meeting, Jan. 12, in the Cafeteria Annex Lounge.

The first trip will take place Jan. 28-30. The club plans to send a bus to Marich, Ill., for the Western Illinois game Jan. 28 and to Chicago for the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle game Jan. 30.

The organization, at present, consists of between 25 and 35 members who practice together whenever class schedules and ice time permit.

The members are now under so obligation to come to all or any previous practices in order to play.

"We’re in no position to place limitations," said Megler of the fledgling club. "In two or three weeks, maybe we’ll need cooperation if we are to make the club work.

Megl er explained that the club had been practicing during an unwanted time slot at nearby Wint erland rink at a discount rate. However, when the time suddenly became wanted, they switched to the St. Louis Biltikens at full price, the club found itself looking for new quarters.

They found those at Granite City, Missouri and that made trips twice a week at the Granite City Municipal Ice Rink. Class conflicts pre-

Cagers Trump Cards

By DARRELL SHOULTS

January 7, 1971

Three weeks ago, the Rivermen travelled to Liberty, Mo., to confront the Cardinals of William Jewell. They left the aged arena feeling low and mean, having been thumped by Jewell, 72-67.

so poorly against the weak Huskies, and then blow the strong Cardinals out of the gym.

"It was a change of attitude," explained Bell, the Riverman guard, "and we’re at the halfway mark in our season and we knew that if we were going to be good, we have to get started right now. This was kind of a do-or-die game for us."

Against Houston Baptist, the Rivermen were ice-cold from the floor, hitting a meager 27 per cent of their shots. Against Jewell, the Red and Gold had a fast-paced offensive game. The Rivermen hit in double figures.

One Riverman with whom everyone except the Cardinals were pleasantly surprised was Ron Herm. The Missouri Baptist transfer came in at forward for 12 minutes and scored 17 points. He also snatched five rebounds.

Crimm’s other noteworthy accomplishment came when he and Cardinal Gary Edwards crashed into the Jewell bench. Crimm bounced up and menacingly told Edwards to "let up, obviously ready to engage in a little fistfighting. And, though he probably wouldn’t need it, help was on the way from the Rivermen bench in the persons of forward Ron Carhkm and guard Clarence Slaughter. Luckily, no blows were thrown.

The Rivermen were paced by Mark Bernsen, the quick 6’1” guard. Bernsen, who has been hot from the field in recent games, kept it up against Jewell with 21 points. Bernsen is fast making the extra-long jump shot his specialty. Hooking up Bernsen were Crimm and his 17 points, Bell with 16, and Mike Olds with 15.

The organization, at present, consists of between 25 and 35 members who practice together whenever class schedules and ice time permit.

"We’re in no position to place limitations," said Megler of the fledgling club. "In two or three weeks, maybe we’ll need cooperation if we are to make the club work.

Megl er explained that the club had been practicing during an unwanted time slot at nearby Winterland rink at a discount rate. However, when the time suddenly became wanted, they switched to the St. Louis Biltikens at full price, the club found itself looking for new quarters.

They found those at Granite City, Missouri and that made trips twice a week at the Granite City Municipal Ice Rink. Class conflicts pre-