

University of Missouri, St. Louis

IRL @ UMSL

---

UMSL Global

---

1-1-1990

Fall Newsletter 1990

University of Missouri-St. Louis

Follow this and additional works at: <https://irl.umsl.edu/cis>

Part of the International and Area Studies Commons

---

Recommended Citation

University of Missouri-St. Louis, "Fall Newsletter 1990" (1990). UMSL Global. 311.

Available at: <https://irl.umsl.edu/cis/311>

This Newsletter is brought to you for free and open access by IRL @ UMSL. It has been accepted for inclusion in UMSL Global by an authorized administrator of IRL @ UMSL. For more information, please contact marvinh@umsl.edu.

SOCIAL STUDIES EDUCATORS TO EXAMINE IMPACT OF CURRENT EVENTS ON NATIONAL SECURITY AND PEACEMAKING

MAKING CHOICES ABOUT ISSUES OF NATIONAL SECURITY AND PEACEMAKING: CITIZENSHIP SKILLS FOR A GLOBAL AGE is the title of the Seventeenth Annual Conference on International Relations for Social Studies Educators. The program will be held on Friday, October 26, 8:00 am - 3:30 pm in the J. C. Penney Building on the UM-St. Louis campus. The conference registration fee of $30 includes all instructional costs, lunch and materials.

Featured speakers Frederic S. Pearson, professor of political science at UM-St. Louis, and Lloyd Jeff Dumas, professor of political economy at the University of Texas, Dallas, will examine emerging political and economic threats to national security and their implications for US foreign and domestic policies. Pearson is an expert on arms control and teaches courses on global issues, war and peace, and the Middle East. He will open the conference with an address on "What Do Students Need to Know about National and International Security: Security Challenges for the 90s."

Dumas is a leading authority on the economics of military spending. Dumas will describe the costs, benefits and societal impact of the militarization of their economies experienced by the US and the Soviet Union and project the potential impact of decreased military spending and economic conversion, i.e., the conversion of jobs in the military industrial complex to non-military jobs. He will also examine the response and global implications of the ongoing militarization of the economies of Third World nations.

The conference will feature panel discussions on the topics The Challenges of the Global Marketplace and Emerging Threats to National Security and How to Meet Them. Panelists will include scholars, representatives of multinational corporations, organized labor, the military and policy makers. Following the panels, separate workshops for elementary and secondary teachers will demonstrate classroom-tested teaching techniques and materials. Conference follow-up assistance will be available for participants who wish to try workshop materials and techniques in their classrooms.

The Annual International Relations Conference is sponsored by the UM-St. Louis Center for International Studies,

School of Education, and Continuing Education-Extension. This year, the program is supported in part by a grant from the US Institute of Peace.

For conference registration information, contact continuing education coordinator Joe Williams at (314) 553-5961. For program information call conference co-directors Kathy Cochran at (314) 553-5801 or Carol Lieber at (314) 553-5412.

CHINA: BACKWARD OR FORWARD?

Top Sinologists from throughout the US will discuss the topic Contemporary China: Backward or Forward? at a symposium to be held on Friday, September 28, 10 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. on the UM-St. Louis campus. Speakers will assess the events of June, 1989 at Tiananmen Square in their social, political, cultural and historic context. Though there is no charge for the symposium, advance registration is required. Participants may have lunch on their own or, for a fee of $10, attend the symposium lunch. For program information, call symposium director Joel Glassman at (314) 553-5837. For registration information, call continuing education coordinator Joe Williams at (314) 553-5971.

In little more than a decade, China has changed its international image from an advocate of Maoist revolutionary ideology to a supporter of pragmatic policies to achieve modernization and integrate the nation with the world community. The events of June, 1989 have again substantially altered China's image and raised serious questions about the future.

Tu Wei-ming, director of the Institute of Culture and Communication at the East-West Center in Honolulu and professor of history and philosophy at Harvard

Tu Wei-ming, director of the Institute of Culture and Communication at the East-West Center in Honolulu, will speak at a China conference at UM-St. Louis.

Continued on page 2

University, will open the symposium with a discussion of the role of intellectuals in this rapidly changing society. Will they be the architects of a democratic society or the victims of a repressive dictatorship? Former chairperson of the department of East Asian Languages and Civilizations at Harvard University, Tu is an internationally prominent authority on Chinese intellectual history.

Thomas Bernstein, professor of political science at Columbia University and visiting scholar at the Stanford University Center for International Security and Arms Control, will speak on The Evolu- tion of Political Authority: From Authoritarianism to ? Bernstein will discuss whether Marxism can succeed in recapturing China's imagination. He will also explore the question of whether there are ideological and cultural roots upon which democratic values and institutions could be constructed.

Deborah Davis, professor of sociology and William W. Brown lecturer in comparative cultures, Law School, Yale University, will address the Chinese ambivalence toward change, discussing those forces in Chinese society that push for change and those that work to reinforce stability and the authoritarian tradition. Davis, who is an expert on the Chinese family, will assess the impact that reform and reaction will have on the individual and the family.

Steven I. Levine, visiting professor of political science at Duke University, will examine China's place in the world. He will discuss the likely impact on China of changes in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe and assess whether China's opening to the West will survive the current political struggles.

The symposium is sponsored by the UM-St. Louis Center for International Studies, the Missouri China Council and the China Council of the Asia Society. Funding for participants' registration fees has been provided by a grant to the China Council from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

CAMPUS AND COMMUNITY TO CELEBRATE HISPANIC-LATINO HERITAGE MONTH

The Third Annual Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month celebration on the UM-St. Louis campus will feature a free children's program, The Spanish World, to be held Saturday, October 6, noon - 3 p.m., in the Summit Lounge of the University Center.

The afternoon's activities will include cartoons, song and dance performances by children, pinatas and an exhibition of entries in a children's art contest. The contest is open to children ages 1-12 who submit drawings or paintings depicting "What the Spanish world means to me."

The events of Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month 1990 are sponsored by the Hispanic-Latino Association, (HISLA), BECA and the Office of Equal Opportunity at UM-St. Louis. All programs are free and open to the public. For information on the programs or HISLA contact the coordinator of the series of events, Irma Banales at 947-7216 or 553-5692.

BECA (which means scholarship in Spanish) was recently established by HISLA members to raise funds for scholarships for Hispanic students at UM-St. Louis. The scholarships will be designed to "encourage Hispanic students to complete their college education, pursue academic careers and assume leadership positions in the community." According to HISLA president, Maria Fernanda Cohen, the organization hopes to raise $25,000 to endow a fund to support two full-time students. The events of Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month will provide participants from the campus and community an opportunity to learn more about and contribute to BECA.

Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month is observed nationally September 1-October 15. The annual UM-St. Louis celebration, overseen by Norman Seay, director of the Office of Equal Opportunity, was attended by over 700 people last year and is the community's largest and most culturally diverse. This year's observance, titled "Sharing our Cultural Heritage: Together We Will Make a Difference," features performers, artists, scholars, and diplomats from the local community representing all Hispanic-Latino cultures.

Highlights of the celebration include a September 26 panel discussion in which Hispanic-Latina women will discuss their personal evolution as feminists living in the US. On September 19, the St. Louis consuls from Peru and Columbia will speak on "The Hispanic-Latina Woman and Consul." A series of four feature films in Spanish will be showed on Friday evenings, September 21-October 12. Saturday, October 13, will begin with exhibits and live music and culminate in a grand finale program featuring the St. Louis Cultural Flamenco Dance Company. See the Calendar section for times and locations.

"What the Hispanic World means to me" is theme of children's art contest.

JAPAN BASHING GIVES FOCUS TO TEACHER TRAINING PROJECT

Recent polls show that most Americans believe that economic competition from Japan is a greater threat to the country's national security than Soviet aggression. Growing US-Japan economic conflict is the subject of a three-year project launched by Sarapage McCorkle, associate dean of Continuing Education and director of the Center for Economic Education, and Kathy Cochrane, assistant director for community education in the Center for International Studies at UM-St. Louis in cooperation with Warren Solomon, director of curriculum dissemination for the Missouri State Department of Elementary and Secondary Education.

Their project to improve teaching about Japan and US-Japan relations in secondary schools throughout Missouri focuses on economics and geography. McCorkle, Cochrane and Solomon believe that the most urgent priority is to address students' concerns about the economic competition that has given rise to what Fortune magazine recently termed a growing "fear and loathing of Japan." The team plans to develop and disseminate teaching materials that use Japan as a case study for understanding the changing global economy and America's role in it. A teacher's conference and a day of on-campus simulation games for students are among the activities planned. The group also hopes to work with the two teaching organizations, UM-St. Louis GEOPAC and Missouri Geographic Alliance, to develop and disseminate lessons on Japan's geography.

McCorkle, Cochrane, and Solomon were recently named Fellows of the Mid America Japan in the Schools Program (MAJIS). In May and June, they spent two weeks in Japan on a study tour that included visits to Tokyo, Kyoto, Hiroshima, Matsue and Suwa—St. Louis' sister city.

The Japan study tour featured briefings at the Japanese Foreign Ministry and the US Embassy, meetings with American business people and trade representatives, a tour of one of the world's largest auto manufacturing plants, and briefings on the in-house educational programs of the Seiko Epson Co. in Suwa. Throughout the trip, the MAJIS group explored Japanese perceptions of the US and US-Japan trade problems. Over 200 students from a Tokyo high school responded to a specially developed opinion survey and met with MAJIS fellows to discuss the results.

MAJIS is one of twelve teacher training programs throughout the US funded by the United States-Japan Foundation. Directed by Pat Weiss, associate director of the Center for Economic Education at the University of Kansas, the MAJIS program has established three-person teams of educators in five midwestern states.

McCorkle, whose field is international economics, has over the last nine years at UM-St. Louis taught courses and developed award-winning curricula to improve the precollegiate teaching of economics. She currently serves as president of the National Association of Economic Educa-

Cochrane, who has earned degrees in international relations and Asian studies, has directed teacher education programs in international affairs at UM-St. Louis for sixteen years. Through the Center for International Studies she directs Missouri's only university-based, comprehensive community education program in international affairs. For more information about the project, contact Cochrane at 553-5801 or McCorkle at 553-5249.

Solomon, McCorkle and Cochrane toasting to the opening of the summer season on Kirigamine Plateau in Suwa.

McCorkle, Cochrane and Solomon and a city official enjoy the view of Lake Suwa.

---

PROFESSOR STUDIES REFORM OF THE UNITED NATIONS

"Perhaps the most glaring paradox in the current era is that the need for coordinated problem-solving on a global scale—in matters of security, economics, and ecology—is arguably greater than ever before, at the same time that global institutional capabilities are diminishing and 'central guidance' mechanisms seem less feasible than in previous historical periods," says professor J. Martin Rochester, discussing his research on reforming the United Nations. Rochester's research has been supported by grants from the United States Institute of Peace and the Lentz Peace Research Laboratory. He is completing a book titled Waiting for the Millennium: The United Nations and the Future of World Order. He contends that "much of the international infrastructure created in the aftermath of World War II is now in disarray" and hopes that his study "will help revive an earlier tradition of practical concern about international organizations and will chart new directions for thinking about these institutions inside and outside the academic community."

Rochester's research suggests that in judging the United Nations, most critics have focused on its performance in the war/peace area, i.e., as a conflict manager and have paid relatively little attention to the United Nations as a manager of cooperation. He argues that a focus on this latter role and further development of this mission would render the U.N. the forum of first resort in many instances and enable it to "play a more pivotal role in increasing the capacity of the international system to cope with changing demands and in helping to define the outer limits of collaboration for the international community."

Rochester received his Ph.D. from Syracuse University and has taught at UM-St. Louis since 1972. He currently teaches courses on international law and organizations, international politics, and American politics. Rochester is the co-author of the college textbook International Relations: The Global Condition in the Late Twentieth Century (Random House). His recent articles include: "The Rise and Fall of International Organization As A Field Of Study," International Organization (1986), and "Global Policy and the Future of the United Nations," Journal of Peace Research (1990). He is a Member of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis Chapter of the United Nations Association.

---

TEACHERS RETHINK NATIONAL SECURITY AT SUMMER INSTITUTE

Admiral Eugene Carroll, (Ret.), Deputy Director, Center for Defense Information.

The UM-St. Louis Center for International Studies sponsored a June institute on Emerging Issues in National Security and Peacemaking for educators from 17 St. Louis area school districts. The institute is the core of a year long project examining the "what, why, and how" of teaching about national security at the secondary level. Teachers' curriculum projects will be included in a directory and resource guide to be published next year.

Participants spent a week studying military, political, economic, and psychosocial perspectives of security in light of current dramatic changes affecting every region of the world. Throughout the institute educators explored approaches to teaching about this controversial topic in ways that are both balanced and accessible to students. As one participant put it, "We had presenters who were right of Atilla the Hun, left of unreconstructed 60s radicals, and others who staked out the middle and points between."

Frederic S. Pearson, professor of political science at UM-St. Louis, served as the course instructor, providing background information and a conceptual framework for briefings and panel discussions on arms control, defense policy, and the prospects for economic conversion and diversification as US political and military priorities change in the next decade.

Both Paul Warnke, former Chief US Arms Control Negotiator, and Admiral Eugene Carroll (Ret.), Deputy Director of the Center for Defense Information, echoed the need to address the long-term view of national security, citing an antique strategic policy that has neither caught up with changing economic conditions at home nor the diminished Soviet threat abroad.

The US National Security Briefing team from Maxwell Air Force Base presented a more traditional view of how the Pentagon and the armed services carry out the political mandate "to provide for the common defense." They identified global hot spots as potential emerging threats to national security.

Throughout the institute both participants and presenters agreed that the guns and butter issue afforded many opportunities for students to engage in civic decision making regarding budget appropriations and public policy in relationship to national security needs.

Mike Petrilli, International Development Director of Monsanto Company, and Larry DeBuhr, Education Director of the Missouri Botanical Garden stressed the interdependent relationship between the forces of the global marketplace and vital resources crucial to each nation's security. They challenged Institute participants to look beyond national interests to global conditions that will increasingly influence public policy choices in the US.

The Institute was supported by a grant from the United States Institute of Peace. Funding from the Joyce Mertz-Gilmore Foundation provided funds for planning the project.

For more information about the project, contact coordinator Carol Miller Lieber at (314) 553-5412.

Captain Mike Murphy, US National Security Briefing Team.

Participants engage in an international trade negotiation trying to arrive at an agreement in principle.

Paul Warnke, former Chief US Arms Control Negotiator during the Carter administration, keynoted the Institute, reassessing national security and strategic policy for the 90s.

The local impact of changes in defense policy and spending was discussed by (l. to r.) Mary Ann McGivern, St. Louis Economic Conversion Project, Mike Heinz, Vice President for Strategic Business Development at McDonnell-Douglas Corporation, Professor Fred Pearson, UM-St. Louis, and Ron Pettus, Section Chief, McDonnell Aircraft Corporation.

UM-ST. LOUIS OFFERS CHINA GARDENS TOUR

Continuing Education-Extension in the College of Arts and Sciences at UM-St. Louis will offer a two-week study tour of the gardens of China in May, 1991. Asian art history lecturer Juliana Yuan Burch, who was born in China, will lead the trip providing pre-departure lectures and guided tours of the gardens.

Burch who is now planning the tour, recently returned from a trip to China that included visits to gardens in Beijing, Yangzhou, Wuxi, Suzhou, Shanghai, and Nanjing, St. Louis' sister city. She studied and photographed imperial, scholar, residential, temple and public gardens.

Tour participants will have the option of earning academic credit from UM-St. Louis.

For more information about the tour see the Spring issue of this newsletter or contact Burch at (314) 553-5975.

CALENDAR

SEPTEMBER

through February 10, 1991

The St. Louis Art Museum displays the special exhibition Textiles of the Cuna Indians of Panama. For information call 721-0067.

7

An Adult Model United Nations program held at the Clayton Community Center, 6-10 p.m., raises funds for the High School Model U.N. $25 per person. Call the U.N.A. at 721-1961 for details.

9 - October 7

The exhibition Beauty Rising in the East: The Artistic Vision of Albert Carpentier is displayed at the Cupples House Gallery, 3673 West Pine. This show of the unique "paper prints" of Carpentier, a Dominican priest who has lived in Japan for over 30 years, is sponsored by the Aquinas Institute of Theology and the Japan American Society of St. Louis.

13

William Franklin, chairperson of the US Chamber of Commerce in Japan, speaks at a breakfast held 7:30 - 9 a.m. at the Top of the Sevens, 7777 Bonhomme. For ticket information call the Japan America Society at 726-6822.

15

A Guatemalan Cultural Event sponsored by the St. Louis Inter Faith Committee on Latin America and Casa Arco Iris begins at 5:30 p.m. at St. Margaret of Scotland, 3854 Flad Ave. Cost is $8 for adults and $3 for children in advance and $10 and $5 at the door. For information contact IFCOLA at 721-2977.

19

Consuls from Peru and Colombia speak on The Hispanic-Latina Woman and Consul, 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. in the University Center Student Lounge at UM-St. Louis.

A free event sponsored by the Hispanic-Latino Association and BECA as part of Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month. For information call coordinator Irma Banales at 947-7216 or 553-5692.

26

In the panel discussion Hispanic-Latina Women students, faculty and members of the community explore their personal experiences as Hispanic-Latina feminists living in the US. Part of Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month, this free event will be held noon - 1 p.m. in 211 Clark Hall at UM-St. Louis. For information call Irma Banales 947-7216- or 553-5692.

28

The symposium Contemporary China: Backward or Forward features leading China experts from throughout the US who examine the Spring, 1989, events at Tianamen Square from political, cultural and historical perspectives. Sponsored by the UM-St. Louis Center for International Studies and held in the J. C. Penney Bldg., 10 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. Free to the public with optional lunch provided for $10. Advance registration required. To register call Joe Williams at 553-5961.

28

The UM-St. Louis Hispanic-Latino Association and BECA sponsor the talk The Historical Perspective of Men and the Presence of the Mexican Woman by French lecturer Fernando Ojeda at 1 p.m. in the University Center Student Lounge. Live music by Fernando Miranda. Free of charge. For information call Irma Banales 947-7216 or 553-5692.

OCTOBER

1 - February 15, 1991

The Fourth Annual National Peace Essay Contest opens October 1. High school students may submit entries until February 15, 1991. Winners receive expense-paid trips to Washington, D.C.

and college scholarships. For a contest kit write to National Peace Essay Contest, Dept. JL, P.O. Box 27720, Central Station, Washington, D.C. 20028-7720.

3

Washington University Spanish language professors Inez Lagos and Randolph Pope speak on Hispanic-American writers in a free program, 2:30 - 7 p.m. at the UM-St. Louis Alumni House, 7956 Natural Bridge Rd. Live music by Eleanor Tiroch. For information contact Irma Banales at 947-7216 or 553-5692.

3

The International Education Consortium (IEC) begins a series of three Reading History Seminars for secondary teachers. Seminars meet 4-6 p.m. at Fontbonne College October 3, November 7 and December 5. Cost is $10 per session. For an informational flyer call Lois Severin at 721-3255.

4-5

The IEC sponsors a conference for elementary and secondary teachers at Florissant Valley Community Center on The State of the Social Studies. Fee is $125. Contact Dennis Lubeck at 721-3255.

6

The free children's program The Spanish World includes cartoon videos, song and dance performances by children and an exhibition of local children's art from noon - 3 p.m. in the Summit Lounge on the UM-St. Louis campus. Children ages 1-12 may enter the art contest. Contact Irma Banales at 947-7216 or 553-5692 for information about this and other events of Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month.

10

The IEC invites secondary teachers to a series of three Literature Seminars that will meet 4-6 p.m. at Fontbonne College on October 10, November 14 and December 12. Cost is $10 per seminar. For an informational flyer call Lois Severin at 721-3255.

13

The UM-St. Louis Hispanic-Latino Association and BECA sponsor an afternoon of live music and exhibits representing Mexico, Spain and other Latin countries 4-6 p.m. in the J. C. Penney Bldg. For information about this free event call Irma Banales at 947-7216 or 553-5692.

13

The grand finale program of Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month on the UM-St. Louis campus features performances by the St. Louis Cultural Flamenco Dance Company, a poetry recital accompanied by live music, and dancing and singing by groups representing ten different Hispanic-Latino cultures. Free, public program held 6-8:30 p.m. in the J. C. Penney Bldg. For information call coordinator Irma Banales at 947-7216 or 553-5692.

15

The Shanghai String Quartet performs at 8 p.m. at the Ethical Society as part of the UM-St. Louis Premiere Performances season. Tickets are $12 general admission and $8 for those eligible for discounts. For information call the Cultural Affairs Office at 553-5818.

16

Food for the Future: Science, Policy and Ethics is the theme of World Food Day, an event created by UN member states in 1945 to create public support for private and governmental efforts to combat hunger. For information about the teleconference or other WFD resources contact Patricia Young at (202) 653-2404.

17

The Asian Art Society sponsors China's Fifth Generation of Film Makers, a free video/lecture presentation by Robert Hegel, chairperson of the Washington University Department of Near Eastern and Asian Languages and Literatures. Held in Busch Hall at Washington University at 7:30 p.m. For information call Peggy Adeboi at 454-1744.

24

The St. Louis Chapter of the United Nations Association celebrates UN Day at a dinner program 6:30-10:30 p.m. at 555 Washington. Cost is $35 per person. Call Mary Hamm at 721-1961 for further information.

26

Making Choices about Issues of National Security and Peacemaking: Citizenship Skills for a Global Age is the title of the Annual Conference on International Relations for Social Studies Educators held in the J. C. Penney Building at UM-St. Louis, 8 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Center for International Studies and Continuing Education-Extension, the conference features panel discussions, lectures and workshops for elementary and secondary teachers. Registration fee of $30 includes lunch and conference materials. For registration information call Joe Williams at 553-5961.

26-27

Can There Be a Sustainable Future? is the topic of the 1990 Mary T. Hall Seminar sponsored by the St. Louis Chapter, United Nations Association and held at the Missouri Botanical Garden. UN diplomats, environmental scholars and officers of multinational corporations will discuss how to decrease world poverty while protecting the global environment. For information call the U.N.A. at 721-1961.

26-27

The Abbey: The National Theatre of Ireland performs "Playboy of the Western World" at Washington University's Edison Theatre. For ticket information call 889-6543.

29

Lawrence Korb, Director of the Center for Public Policy Education at the Brookings Institution, speaks at a World Affairs Council program on cuts in the military and defense spending. Call the Council at 361-7333.

31

Halloween is National UNICEF Day and a chance for children to Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF. For coin boxes, arm bands, posters and balloons call Lois Severin at 721-3255.

NOVEMBER*9

The UM-St. Louis Center for Economic Education and the Federal Reserve Bank conduct a conference for educators, grades 7-12, on The Global Economy, 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis. To register for the free program contact the Bank at 444-8320.

9-10

Webster University hosts an international conference, Peoples in Movement: Refugees, Human Rights and the State. Speakers will include Gene McNary (Commissioner of the US Immigration and Naturalization Service) and A.E. Dewey (former UN Deputy High Commissioner for Refugees). The conference is free and open to the public. Social studies teachers who pay tuition fees may earn graduate credit. A pre-conference seminar November 6-9 for scholars, field workers and students will focus on Central America. For information call the History/Political Science Department at 968-7060.

11

The Ethical Society of St. Louis and St. Louis World Federalists sponsor the free lecture Ethics and the Search for Security at 11 a.m. at the Ethical Society by Ralph M. Bowman, Lt. Col., USAF, ret., and President of the Institute for Space and Security Studies. For information call Ronald Glossop at 869-2303.

11-17

The theme of National Geography Awareness Week is "Geography: Window on a Changing World." Teachers may request a free packet of teaching materials from the National Geographic Society by writing the Missouri Geographic Alliance, 8 Stewart Hall, University of Missouri-Columbia, Columbia, MO 65211.

12

The Ysaye String Quartet from Paris appears in its premiere US tour as part of the UM-St. Louis Premiere Performances series. Performance at 8 p.m. at the Ethical Society. Prices are $12 general admission and $8 for discounted tickets. Call the Cultural Affairs Office at 553-5818.

12

The Greater St. Louis Coalition for a Comprehensive Test Ban sponsors a free talk by Ralph Bowman, President of the Institute for Space and Security Studies on Why and How to End Nuclear Testing at 8 p.m. in the Fontbonne College theater. For information, call the World Community Center, 862-5735.

24

The Asian Art Society, Consulate General of Indonesia and St. Louis Art Museum present a free performance of authentic Indonesian dance at 4 p.m. in the Museum auditorium. For more information call Peggy Adeboi at 454-1744.

26

The St. Louis Council on World Affairs sponsors a talk by General Mike Dugan, Chief of Staff of the US Air Force, on The Future Role of the Air Force as a Military Branch. For information call the Council office at 361-7333.

DECEMBER*2

At 3:30 p.m. the St. Louis Inter Faith Committee on Latin America holds a tenth anniversary worship service for church women killed in El Salvador. Location to be announced. Call IFCOLA at 721-2977.

7

UM-St. Louis hosts the High School Model United Nations, 8 a.m.-2 p.m. For information call the sponsoring organization, St. Louis Chapter of the United Nations Association, at 721-1961.

Non-profit Org.
U.S. Postage PAID
St. Louis, MO
Permit No. 3

University of Missouri-St. Louis
Center for International Studies
8001 Natural Bridge Road
St. Louis, Missouri 63121-4499

University of Missouri
St. Louis

Center for International Studies

Established in 1968, the Center for International Studies at the University of Missouri-St. Louis supports teaching, research and community service in international studies. For more information, contact the Center, 366 Social Science and Business Building, University of Missouri-St. Louis, 8001 Natural Bridge Road, St. Louis, Missouri 63121-4499, telephone: (314) 553-5753.

The outreach program of the Center for International Studies maintains a library of books, audiovisual materials, exhibits, cultural artifacts kits, and other classroom teaching aids which are available on loan to schools and other institutions. For more information, contact Kathy Cochrane, Assistant Director for Community Education, (314) 553-5801.

STAFF

Dr. Edwin H. Fedder, Director
Dr. Joel N. Glassman, Associate Director
Robert A. Baumann, Assistant Director
for Administration, Research Study Abroad
Katherine Cochrane, Assistant Director
for Community Education and
Newsletter Editor
Mary E. Hines, Administrative Associate
Anita Cleaver, Secretary