President's Office Established

On September 13, 1968, the University of Missouri Board of Curators approved the establishment of a university-wide Office of International Studies and centers on the University's four campuses. The curators directed that the office be headquartered in St. Louis because of the area's prominence as a center of international trade, finance, transportation and communication.

The Office of International Studies (OIS), not to be confused with the centers, will be set up to coordinate the activities of each of the four centers.

Directing the university-wide office will be Paul R. Schratt, a faculty member of the National War College (Washington, D.C.). The OIS is scheduled to begin operations around December 1, 1968, following the arrival of Dr. Schratt in St. Louis.

The University of Missouri St. Louis center director is Dr. Edwin H. Feeder, an associate professor of political science and a member of the faculty since September.

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic candidate for President, may appear on campus next Tuesday, October 15. Plans are now in the formative stage for the Vice-President to speak at 2:00 p.m. by the lake.

Leftist Group Backs Central Council

Leaders of the plan for a student representative system have received unexpected and unsolicited support from a newly-organized student leftist movement.

In three hours of debate, beginning at 11:40 Wednesday, October 2, the leaders presented the system to an estimated total audience of slightly over 100 students. At 12:40, informed sources said, several members of the leftist group, the Congress for Student Involvement, disrupted the meeting by asking the group if they would support a resolution opposing President Weaver's statement on campus disorders.

"We told them that if they received a majority under our system, then they could pass such a resolution," said Craig Zimmerman, a member of the planning group. "But first of all we asked them to join us not as servants but as equals in setting up the system before challenging the administration."

Although claiming that the method for selecting representatives is "full of loopholes," Lee Elliott, a spokesman for the Congress, stressed, "We will support this attempt for student government."

Elliott said that his group plans to submit a resolution requesting Weaver to define specifically his meaning of campus disorders. Representatives of the Congress plan to meet with students from the University of Missouri campuses at Columbia, Rolla and Kansas City within two weeks, then to present a common resolution directly to President Weaver.

Since the movement is not a recognized student organization, recognition was applied for Monday, October 7, but would not have a representative in the proposed Central Council. But Elliott said that already recognized groups like the Young Democrats, the Politics Club and the Association of Black Collegeans are sympathetic to many of their views.

"We will ask for recognition for ourselves," he said, "but we expect to be shelved or ignored."

Although posters had advertised the group as leftist, Elliott told the Current that "We don't want to be leftist or radical, because we are trying to stay away from the methods of the SDS. We'd prefer to be more issue-oriented than ideology-oriented."

Humphrey Visit Here 'Probable'

Bob Feigenbaum, chairman of the United Students for Humphrey-Muskie and president of UMSL Young Democrats, told the Current that Humphrey will definitely deliver a campaign address to college students in St. Louis next Wednesday with UMSL the probable site. Advance men from the Democratic National Committee and Secret Service agents were expected to examine the UMSL campus Tuesday, afternoon, October 8, with their approval necessary to confirmation of Humphrey's appearance here.

If the UMSL campus is approved, Feigenbaum hopes to stage the speech above the lake opposite Benton Hall. If UMSL is not approved, Humphrey will speak at some other St. Louis college.

The Vice-President's address to students Wednesday is under the sponsorship of the United Students for Humphrey-Muskie, a group established at UMSL, Maryville, Forest Park Community College, Washington University and St. Louis University.

Scott Addresses Students Friday

Hugh Scott, Republican congressional candidate from the Second District, will speak on campus Friday, October 11, at 2:40 p.m., in room 100 of the Math and Modern Language Building.

Scott, formerly a County Commissioner and 1966 Chairman of the County Council, opposes Democrat James Symington in the contest for the House seat of Republican senatorial candidate Tom Curtis.

Scott is a relative of the map last year, prior to this August primary victory over fellow-Republican Bob Boyd.

Campus Young Republicans are also sponsoring a visit of gubernatorial candidate Lawrence K. Roos on October 21, and tentative plans are being made to bring First District Republican congressional candidate Curtis Crawford.
Financial Suppression

The recent action by a House-Senate conference committee, which placed certain restrictions in the Higher Education Act concerning federal loans for students involved in protests and other campus disorders, is a bit vague in its definition.

According to the way the statement reads, any student involved in the "use of force, disruption, or seizure of property" is subject to having his aid suspended for up to 10 years. Few would argue that the terms "force" and "seizure of property" lack clarity, however, the effect of the new legislation is rather puzzling.

Certainly "force" or "seizure" merit such harsh action as the statement prescribes, but "disruption," to a certain degree is, what, exactly? One hand of the government's administration to determine what degree of "disruption," if any, it would tolerate.

A student in this type of situation faces two alternatives; take part in a protest and risk losing his loan, or remain silent, a victim of "financial suppression." The new action, therefore, definitely favors the uninvolved and uninterested student. It disregards free thought and freedom of expression in the academic world.

While the new statement does provide an administration the power to deal with extremist groups intent on mere destruction, it severely limits and threatens healthy protest.

Therefore, it appears essential that the committee reconsider the clarity of its definition and takes steps which would alleviate any form of financial "suppression." The black man is only the minority in this country, for about 80% of the world's people are colored peoples.

Integration is irrelevant

by Leo Trice of ABC

Integration is not the objective or goal of the new black man. Blackness is our goal. In the early civil rights movement, all black people wanted was the elimination of the degradation self-evident in a Jim Crow system. Blacks simply wanted an open and free society. There is no "prestige" in living in a white world. It doesn't matter if there are all black and all white neighborhoods. It only matters that people can move where their income can sustain them. Integration in itself is irrelevant. Black people are not struggling to live in white society, but only to live at the level America is capable of giving every citizen.

Those who dwell on integration are giving undue emphasis to a false issue. The only issue, as far as black people are concerned is black advancement in all phases of life. Black people don't need white companionship to survive. Black people need to consolidate and become an independent species. When blacks are independent, then integration may have some meaning. It is better for black people to be segregated with power, than to be integrated with importance. Integration has too often equated blacks becoming "white." This is in the long run impossible and undesirable always.

All integration today is marginal and token. If the masses of whites wonder integration is so easy to accomplish, it can be seen as a result of segregated schools. Black people have stopped flossing themselves. There is more segregation, percentage-wise, today than there was a generation ago. It is whites who keep trying to use integration as a sign of progress. Whites invested segregation with all the trappings of a black society. Black people try to form a solid black union, in order to benefit themselves, while immediately accuse blacks of "segregation" and "racism." History attests to the real racist-separatist. In the final analysis, integration means nothing in itself. It may or may not be indicative of tangible black progress. Integration in itself is more beneficial to whites than to blacks, because whites must learn to live with people different from themselves. The black man is only the minority of this country, for about 80% of the world's people are colored peoples.

Most striking architectural feature and a reminder of our heritage. We also checked out Columbia downtown. In general, the cafeteria is larger than the basement bar (breakfast bar, we mean) and lunch box of UMSL. The left-overs, instead of remaining in machines, are gathered into the kitchen, renamed, today's ham tomorrow's ham salad) and served again. And again, both milk and ice cream are of high quality, as they come from the University's own cows. UMSL students can expect fresh duck eggs, roast duck, and strawberry shortcake (although the last don't taste too good).

We then observed the advantage of boarding over commuting. The commuter's greatest journey, of course, is not from home to school but from the parking lot to a building. Astonishing enough, this distance is not appreciably more than that between a typical Columbia dormitory and a typical Columbia classroom building. And, as the average student has consecutive classes at opposite ends of the campus buildings, a Tiger may be classed as a de facto commuter on the basis of miles travelled.

By this time our research had led us to an inescapable conclusion: UMSL may well grow without any increase in student comforts. After the brave new world, we must content with education.

The major question which is raised by the Loretto-Illinois Repertory Theatre's production of The World of Sholem Aleichem is why this play was chosen at all. It was a very poor choice, indeed. This program of one-act plays, adapted by Arnold Perl from three of Jewish writer Sholem Aleichem's short stories, is far below the artistic (and entertainment) caliber of the other plays in the company's repertory. It is also not at all well suited stylistically to the company's abilities. Not more than two or three of the actors have an acceptable Jewish dialect, and the whole production, as well as the play itself, lacks the necessary insight into the subtleties of the Jewish character.

The first two plays are quite short, but neither of them has enough body to justify their playing time. The first, A Tale of Chelm, is a humorous anecdote about a simple practical joke played on one of the fools in a town of fools. It features good performances by Arthur Rosenberg, Daria Robbiani and Michael Flanagan. It is, however, very slight dramatically and would be much more effective if told by a good Jewish storyteller (such as Myron Cohen) than it is on the stage.

Nothing really happens in Bontche Schweig, the second playlet. It is a fable about the Heavenly trial of Bontche Schweig, who in the face of all sorts of adversity and mistreatment never raised his voice in protest. The Defending Angel describes in great detail what Schweig went through in his lifetime. The Prosecuting Angel has no case against him. After the trial, the Presiding Angel tells him that he can have anything in Heaven in reward for his goodness. Schweig's wish is that everyday he be given one "hot roll with fresh butter." There is no conflict, no deep characterizations, no great perception, nothing that warrants its dramatization.

While the first two playlets are too frail to hold the stage, the third, The High School, has enough substance for a good full length play. It tells of a Jewish couple's struggles to get their son into high school. Only one of two Jewish boys are allowed a place in class each year. Perl's adaptation is only a superficial telling of the story. The characters have no depth, and the problems are oversimplified.

J. Robert Dietz has directed The World of Sholem Aleichem with some imagination, but not enough sensitivity. John Wright Steven's simple sets, which make use of some excellent lighting effects by Peter Sargent, are appropriate although they add little to the production. Bernie Fasselt, as Mendele the bookdealer who introduces each of the plays, is so good that I wish that he could have merely told the stories himself.

W.C. Fields Films Shown

Two W.C. Field's film comedies, You Can't Cheat an Honest Man and The Pathe Glass of Beer, will be presented by the University Players Tuesday night, October 16, 8:00 p.m. This first program of the Players' film series will include a banjo player from the Banjo Palace and a pianist from Shakney's to play for listening pleasure and a sing-along. The Players also plan to present some short vaudeville-type skits. There will be a 50¢ admission charge.

Chorus Elects Officers; Plans "Carousel" Tryouts

Officers for the 1968-69 school year for the University Chorus were recently elected. They are: Pat Corney, president; Sandy Freeman, vice-president; Karl Leigh, secretary; Kathy Apolin, treasurer; and Karen Weir, treasurer. With the election, according to Badger, "it is a new chapter for the Chorus." Officers for the 1968-69 school year for the University Chorus were recently elected. They are: Pat Corney, president; Sandy Freeman, vice-president; Karl Leigh, secretary; Kathy Apolin, treasurer; and Karen Weir, treasurer. With the election, according to Badger, "it is a new chapter for the Chorus."

Along with Chorus director, Ronald Arnaud, the officers have rewritten the chorus' constitution, to now stress "the importance of presenting musical entertainment not only to the students, but to the surrounding area as well. At present, the University Chorus is working on plans for Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel". Auditions for the musical will be held this Saturday and Sunday from 10:00 to 5:00 p.m. in 105 Benton Hall. The production will be presented December 15, 16, and 17.

Russian Invasion

Panel Cites Fear of Czechoslovakian Reform

Three professors, each representing a different field, analyzed the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia in a panel discussion on Wednesday, October 2.

Dr. Stanley B. Kimball, an associate professor of history at SIU-Edwardsville and an eyewitness to the invasion, praised the "heroism of the Slovak people against the Neanderthals who rule the Kremlin."

From his observations he concluded that "the Slovak passive resistance was as massive as the military hardware of Russia," He said its leaders were rebellious students, "generation raised and indoctrinated by Communism."

"I saw no Russian violence or animosity against individuals," he continued. "The amount of discipline and control by the troops was remarkable."

Dr. Kimball said that the invasion was built on the Russian concept of a colonial empire that "cannot be allowed to crumble. It is an empire full of fear and dissent and not monolithic," he declared.

"The United States has not learned anything from this experience," charged Dr. Kimball.

Hi Gang!

The Students for a Democratic Society (still a whimper) were on campus last week trying to drum up support for their group. A Current reporter asked a member of the SDS whether they were not overt in their activities. He replied, "There are no rules per se in the group and we really don't have any organizational concepts as such." I always knew they were good for nothing, but I didn't know they stood for nothing. A quick look at the Democratic party seems to indicate its split into the Old Left, the New Left and what's left...

I refuse to say the athletic department is working under a financial handicap; however, when "Doody" Roth, one of the eagers, lost a face from his basketball shoe last week, the athletic budget had to be increased by 48% in order to buy him a new one... It's rumored that Angel Fligh, in order to earn enough money to maintain those striking uniforms are going to be hired as meter maid for Bel-Nor, as soon as D-N can afford some parking meters...

It seems as though the University asked for bids for the new multipurpose gym, and the lowest bid received was $490,000 higher than we could afford--maybe the Chancellor could have just a prestige shell erected and get the furnishings at Shopper's Fair... And in the typical new semester spirit I give an F&K award to the freshman who sat through four simulated elections.

Cheerleading Clinic
After last year’s cheerleading fiasco with nine girls out of the whole school trying out for seven cheerleading positions, I am happy to report that over forty girls attended the cheerleading clinic two weeks ago. However, these forty girls are trying out for only four or five positions left open on this year’s squad. After filling this year, many of these girls will probably not try out again.

In my opinion, one solution to this problem is to choose a fresh man cheerleading squad to cheer at the junior varsity basketball games. This will relieve the varsity squad of this task and leave them more time for other duties. It will also allow the freshmen to keep in touch with UMSL sports and give them experience for next year. The freshmen would not ever need special uniforms. They could wear the old cheerleading outfit or just wear a white blouse and red shorts. I’m sure that the freshmen would rather do that than not be cheerleaders at all.

Soccer Debut
Congratulations to Coach Don Dallas and his Rivermen soccer team on their 3-0 victory over Greenville College in UMSL’s first inter-college soccer game last Saturday. Let’s hope that this victory will inspire the Rivermen to a good inaugural season.

Football Reports
On behalf of the eighty UMSL students who attended last Sunday’s football Cardinal game against Dallas, I would like to thank KMOX radio for the free tickets we received for their Blanchard cheering section. KMOX certainly chose some good games for us to attend. Last year we saw Green Bay and this year Dallas. The Cards really looked bad Sunday; I felt cheated of a good game even though I didn’t pay for the tickets. We weren’t really paying attention to the game though, as the World Series was on at the same time. It was interesting to see both teams in baddies and to hear a great cheer erupt from the fans, as the baseball Cardinals were “socking it to” Detroit.

Also on the subject of football, attended last Saturday’s Missouri-Army game in Columbia. Judging by the number of UMSL students and staff members at the game, I’m not the only one here who feels that the Tigers are our football team too.

The game was very interesting. It’s not often that a team can lose three fumbles and six interceptions and still win the game. The Missouri defense did a great job although Army helped out by losing three fumbles and three interceptions and by being penalized for 78 yards.

In deciding their season record to 2-1, the Tigers posted Coach Don Devine’s 100th career coaching victory, giving him a mark of 83-27, at Missouri and a career record of 100-30-4. The more than 58,000 people in attendance set a record for the most people ever to see an athletic event in Missouri.

Thank You Mr. Goltermann
This coming Saturday, members of the Current staff along with fraternity Presidents and social chairmen will attend the St. Louis Blues home opener as the guests of Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co. Mr. Goltermann will be helping publicize the Rivermen basketball team this year by printing schedules and other information. He also has a special attraction, which will be announced shortly, planned for UMSL basketball fans.

Be sure to read the next edition of “Hendin’s Headlines” for our exclusive report on the World Series, written exclusively for the Current by Mike Gils and myself.
Kickers Win Inaugural

by Judy Wachter

UMSL’s first intercollegiate soccer team established a winning tradition in their first game on October 5 as they downed Greenville College of Greenville, Illinois, 3-0.

Riverman Tim Fitzsimmons had the honor of scoring the first goal as he connected on a penalty kick in the first quarter. The score remained 1-0 until Dave Mayar scored for UMSL in the third quarter. Tom Tucker, who assisted Mayar on his goal, scored the final UMSL tally, with an assist from Mark McDonald in the fourth quarter.

The UMSL defense did a fine job as it allowed Greenville to take only three shots at the goal. The offense kept the pressure on Greenville’s goalie as the Rivermen attempted twenty-one shots.

The soccermen will travel to Western Illinois University Saturday, October 12, for their second game of the season. The Rivermen’s only home game of the season will be Thursday, October 23, against Rockhurst College. The game will be played at Florissant Valley Community College.

Harriers Run at Greenville Sat.

by Pat Freeman

UMSL cross-country team, with only four men finishing in the top ten, was downed by Principia College October 2, in the second home meet of the season, 18-39. Principia, one of the toughest cross-country squads on the 1968 schedule, proved their ability as they captured four of the top five positions in the meet.

Only a short .04 seconds separated the first and third place runners as Marc Machon of Principia finished first, covering the four-mile course in 23 minutes, 5 seconds. Tom Nowell, also of Principia, placed second for his team as he ran a 23:07 time. Riverman Bob Hudson, who has been setting the top times for UMSL in previous meets, led the way again with a third place time of 23:09.

Other UMSL harriers whose efforts were combined in the scoring were: Ted McQueary, (9th); Kerry Robinson, (10th); Jeff Davis (10th); and Randy Davis, (11th).

Although this put the Rivermen at a 1-3 season mark, Coach Larry Berres was pleased to state that statistics show that the team average in time had improved 22 seconds per man. This average should be greatly improved before the season is over.

The top ten finishers were:

1. Mark Machon (P) 23:05
2. Tom Nowell (P) 23:07
3. Bob Hudson (UMSL) 23:09
4. John Meekins (P) 23:16
5. Al Hoss (P) 23:34
6. Ted McQueary (UMSL) 23:45
7. Al Neil (P) 24:05
8. Alex Ware (P) 24:13
9. Kerry Robinson (UMSL) 24:24
10. Jeff Davis (UMSL) 24:40

The harriers will travel to Greenville, Illinois, Saturday to take part in the Greenville Invitational. Next Monday they will run against Culver-Stockton College. They will return to Culver-Stockton Invitational.

I'M Activities

The intramural flag football leagues got off to a slow start last week as almost half of the games were forfeited. Barrying runoffs the league seasons will end next Tuesday with the championship game scheduled for Friday October 12.

Three teams of women volleyball players ended their season yesterday. The Tenstrumers, Newman Club, and Delta Zetas competed for championship honors. The winner will be announced next week.

Two other intramural activities are scheduled for the next two weeks. There will be a punt, pass, and kick contest sometime during the week of October 14-18. Starting October 18 there will be a league for three-man-half court basketball. Rosters for basketball are limited to ten. The teams will be obtained in either the Athletic Office or intramural checkout station, but they must be returned to the Athletic Office. Competition will be in the form of a tournament rather than league competition. The games will be played in fifteen minute halves with the clock running continuously. Deadline for submitting rosters is October 16.

Principia, one of the toughest cross-country squads on the 1968 schedule, proved their ability as they captured four of the top five positions in the meet.

Only a short .04 seconds separated the first and third place runners as Marc Machon of Principia finished first, covering the four-mile course in 23 minutes, 5 seconds. Tom Nowell, also of Principia, placed second for his team as he ran a 23:07 time. Riverman Bob Hudson, who has been setting the top times for UMSL in previous meets, led the way again with a third place time of 23:09.

Other UMSL harriers whose efforts were combined in the scoring were: Ted McQueary, (9th); Kerry Robinson, (10th); Jeff Davis (10th); and Randy Davis, (11th).

Although this put the Rivermen at a 1-3 season mark, Coach Larry Berres was pleased to state that statistics show that the team average in time had improved 22 seconds per man. This average should be greatly improved before the season is over.

The top ten finishers were:

1. Mark Machon (P) 23:05
2. Tom Nowell (P) 23:07
3. Bob Hudson (UMSL) 23:09
4. John Meekins (P) 23:16
5. Al Hoss (P) 23:34
6. Ted McQueary (UMSL) 23:45
7. Al Neil (P) 24:05
8. Alex Ware (P) 24:13
9. Kerry Robinson (UMSL) 24:24
10. Jeff Davis (UMSL) 24:40

The harriers will travel to Greenville, Illinois, Saturday to take part in the Greenville Invitational. Next Monday they will run against Culver-Stockton College. They will return to Culver-Stockton Invitational.

I'M Activities

The intramural flag football leagues got off to a slow start last week as almost half of the games were forfeited. Barrying runoffs the league seasons will end next Tuesday with the championship game scheduled for Friday October 12.

Three teams of women volleyball players ended their season yesterday. The Tenstrumers, Newman Club, and Delta Zetas competed for championship honors. The winner will be announced next week.

Two other intramural activities are scheduled for the next two weeks. There will be a punt, pass, and kick contest sometime during the week of October 14-18. Starting October 18 there will be a league for three-man-half court basketball. Rosters for basketball are limited to ten. The teams will be obtained in either the Athletic Office or intramural checkout station, but they must be returned to the Athletic Office. Competition will be in the form of a tournament rather than league competition. The games will be played in fifteen minute halves with the clock running continuously. Deadline for submitting rosters is October 16.
