Six Candidates State Platforms

The physics annex will definitely be a valuable addition to the cafeteria space next year, Chancellor James L. Bugg Jr. announced at last week's meeting of the faculty senate, Bugg said, "This decision has been arrived at after considerable discussion among the faculty and students interested in this problem, and although it does not completely solve the critical space problem here, I hope it will serve to provide, at least for a time, needed student space."

Negotiations between the Central Council, the Chancellor and the ad hoc student committee formed after the sit-in May 2 resulted in the reassignment of the annex. Bommarito, in an interview with the Current, said, "The Chancellor noted that he would negotiate only with the Council. The committee meeting with the Chancellor May 5 was not a formal negotiating session since the official student government is composed of the student council. The Council merely relayed the demands of a group of people and a half a year, those being the acquiescence of the physics annex rather than the library for cafeteria space."

In the ad hoc committee meeting with the Chancellor, Mike Quinlan suggested that students be permitted to use the physics annex. He said this would be permissible to having student cafeteria space scattered all over various areas of the campus. The five students on the ad hoc student committee were Barbara Bayer, Cheryl Vanover, Paul Hamilton, Mike Quinlan and David Singer. Of these five, only Singer has been at UMSL longer than two semesters. For two of the five students, the spring 1969 semester is their first.

The five students on the ad hoc committee have been identified as students who advocate a better chance for communica- tion, she said. Eight people, "We will, believe, be able to provide lounge space in one end of the physics annex."self, Quinlan said, "he is hard-pressed to get known . . . There is no real debate of the issues." He said that he had "a better chance of getting known."

In regard to the Chancellor's proposal for 30 students on the faculty senate, Quinlan said "an integration of the Central Council with the senate . . . would enhance the chances for communication." He urged that students be given control of the student activities fund, and opposed its distribution by the Central Council, which he characterized as "dominated by organizations."

On the issue of censorship, he said that realization of student needs would only be achieved through "direct confrontation with the administration."

Sen. Packwood Emphasizes Personal Political Involvement

by Doris Speck

Robert W. Packwood, U.S. Senator from Oregon emphasized the importance of personal involvement of students at the "Opportunities Unlimited" program held at UMSL on May 10. The day's program was sponsored by the Republican State and National Committees.

In his 45 minute speech, "The Case for an Involvement," he said, "It takes senator pointed out that everyone should be represented and the people participate in the political scene."

"People make the difference in politics; people who spend their time and work their hearts out," he said.

In a statewide race an initial five to ten per cent of the voters, involved in a meaningful way can overthrow the status quo. Packwood said. He gained national prominence in the November 1964 election when he defeated the incumbent four-term Democrat, Wayne Morse.

Senator Packwood turned to his racial roots for the statement: "They weren't any different than the people in the country."

"We didn't have no special brains. It takes discipline and the intense camaraderie of 10 to 12 people," these workers had the task of making known the name of Packwood. They held coffees, inviting 200 people of which 50 might come. These were asked to display lawn signs, plywood signs painted white with a legend and "a border so colorful and conspicuous it can't be missed," he said. Eight people voted against the constitution.

With more than 1300 UMSL students voting, the Central Council constitution was finally ratified, 719 students voted for the constitution complete with the controversial article on representation, providing for both at-large and organizational representatives, 554 students voted against the constitution with the "minority report" alternative calling for strictly at-large representation. Only 56 students voted against the constitution.

Lower the Voting Age

One of the more frequent criticisms of the recent disturbances on college campuses is that the youth of America does not use the proper channels to air their views. We say "adults" but the issue is rather debatable. What constitutes an adult? Who can arbitrarily decide the age of maturity?

This immediate difficulty is evident in the bill which is now before the Missouri House which calls for the lowering of the voting age to 18.

A law has been passed that students have a voice in the democratic process there would be less protest of a violent or disruptive nature. Also, since many of the issues that students raise in protests are directly related to the state and federal legislation (such as the war in Vietnam, the draft, poor university conditions, etc.), it would be desirable for those affected by the legislation to be able to determine it.

The Current sincerely believes that passage of this bill would be a great step towards a more equitable system of representation.

We hope the Missouri House of Representatives realizes the importance of the bill in its ability to claim the most admirable segment of contemporary society, vociferous students.

Include the Students

When the Faculty Senate met Thursday afternoon, May 15, one of the topics for discussion was the inclusion of the Senate next year to include representatives of other areas of the university. While we cannot say whether or not it is feasible or desirable for clerical, security and maintenance workers to be represented by the Senate in any capacity for representation. The Current believes that at most, 20 students with full voting powers should be allowed on the Senate next year.

The representatives, students are year for, and gaining a greater voice in the running of university functions. On some campuses, this has come about through violent means. We don't want to see violence occur here at UMSL.

At the same time, we do desire that students here be in a position to know about, and perhaps affect policies concerning the administration of the university. The decisions, for example, which were made last year concerning the use of the Physics Annex, were made without student knowledge or opinions, and it is possible that the decisions, may not have been changed by student participation, but at least students would have known about them when they were being made.

Letters: Sit-in, the UMSL Corral, and Thank-You

Dear Editor,

Spring has come to Benton Hardy and the Hardys Boys had a sit-in.

Recurring rumor had it that the administration in its typically gross anti-student spirit committed an act of unbelievable injustice before the eyes of God the man. They dared to hold classes in a building which had been built with our very own student activities' money.

The Hardy Boys felt that this building should be used for activities more mutually beneficial to the students than class like drinking coffee, playing cards or maybe as another stage on which the representatives of the student body could perform during class breaks.

So with the true patriotic spirit that has made UMSL the example of all great student activism, comes the Hardy Boys, along with a throng of homogenous heroes, making their demands which is commonly known as the Physics Annex Building. There they immediately flung themselves into a terrific (sic) exhibition of bottom warfare known as the sit-in.

An early climax was reached on the deceivingly serene banks of Benton Lake where the throng of mutually militant mice met with Chancellor Bug.

The Chancellor was then confronted with the cold hard facts of the case which have already been stated.

In defense of the crime the Chancellor softly broke the news that there is currently a problem of crowded facilities.

The throng was not so easily satisfied. There were rumblings of firing some of the 70 per cent of the doctors we have on the staff. The reasoning being that Washington University and St. Louis University have a lower proportion and the tuition charged at UMSL is more than you might support.

The gathering ended rather peacefully (sic) when class break called them to the prearranged card game in the cafeteria.

The names of those involved have been withheld to protect them from any form of disciplinary action, such as an allowance cut or being deprived of the car on school nights.

Dear Editor,

May I use this column to say thank you to all the lovely people who responded to the needs of my family after our house was destroyed by fire? Such gestures of friendship will not be forgotten.

Melba Chism

Dear Editor,

The road ahead is getting worse. The fact that the bill that passed the Missouri Senate, introduced by Senator Raymond Howard, does not necessarily mean that it has come a long way. At the present time, it has been sent to the House of Representatives to be reviewed by the Constitutional Amendment Committee early next week. This committee of nine men include such personages as E. J. Cantrell, Robbin.

Letters: Should 18-Year Olds Vote?

At the hearing set up for next week, the delegation from UMSL which includes Steve Fairchild and myself anticipates harsh attack from the Representative from Overland, Mr. Cantrell. The honorable Mr. Cantrell's belief is that he would "no sooner give the right to 18 year olds to vote than imbeciles in an institution." Mr. Cantrell has said that he believes our generation has done nothing for our country except give it a lot of lip service. It is also his contention that 18 year olds lack responsibility and experience. When confronted with the question of our young men serving in the Armed Forces he retorted with a statement that it doesn't take brains to shoot a gun and serving your country does not give responsibility.

May I point out that the question of voting is not a lack of maturity. Maturity is part of knowledge. What is maturity but education; they cannot be divorced. There is no longer truth to knowledge of age for this is outmoded. The young adult of today is more progressive, more aware of the world and the problems which surround him. Age does not constitute the factors of knowledge; it is rather constituted by education. To get through high school one has to have at least a practical sense. This practical sense is not learned through scholastic courses but rather by the individual himself.

In looking at the problems of today, if we do not let the 18, 19, and 20 year olds vote, then through what channels do they air their arguments? If they tell us to work within the present system then why don't they give us a workable system in which to work?

there's a question of violence on this campus. We've got to work against the administration in many areas." He called the sit-in staged in the physics annex "a perfect demonstration," but said, "You don't really understand the politics." He also described the sit-in as having "an important, but no final role" in the decision.

Bommarito referred to the achievements of the Central Council under his leadership, and said, "The list goes beyond bulletin boards and signs." He credited the Council with bringing Julian Bond and the Ramsey Lewis Trio to UMSL, and obtaining more student study space. He noted his own efforts in getting $20,000 for the Activities Planning Committee.

"This $20,000 translates into name speakers and groups... This proves the Central Council is doing its job." He included among his duties "flashing areas of student agreement," and promised if elected to "go after the language requirement with a vengeance." He described the requirement as "archaic," and said that most students will agree that those were fourteen of the most wasted hours they ever spent."

Craig Zimmerman, head of the Debate Club, chose to state his case through humor. "God is on my side," he said, and announced his six-point plan: "a two-day schoolweek; minimum grade requirement; free food in the cafeteria; aid to dependent students; an anti-trust suit against the Current; and the disbanning of subversive activities."

Zimmerman engaged in verbal exchange with Mike Quinlan, and said, "I'm no more of a joke than you are, Quinlan—you and your Student Coalition."

Ed Roland, candidate for president of the Central Council.

According to Miss Sweiner, "The Central Council is smart enough to decide which organizations will need funds." As for membership, she didn't consider that much of an issue.

Ed Roland, a late entry, released the following statement: "If elected, I would support a modification of the recently passed constitution that would reduce the number of organizational representatives by grouping organizations according to their respective areas of interest. This would allow students elected at large to slightly outweigh organizational representatives in voting power, thus denying vocal minority groups legitimacy. However, students cannot be blamed for voicing their opinions, through a sit-in for example, when the student government fails to respond to their needs.

"Student representatives to the Faculty Senate should be elected by members of the student body. These students would have full voting power on the Senate but student representatives should not exceed 25% of the Senate's membership. A primary responsibility of these students would be to suggest and work toward responsible curriculum changes."
Evening College Plans Registration

Evening College registration for the 1969 summer semester at the University of Missouri-St. Louis will be held from 5 to 9 p.m., Monday and Tuesday, June 9 and 10. Classes begin Tuesday, June 17.

Undergraduate courses in approximately 30 areas and graduate courses in education will be available through the summer Evening College program.

Evening College students may pursue undergraduate degrees in the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Education and the School of Business Administration. A graduate degree, a master's in education (M. Ed.), is also available.

Some courses being offered for the first time include:

- Chemistry and biology, upper level courses in physics, and a course in Spanish-American literature.
- Astronomy, advanced courses in chemistry and biology, upper level courses in physics, and a course in Spanish-American literature.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club, hoping to receive campus recognition before the end of the semester, is electing its officers for next year. Students who are not majoring in Spanish or taking the language may join the new organization. For further information contact Martin Mahler, instructor of the language laboratory, or Dee Dickinson at 423-2331.

Painting Donated For Collection

St. Louis artist Mary Turner has donated her craypas painting "Creation" to UMSL for permanent display in the lobby of Benton Hall, Chancellor James L. Bugg, Jr., has announced. The painting is the first to be acquired for the establishment of a collection.

The painting was designed as part of a trip to the Washington University Medical School. Turner has donated her craypas painting "Creation" to UMSL for permanent display in the lobby of Benton Hall. She has also donated a second painting, "Receding Waters," to the Washington University Medical School.

Procedure For Blind Dates

Step I Have a trustworthy friend.
Step II Meet your blind date at ANOTHER PLACE between classes. Have coffee and roll in the morning. In the afternoon have soda & ice cream. If you want to impress her, come for lunch. (It's pretty dark inside, so if you aren't too sharp yourself, maybe your blind date won't notice.)
Step III Wash car, put on socks, use deodorant. Don't be too late, but Definitely don't be early. Kill time at ANOTHER PLACE
Step IV If it's a great date come back and order a "Showboat" for her. You'll want a "Mate's Tart". (Don't you?)
Step V If it's a Looser, we recommend a "Rivermen's Folly" while you join in singing a protest song on Saturdays.
Step VI No need to rush steps 1 thru V as we're open until 2 am every Friday & Saturday.

Ace Highlights Golf Play
by Pat Freeman

Although UMSL dropped a match to St. Louis 11/2-10 1/2 on May 6, Kent AufderHeide came through for St. Louis as he scored a hole-in-one. Kent, a sophomore, who has been playing anchor man on the quartet this season, recorded his hole-in-one on the 170 yard par 3 thirteenth hole at the Creve Coeur Golf Course. He defeated his opponent 3-0 as he fired a 76. Many colleges with strong golf teams go through many seasons without recording a hole-in-one. This is the first hole-in-one that has been scored at UMSL.

Tom O’Hare shot a 74 but was unable to pass StU’s Kamman (74) as they tied 1 1/2-1 1/2. O’Hare won the match as he fired a 76 and 3-0. StU’s Kammann (81) was defeated by Green (76).

May 5 the varsity squad travelled to Jacksonville, Illinois, where they met Illinois College. This victory pushed their mark to 10-0-1 as they won 13-3. Tom O’Hare won medalist honors as he shot a 74, defeating his opponent, Neft, 3-0. Ron Romacker (81) shot out Jones (86) 3-0, while Kent AufderHeide blanked Harris (90) 3-0. Craadick shooting an 80, topped his man, Riley (85) 1 1/2-1/2. Sollday and Marcks (84) were the only Rivermen to be defeated as they lost to Teas (77) and Kildes (79) respectively.

UMSL will be represented in the NAIA playoffs which will be played May 20 to determine the district winner. UMSL will have to play another independent team in which the winner will be plotted against the MCAA representative to determine the district representative for the NAIA Championships June 10-13 at Fort Worth, Texas.

Hendin’s Headlines
by Marty Hendin, Sports Editor

Anyone who thinks that the Cardinals are complacent and don’t care about winning should observe them in their clubhouse as this reporter had the opportunity to do last week.

After last Wednesday’s game, which the Cards lost 5-3 to San Francisco, the main topic of conversation in the clubhouse was a play at the plate in which Julian Javier was thrown out when he clearly touched the plate. Most of the players had a comment about the play, with injured Vada Pinson the most volatile Red Bird. Pinson was thrown out of the game while yelling at plate umpire Augie Donatelli from the bench. After the game Pinson was still fuming. “He threw me out because the truth hurts,” was one of his more interesting comments. Vada later calmed down enough to comment, “I’m not going to get moving.”

The time to get moving was Friday night when the Cardinals spotted San Diego three runs in the first inning, took a 7-4 lead and then held on to win 7-6. The name of the game was cashing in on breaks.

In their five-run sixth inning the Cardinals collected three infield hits among five safeties, and benefitted from a walk, an error and a passed ball. After the game, the “El Birdito” spirit invaded the clubhouse and everyone was yelling and carrying on as if they had just won the pennant.

In the midst of the celebration, shortstop Dal Maxvill took time to answer a few serious questions posed by the Current about the spirit on the Cardinals. “This is about the first time we’ve come from behind all year,” Maxvill said, “we don’t play many easy games. We never did even the past two years.” Asked whether the trade of Orlando Cepeda hurt Cardinal spirit, Maxvill said he didn’t think so. “Joe Torre is the same type of player as Cepeda. He’s just a guy who does his job.”

The Cardinals haven’t lost their sense of humor, even though they lost the games Saturday and Sunday. The Cardinals are down in the standings now, but when the season is over, I’m sure we’ll find them where they have been the past two years - first in the standings and first in spirit.

“Wanna’ bet it’s fresh?”

“Sure McDonald’s is my kind of place. Look. I deliver meat to many of the best restaurants in town but when it’s time to eat, I make sure I’m at McDonald’s. They use top quality hamburger and I know it’s fresh, I deliver every day! It’s my kind ‘a place.”

Line-up Switch Breaks Slam for Basbeallers

Coach Arnold Copeland's lineup shuffle paid dividends last Saturday as Bill Haberberger, starting only his second game in center field for the Rivermen, drove in four runs in UMSL's 8-4 victory over Culver-Stockton College. Culver rebounded in the second game of the twin bill to down the Rivermen at home this season. The drive in the eighth inning also brought John Cova home. Cova had tripled in Gary Leindecker for the first run of the game for UMSL. In the ninth, Skinner drove in Bob Millard and Bill Haberberger hitting a sharp single to left. However, Randy Veet popped to shortstop and Tom Bader struck out to end the game. The Rivermen made their third appearance in the McKendree game may have given coach Arnold Copeland the third pitcher he so desperately needs. In addition to the offensive threat it does, it will be too close to exams if it does, the team refuses to roll over and play dead. UMSL fans can look forward to some very exciting baseball.

Tennis Team Ends Winless

Brindley has also been named captain of next year's tennis team. The team will lose this year's captain, Tim Krull, and going into the game with a 6-2 record. The Rivermen scored five runs in the last two frames on seven hits. However, they also left four other men on base. Gary Skinner provided most of the punch, blasting the first home run for the Rivermen at home this season. The drive in the eighth inning also brought John Cova home. Cova had tripled in Gary Leindecker for the first run of the game for UMSL. In the ninth, Skinner drove in Bob Millard and Bill Haberberger hitting a sharp single to left.
