U.N. Hearings -- Morning

Change In U.N. Role Vital To Survival

The United Nations must change with the needs of the world in order to survive, several witnesses told a presidential commission Tuesday morning.

The hearings, chaired by Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), were held in observance of the 25th anniversary of the U.N. at the Loretto-Hilton Theatre at Webster College.

Congressman James W. Symington (Dem., Second District), in whose district the theatre is located, recommended that the United States adopt an active role in supporting the U.N.

The first 25 years of the U.N.'s existence has been "an era of undeclared war and declared peace," Symington asserted, speaking near the conclusion of the morning session.

This country must stop playing the role of a world policeman, he declared. "We have neither the resources or wisdom to use them."

Instead, he reaffirmed earlier statements that a vigorous U.N. would be able to deal with international problems, such as pollution, space explorations, airline hijackings, and terrorism.

"There's so much more that unites us than divides us," Symington told the commission.

At the end of Symington's testimony, a woman interrupted the proceedings and asked if he and Fulbright considered their support of a strong U.N. in violation of their oath of office to support the constitution.

As the audience stirred, she demanded to know why the U.N. flag was raised higher than the American flag.

The woman then sat down.

Others urged that the U.N. become involved in attacking a variety of international problems.

Professor Nicholas J. Demerath, a Washington University sociologist, suggested that the body work to increase the economic growth rates and general levels of development of "third world countries."

He urged that the U.S. channel more foreign aid and technical assistance to these nations through the U.N. American universities should develop curricula to prepare personnel for service in U.N. programs, he added.

Demerath added that a thorough overhaul of U.N. administrative machinery must be made to insure an efficient operation.

Patrick Gunkel, a consultant the Hudson Institute and the Institute of the future, urged that the U.N. study the future effects of science and technology on mankind.

Dr. Robert Morgan, associate professor of engineering at Washington University, recommended that the U.N. take steps to close the gap between the have and have-not countries, especially in alleviating human poverty and hunger.

He recommended the creation of a technology-oriented U.N. Peace Corps, a U.N. university with international branches, and research center in underdeveloped nations.

Dr. Paul R. Schratz, head of the center of international studies here, urged the formulation of procedures that would allow the U.N. to function even if the large powers balk at action.

The U.N. should provide a forum for international debate, he said, especially for those nations that are not members.

This would be especially useful in the Indochina and Mideast crises, he remarked.

The Rev. Earl Mulley of the local chapter of the United Nations Association, called for the president to exercise his moral leadership in revising American opinion on the U.N. He suggested the need for a Cabinet-level presidential advisor to the organization.

Dennis Walker, a professor at Maryville College, called for this country to change its position by agreeing to the admission of communist China to the U.N.

A petition criticizing the U.N. for a lack of expressed belief in one God was presented to the commission by the Rev. Charles N. Ulveling, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Grafton, Illinois.

Rev. Ulveling said that he represented 85 Baptist churches in Missouri and Illinois, all members of the Illinois-Missouri Association of Regular Baptist Churches.

U.N. Hearings--Afternoon

Methods of Upgrading U.N. Heard

By MATT MATTINGLY
Current Staff Writer

The need to increase the effectiveness of the United Nations keynoted the afternoon session of presidential hearings on the United Nations Tuesday.

Hemilton Thornton, editorial editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, proposed a system of weighted voting in which large nations such as the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. would be allotted more votes than tiny nations in proportion to their population.

This system would end "the pre-dominance of mini-states" in the U.N., he said.

He also called for the retirement or dismissal of Secretary-General U Thant, whom he regarded as biased, and the establishment of a military police force to back up the U.N.'s decisions.

These changes, he stated, were needed to enable the U.N. to be effective.

"Its irrelevance has become a gallop towards futility," he commented.

St. Louis Alderwoman Doris Bass, calling for the admission of Red China to the U.N., declared that international education and exchange of ideas were needed to combat the U.N. "oligarchy," where the "dominance of certain members is reinforced by their permanent seats on the Security Council."

Many middle class Americans have lost faith in the U.N., she said, partly because of the widespread notion that "the U.S. is footing the bill" for the U.N., whose "charter is unrealistically conceived."

David A. Meeker, executive assistant to St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cervantes, proposed a "world center of urban technology" to deal with the problems common to all urban areas.

The U.N. would be the logical choice, he said, to coordinate programs dealing with increasing urbanization of society, overpopulation, mass transit, housing and employment.

Dr. Frank Klingberg, professor of government at Southern Illinois University, said the time was ripe to invest the U.N. with increased importance.

Attributing this observation to the "increasing opposition to unilateral action and internal division" engendered by the Indochina conflict, he suggested that the U.S. take the lead in a "moral renewal" in which the U.N. would play an important role.

Klingberg proposed that the United States could demonstrate the U.N.'s increased importance by appointing a Cabinet-level ambassador.

Milford Bohm, of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Jewish Committee, called on the U.S. to oppose the adoption of "one-sided resolutions" by the U.N. directed at the Arab-Israeli crisis.

He also proposed the creation of "a high commissioner for human rights," to treat such matters as what he claimed were Soviet anti-Semitic policies.

"Unrelenting pressure" should be brought to bear on nations that tolerate or encourage hijackers, he said.

Reverend Russell D. Carnagey presented a resolution calling for the disbandment of the U.N.

Carnagey is president of the American Council of Christian Churches of the Greater St. Louis Area, which branded the actions of the U.N. as anti-American.

Alan Braunschweiger, secretary general of the Midwest Model U.N., suggested that the U.N. bypass the rivalry of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. by acquiring virtual autonomy for itself.

A lengthy exchange between himself and hearing chairman Senator J. William Fulbright failed to clarify his meaning of "cooperation."

Roy Unnerstall stated that the cause of nuclear disarmament could be facilitated by unilateral declarations, such as a Soviet disavowal of offensive nuclear warfare.

Unnerstall, secretary general of the St. Louis Area Model U.N. Foundation, stressed the need for international cooperation, theorizing that the great powers could gradually acquire trust in one another, since a nuclear war would benefit neither side.

Dennis Bracey, a member of the St. Louis University chapter of CIRUNA, offered the results of a poll taken among 350 St. Louis University students as support for a plan to institute mandatory courses on the U.N. at both the primary and secondary levels.

According to this poll, confidence in the U.N. increased with knowledge of its workings. However, despite the widespread confidence in the U.N. indicated by the poll, there was also a marked reluctance to increased financial support.

Alumnus Directs First UP Production

Alumnus Frank Elmore, director of the first musical stage productions at UMSL, returns to the university's stage this weekend as the director of the University Players' production of Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie.

Elmore directed 110 in the Shade and Carnival during the 1967-68 academic year. He is presently a graduate student at Fontbonne College.

Drama at UMSL has changed for the better in the last three years, according to Elmore.

"Better organization among the students will result in better shows," he said.

The players have enough people available to allow the members to specialize in their jobs, noted Elmore. He served as a jack-of-all-trades during the productions of 110 and Carnival, building the sets and collecting props as well as directing.

"We were more independent then," he stated. "I decided 'Let's put on a musical, and I did it.'"

Elmore, who completed a two-year term in the Army in April, said that improving quality, not quantity, should be the immediate goal of the players.

"Four full-scale shows a year compares favorably with any college in St. Louis," he claimed.

What the players call "Benton Hall Theatre," room 105, is adequate for the university at the present time, Elmore suggested.

"This is good enough for a theatre, provided that the players receive more support in solving their physical problems," he said, referring to the problems the players have in securing 105 for rehearsal and in securing permission to erect their sets.

Many people misunderstand The Glass Menagerie, Elmore claimed. "It's not just a sad story about a poor little tenement girl."

The play is a memory of Williams' life, more fantasy than tragedy, according to Elmore. "It's not just sad, there's beauty in the sadness," he added.

Elmore predicted that the players will present a "strong" production of Menagerie. Although they have to compete with all other productions of Menagerie, Elmore recommended that they continue to schedule drama of similar high quality.

The cast for Menagerie is young. George Dennis is a sophomore. Judy Fischer, Janet Johnson, and Pat Brueggen are freshmen. Such a situation is desirable, Elmore claimed, because the cast members can contribute to drama at UMSL for two or three more years.

"A good performance is the result of talent and enthusiasm, not necessarily age," he stated.

The Glass Menagerie will be presented this Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at 8 p.m. in room 105, Benton Hall. Tickets are available at the door.

More Tutors Needed on Campus

Student volunteers are being sought to tutor disadvantaged students, according to Martin V. Lake, director of disadvantaged student programs.

The volunteer student tutors are needed to accommodate the "number of incoming freshmen in need of assistance and help to insure academic success here," Lake said.

Requesting faculty members to inform students of the program's need for additional tutors, Lake said it was an opportunity for one student to help another and to possibly prevent academic failure not uncommon to disadvantaged students.

Volunteers should contact Lake's office, room 263, Life Sciences Building, phone 453-5194.

Indochina Truce Desired By Laos, Souvanna Says

The Laotian government would accept a cease-fire in Southeast Asia without any pre-conditions, Prince Souvanna Phouma said Tuesday.

However, at a press conference, he expressed doubt that any real peace in Indochina could be achieved without Chinese participation.

Many peace proposals have originated from both sides and what is needed is a "happy medium," the Prince stated.

Laotian neutrality in the conflict was repeatedly emphasized in his speech and the press conference at Webster College. He commented that his country is small, surrounded by larger neighbors.

The Prince, Prime Minister of the coalition government battling Communist guerrillas, told a luncheon crowd at the United Nations hearings that a cease-fire has been the hope of his nation for the last 25 years.

Speaking with the aid of a translator, Souvanna defended American financial and military commitments to his neutralist regime.

The cigar-smoking, 69-year old prince charged that about 60,000 North Vietnamese soldiers are within Laos despite official denials from Hanoi. He said that they remained to prevent any disruption in the flow of war materials to combat zones in Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The continued North Vietnamese infiltrations in the early 1960's prompted his decision to seek American aid in order for Laos to survive, the Prince said.

He remarked that the American bombings help to offset North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao (the local Communist movement) superiority in numbers and weapons. Such assistance is permitted by the Geneva Agreements, he commented, in the interests of Laotian self-defense.

All his people want, concluded the Prince, was a period of peace to permit national development.

Suggestions On Bettering U.N.

Jean-Robert Leguey-Feilleux of the Archdiocesan Council of the Laity commended the U.N. on its humanitarian successes, in such areas as health.

His sentiments were seconded by Mrs. W. D. McDowell, who added that women could do a great deal towards promoting peace and understanding.

Mrs. McDowell is president of Church Women United of Metropolitan St. Louis.

Late in the session, the appearance of W. O. Farwig created a sensation through his eccentric behavior and proposal that the U.N. grant him membership as though he were a country.

Farwig at first declined to take the witness seat, declaring that he would prefer to address the audience while standing, as a spokesman for the "silent majority."

Senator Stuart Symington will deliver a "major speech" on foreign policy Oct. 23 at 11:59 a.m. on the hill. Symington's speech, the Dag Hammarskjold Memorial address, is part of the United Nations Week program sponsored by the Council on International Relations and United Nations Affairs.

UP Auditions

The University Players will hold auditions for Little Mary Sunshine on Oct. 26 and 27 at 7:30-10:00 p.m. in room 105 Benton Hall. There are parts for 10 men and 11 women.

The show, a musical spoof, pokes fun at the musical-operettas of the twenties, reminiscent of the romantic Jeannette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy extravaganzas.

Those auditioning for singing roles should be prepared to sing three songs of their choice. Accompaniment will be provided.

Anyone interested in playing piano accompaniment for the show should come prepared to sight read at this time.

The play will be presented in December.

Black Newspaper Planned

A newspaper aimed at presenting the black view of campus life is being prepared for publication in the next month.

Tentatively named Black Voices, the purpose of the newspaper is not to polarize the races but to provide communication geared to the needs of black students, according to Nathan Conley, executive director of the Association of Black Collegians.

Conley said that ABC feels more attention is needed directed to the problems of blacks as seen by blacks.

"Blacks and whites here don't understand each other," he said.

He added that he hoped the newspaper will provide mutual insight into racial views.

The newspaper is not intended to compete with the Current in coverage or comment, he said. The format, which will include a literary section, is being designed now.

Conley said that nine issues will be published on an irregular basis this fall, with the initial issue sometime in November. While the newspaper will be mimeographed at first, Conley expressed hope that funds would be available to allow conversion to a newsprint style.

Transfer student Brenda Jones will edit the newspaper. Other staff positions are in the process of being determined. Persons wanting more information should contact her, Conley said.

He added that, even though the newspaper would be written from a black viewpoint, it will not be exclusive. White participation would be allowed, he said.

ABC itself will hold organizational meetings Thursday and Friday, Conley reported.

Informal "rap" sessions will be held in room 208, Administration Building, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. Thursday, and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Friday.

The purpose of the sessions is to help ABC formulate definite programs to benefit the black community on campus, Conley asserted. But, he added, the programs must be based on the desires and goals set by the membership.

"We have a core, but it takes more than a core," he said.

Major Powers Should Re-examine UN--Fulbright

Senator J. William Fulbright said Tuesday that only a rejuvenation of "a spirit of cooperation lacking among the great powers" could improve the performance of the United Nations.

The Arkansas Democrat urged a reconsideration of large-power attitudes, concluding that world peace would only be accomplished by the replacement of warfare with international law.

Fulbright, presiding over the presidential commission conducting hearings on the 25th anniversary of the U.N., commented that nations were moving "very tentatively" toward an acceptance of diplomacy in settling disputes.

There is "no rational alternative," the senator declared.

Fulbright, head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, urged an end to the United States' "neglect" of the U.N. Citing a lukewarm feeling toward the organization within Congress, Fulbright said that this reflected a national feeling.

"We have not tried to use it (th.

U.N.) on every occasion it could be used," he remarked.

U.N. and Modern Society

Those Americans who demand the demise of the United Nations are wrong. Only the most narrow-minded believe that this country is not affected by what occurs in the world.

The U.N. now faces a challenge to its existence. The tendency of the large powers to operate outside of its legislative and judiciary organs plus the problems of the emerging "third world" necessitate a major re-direction of the U.N. The organization must shift its primary mission from peace-keeping to solving the severe socio-economic crises facing the underdeveloped nations.

When millions suffer malnutrition and hunger, the U.N. must seek ways to provide food. Technical assistance of a highly complex and skilled nature must also be available to struggling nations if they are to survive as independent entities. Industrial evolution cannot be achieved overnight, but it must have a start. Economic cooperation is the first step toward political cooperation, a vital movement toward preserving harmony in the world.

Americans are coming to the realization that we need a place to meet where we can talk to and understand other cultures. We cannot afford to deny ourselves this opportunity.

Many changes are required in the framework of the U.N. That is questionable. The real problem is how to protect the rights of small states while granting the major powers the privileges due them for their financial support.

Inefficient and unwieldy procedures, especially in the General Assembly, must be streamlined. The organization must become involved in solving air and water pollution, fighting terrorism and airline hijacking, and preventing drug abuse.

U.N. diplomacy has often flopped. An adequate military staff for peace-keeping purposes and an expanded mediation staff are required for crises, such as the Mideast or Indochina.

The Lodge Report, in urging a greater U.S. support for the U.N., pointed out that American contributions have been "well invested and have yielded beneficial returns to the long term development of world order under conditions of economic progress and human freedom."

THE UNITED NATIONS--A LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS

Student Use of Facilities

Modifying present student affairs policy to allow individual students, in addition to recognized student organizations, to use services such as sound systems, mimeographing, and room reservations is a suggestion worthy of serious consideration.

The suggestion, first voiced by United Students Party chairman Pete Muckerman last week at the Introspection: UMSL program, would afford the individual student the same opportunity to communicate his ideas that groups now possess.

Muckerman's proposal shouldn't be considered just sour grapes on his part in reaction to the denial of university recognition to the United Students because of their alleged activities in the student strike last May. Muckerman, as well as the other members of his party, have access to student affairs services through a number of other organizations, including the History Club.

There seems to be little reason why such a proposal would not work. Student identification cards could properly identify the student to be held responsible for the equipment or facilities used. Charges for any damage resulting from abuse of the item or room could be collected in the same manner library fines are now collected--if you don't pay your bills, you don't get your grade report. Mimeographed items could be paid for before they are received.

Recognized organizations, representing more than one student, should be given priority for the use of an item or facility if scheduling conflicts developed. This would seem to be a minor problem.

We hope that Muckerman formally presents his proposal to Dean of Student Affairs David R. Ganz. His response, and that of Chancellor Glen R. Driscoll, should prove interesting.

Mastering The Draft

Copyright 1970 by John Stiker and Andrew Shapiro

We welcome your questions and comments about the draft law. During the year, we will answer your questions in the column. Send your questions to Mastering the Draft, Suite 1202, 60 East 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017.

Q.: Will the student deferment be abolished?

A.: On April 23, 1970 the President asked Congress for authority to eliminate the student deferment. Only Congress can provide this authority. In the past, Representative Mendel Rivers, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has been a strong advocate of the student deferment.

However, recently he indicated he was having "second thoughts" about his position. He said he "was becoming disenchanted" with the student deferment because of the college disorders fomented by deferred students. With this change in River's position, the chances for the elimination of the student deferment are greatly increased.

Q.: If the student deferment is abolished, what will be my chances of keeping the II-S deferment until I graduate?

A.: A recent local board memorandum provided the following warning:

"Under legislation now pending in Congress, a registrant who obtains a . . . II-S deferment by enrolling on April 23, 1970 or thereafter may lose his deferment in the future." The legislation referred to was proposed by the President on April 23.

If enacted, students in this year's freshman class may find themselves without a deferment next year.

Q.: Is the official list of disqualifying medical defects available to the public?

A.: Yes. It is published in our book "Mastering the Draft." It is also contained in "The Draft Physical," available for $1.00 from Brooklyn Bridge Press, P.O. Box 1894, Brooklyn, New York 11202.

Q.: Can I get a complete copy of my selective service file?

A.: Yes. Every registrant is entitled to secure a copy of his file. The procedure is as follows:

(1) You should send a letter to your local board requesting a photostatic copy of your selective service file (officially called a Cover Sheet).

(2) A copy of the letter must be sent to the state headquarters of the state in which your local board is located. Your local board can tell you the address of the state headquarters.

(3) The state director will then write to you informing you of the city in which the copying will be done. In most cases, this city will be the location of the state headquarters.

(4) You must then make arrangements with a commercial duplicating firm in the city designated. The arrangements should provide that a representative of the Selective Service System will bring in the file for duplication. The representative will not pay for the duplication. Thus, you must agree with the commercial firm on some form of advance payment or subsequent billing.

(5) When you have made these arrangements, write the state director informing him of the name and address of the firm.

(6) The state director will arrange for an employee to take your file to the copying firm and monitor the reproduction "in order to protect the confidentiality of the file." You must pay "$5 per hour, or fraction thereof in excess of one-quarter hour for the employee's time to monitor the reproduction computing from from the time of his departure until his return to his post."

(7) The file and its copy will be returned to the state headquarters. You will be sent a bill for the monitoring service. After the bill is paid, you will be sent the copy of your file.

ABC Means Black Involvement On Campus

By BRENDA JONES
Editor of Black Voices

Since the appearance of the Association of Black Collegians on college campuses throughout the country, blacks have begun to realize their true worth as students and as human beings on the huge stage of America.

Through ABC, the microscope has been refocused, the eye piece has been enlarged so that the black student, in viewing himself, may now turn the dissecting needle upon the white establishment which long ago took him apart, saw little, closed him, labeled him "passive" and placed him on the dusty shelves of non-existence.

ABC has been able to recognize the plight of the black student and is attempting to bring to him a clearer understanding of that plight as well as offer him the means to destroy it. It is the belief of ABC that the most successful tools to be raised against discrimination are those which emerge from within the minds and souls of the oppressed.

With these basic concepts in mind, the Association of Black Collegians of UMSL has dedicated itself to dealing with the needs of blacks on this campus and the needs of the black communities of the city of St. Louis.

The value of an organization such as ABC may be seen in its past accomplishments.

In 1968, the need for increased enrollment of blacks at UMSL prompted the initiation of "Project Acquaintance." This ABC-conceived program brought to UMSL nearly 200 Sumner high school students for a tour of the campus. The tour began in assembly where the students learned of policies concerning admission, black studies offerings, financial aid, and general education. The success of the program prompted an expansion of the concept to include Beaumont, Vashon and Soldan high schools.

During the summer of 1969, in its efforts to aid black children of the city's most blighted areas, ABC joined with the concerned parishoners of an Episcopal church in Clayton in the organization of a "Fun School."

This program was a "do your own thing" educational experiment for children ages eight through thirteen. The school was operated daily at the Carr Elementary School and attracted "volunteer" students from the surrounding neighborhood and the Pruitt-Iggoe housing project.

The faculty and administration of the "Fun School" consisted entirely of college students--most of whom were black. A dozen were members of the UMSL chapter of ABC. This project, which was based on the concept that enjoyment of school and motivation to learn often go hand in hand, served a score of useful purposes.

While it is true that the value of ABC may be seen in its past accomplishments, it is also true that it must strive in its future efforts to enlarge and to perpetuate that value. This means keeping an open ear and eye to the many phases of campus and community life and creating programs to enhance and strengthen them. The rapid growth of the ABC movement throughout the St. Louis area is making possible a larger number of such programs.

The UMSL chapter looks forward to the coming year with a great deal of enthusiasm. Representatives say that plans for the present semester are geared to the improvement of the campus environment for blacks since it is that aspect which most often determines the amount of unity among students.

LETTERS

Good Riddance, Alliance

Dear Editor,

It was encouraging for me to read last week's article concerning the resignation of Alliance for Peace as a university recognized organization. This is a much more forthright approach than that which this organization had previously invoked.

Two weeks ago, I was nominated without my knowledge or consent to a commission established by the Alliance for Peace for reviewing the operation of the Office of Student Affairs. I was informed of my appointment at the same time that the Current and the Central Council learned of it. I had good reasons for refusing to serve on the commission.

I considered it an insult to the integrity, or at least the intelligence, of the corporate office of Student Affairs, all of whose employees I respect highly. It is an office which has done more for the Alliance for Peace than for perhaps any other organization in the school. Furthermore, it surprised me that an organization whose professed aim is to work for peace could so thoroughly ignore its own purpose and devote its time to telling the Office of Student Affairs how to better achieve its purpose.

Surely the Alliance for Peace was aware that there were other, more official, more effective channels for such an investigation. All that was required was a formal complaint. There was none. There was merely a series of gripes by some members of the Alliance for Peace concerning recognition procedures.

I think that any organization which has shown as much contempt for official channels as has the Alliance for Peace does not deserve the use of them and therefore does not deserve to be recognized. I would urge any other organizations who feel as Alliance for Peace did to do likewise.

RESIGNATION

Dear Editor,

I'm not going to run again for Central Council representative because the damn council is bulls--t. It's not a representative body--its bulls--t. I don't represent anybody but myself; and that's it, kind of like an ego-trip.

I can no longer be a part of the petty "I'm right and you are wrong" crap between the good guys and the bad guys (make your own value judgments on that one, fellow students.) Yeah, I know I've been part of that scene. So it seems that the only way I can alleviate that problem is to remove myself from those pompous asses. So I am.

Well, here ya' go, UMSL, play with your ego toy.

3. The cities and farms of the Palestinians were confiscated by the invading Zionists and paralleled out. Settlements and kibbutzums mushroomed all over Arab Palestine with population (Jewish) Zionists exclusively.

4. The Palestinians are still the legal owners of the lands, and the lands the Zionists now live on, work on, and reap on. Political and military conquests are not a valid basis of new ownership.

In short: When one hears the terms "kibbutz" and "settlement," one should realize that kibbutzums were and are being erected on lands that belong to Arafat, Habash, and 2,500,000 more determined Palestinians -- and the Palestinians do not take kindly to such gross injustice. By helping the establishment of racist (Jewish only), para-military, and imperialist modern colons, one is contributing to the already monstrous problem.

Organizational Activities, Notices

Sigma Pi fraternity and Beta Sigma Gamma sorority will be sold at the Camelot auction held on KETC, Channel 9, from 4 p.m. to midnight, Oct. 22.

Camelot is a charity auction of unusual prizes held to benefit the Arts and Education Council of Greater St. Louis each year.

Sigma Pi and Beta Sigma Gamma will be devoting an entire day of service to their owners.

Last year these two organizations, along with the other Greek organizations here, donated the proceeds raised during Greek Week to Camelot.

The proceeds were used to promote such activities as Channel 9, the St. Louis Symphony, St. Louis Art Museum and other cultural endeavors.

Robert Walker of Washington University will lecture on moon rocks Oct. 27 in room 105, Benton Hall, at 3:30 p.m.

Walker, professor of physics, has conducted research for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on the moon samples. His appearance is sponsored by the UMSL chapter of Sigma Xi, national research honorary society.

A panel discussion, followed by a question-and-answer period, will consider the current job opportunities situation in St. Louis at 8 p.m. Oct. 29 in the Physics Annex Lounge.

The panel will be composed of Miss Margaret Carey, U.S. Employment Service; Mrs. Ruth Dodge, coordinator for Health-Related Careers; Mrs. Patricia Bohn, Executive Director, Adult Education Council; and Miss Beverly Schrader, Assistant Director, UMSL Placement Office.

All interested students and their friends are invited to attend.

The program is being presented by the Specials Club.

Persons interested in physical therapy as a career are urged to contact Karen Walker in the counseling office. Information sessions involving films and a discussion with a physical therapist are being planned. For more information, contact her at 453-5711.

Luther House, the new Lutheran student center at UMSL, will be dedicated Oct. 25. All members of the university community are invited to attend.

A worship service will be held at Unity Lutheran Church, 8454 Glen Echo Dr., at 4 p.m. The dedication will be immediately after the service. A buffet supper and youth program will follow the dedication.

Luther House, intended to serve the 600 Lutheran students at UMSL, is located at 3100 Bellerive Dr. Its program of worship services, religious discussions, and counseling are available to the public.

Athletic Expansion Announced

Chancellor Glen R. Driscoll was expected to announce plans for addition of three intercollegiate sports to the UMSL program, the Current has learned.

Driscoll was to speak at the Rivermen Press Preview at 4:00 p.m. today at Viking Hall.

The three additional sports, which will be introduced over a two-year period beginning in 1971-72, are wrestling, swimming and volleyball. This expansion, of course, will hinge on completion of the Multi-Purpose building.

Athletic Director Chuck Smith

this week told the Current, "There are three pre-requisites to starting a new varsity sport on campus." "First of all, there must be great student interest." Smith pointed out that volleyball has always been UMSL's number one intramural activity while wrestling is very popular in north area high schools.

"Wrestling is a natural," he said.

"Secondly, the sport must be played in St. Louis high schools," he said, "and third, there must be schools in the area with which to compete."

Smith pointed out the necessity of the last condition in view of the athletic department's "small budget."

Driscoll is also expected to officially announce UMSL's membership in the NCAA College Division. The Rivermen will compete in District Five, which comprises schools from seven midwest states.

The Chancellor was also expected to comment on progress of the field house.

Record Entry in UMSL Open

UMSL's second annual Open Golf Tournament attracted a record number of entrants to St. Charles Golf Club Oct. 16.

Gene Dodson carded the best score of all 39 entrants as he won the varsity division crown with a 68, par for the course. Ron Brewer shot a 70 while Mike Prendergast shot 72 to finish second and third among the varsity golfers.

Brook Peterson shot a 70 to win the student division gross score championship while Dave Buchanan won the net title with a 71, and a 5 handicap.

Al Theodorow and Ron Meyer finished second and third in the student gross competition with 73 and 74 totals. John Ruckahr and John Killenberg tied for second with nets of 73, 3 handicap.

Miles Patterson won the gross championship in the faculty-staff division with 74 while Neal Primm and Fred Wilke carded 79 and 81 to round out the top three.

Dave Schmidt and K.W. Barnett tied for net honors in faculty-staff with 72, 13 handicap. Steve Newman had third place all to himself with a 73, 12 handicap.

Ron Meyer was the long drive champion with a 278 yard wallop on the par 4 second hole. Rick Blalock copped the copest to the pin crown with a shot that roll to within 21'5" of the pin on the par 3 tenth hole.

The UMSL Open was played in perfect weather, which probably contributed to the fine turnout.

Golf Coach Larry Berres handled this year's tourney. Berres was very happy with the fine turnout, commenting that UMSL can look forward to "about a hundred entrants in a couple of years." He pointed out that the Open may well become a strong tradition at the university.

Cougars Charge While Rivermen Wait

By DARREL SHOULTS
Current Staff Writer

"Just wait until basketball."

This thought was in the minds of many UMSL fans as they watched the Rivermen lose to the SIU-Edwardsville Cougars, 4-1, Saturday.

The match was this season's second chapter of the continuing rivalry between UMSL and SIUE. Earlier this year, the Cougars defeated the Rivermen cross country squad, 15-48.

UMSL went into the game looking for their first soccer victory against SIUE. In 1968, the Cougars shut out UMSL, 4-0, handing the first-year Rivermen their initial loss. Last year the Rivermen jumped ahead but SIUE fought back and won, 2-1.

For the first two periods of this year's contest, it looked as though the Rivermen might turn the tables on the Cougars.

These first two quarters marked UMSL's best performance of the year. They held the powerful Cougars to only 10 shots on goal, while the Cougar defense in turn allowed UMSL only six.

In the third period the Cougars broke the game wide open, scoring three times.

The first goal was an unassisted tally by forward Chris Carenza at 5:18. John Deinowski doubled the Cougar lead, connecting 5:03 later on a pass from John Carenza. Then, at 21:07, Chris Carenza scored his second goal, assisted this time by Forward John Howe.

Kevin Missey registered UMSL's lone tally at 13:00 in the fourth. Missey, displaying his usual excellent ball-handling, drove down midfield, maneuvered around Cougar goalie Rick Benben and sent a slow kick trickling into the net. Benben had come out of the net in an attempt to break up Missey's drive, but found himself instead watching the ball roll past.

Later in the fourth quarter, the Cougars put the game on ice when John Carenza scored on a Mickey Conway pass. The loss was UMSL's second against four victories. SIUE carries a 4-1 record, their only loss coming at the hands of the Quincy Hawks.

Many of the SIUE players felt that the Rivermen were tougher than Quincy. "Quincy was more up for us," said Cougar mentor Bob Guelker, adding "UMSL has a fine hustling team. They'll do well. They won't be humiliated by anyone."

The game proved costly to the Rivermen in two ways. First, the loss made their chances for NCAA post-season championship competition quite doubtful. Secondly, the Rivermen sustained several serious injuries.

Ken Hudson was kicked in the back of the leg in the first period by John Carenza. He was removed from the game, returned for a short while, but had to leave for good when the injury proved too much for him.

Tim Kruse joined Hudson on the injured list in the fourth quarter when he was kicked in the knee. Kruse left the game and was not able to return.

Mike Wamser, who had replaced Don Deason in goal, was kicked in the ear by Chris Carenza, in the fourth period. Wamser also had to leave the game.

It is doubtful that any of the injured Rivermen, including goalie Tim O'Toole, who was injured in the St. Benedict's game, will see action in the match with Western Illinois this Saturday.

Rivermen coach Don Dallas made no excuses for the loss. "We looked good in the first half," he said. When they scored that goal it took all the zip out of us. They outplayed us after that. They deserved to win. They were the better team."

The Cougars have proven to be the better team so far this year, but there's still basketball. The Rivermen will open their basketball season with a game against SIUE at the Arena on December 1. Just wait.

Trip to Chicago

The Steamers Club is sponsoring a bus trip to Chicago for an UMSL soccer match and a cross country meet Oct. 30-31.

Total cost of a reservation is $17.00, which includes both bus fare and hotel. Tickets will be on sale this week and next in the Administration Building lobby.

Harriers Blue, Fall Twice

The Rivermen cross country team opened their home season Tuesday in much the same way they have performed all year. UMSL's harriers dropped a 23-33 decision to the Big Blue of Millikin University.

Neither squad was at full strength for the meet. Millikin's Don Hartlaub and Joe Deely ran despite lingering illnesses.

UMSL, meanwhile, was without the services of Marvin Goodwin, who underwent surgery for removal of a bone chip Tuesday. Goodwin had finished fourth in Saturday's near miss at Principia.

Bobby Hudson once again had trouble with his back. Hudson was leading the race at the three-mile mark but finished sixteen seconds behind Millikin captain Dave Delaney.

Frank Neal finished fourth against the Big Blue while Joe Tuthill, who had led early in the race, came in seventh.

The Rivermen very nearly copped their first victory of the season last Saturday when they traveled to Elsah, Illinois, to meet the Principia Indians. UMSL missed a victory by two seconds as Principia's John Beeson nosed out Jerry Moser by that margin.

Hudson and Neal finished third and fourth, respectively, in the 26-29 defeat.

Millikin coach Carl Johansen told the Current that his boys didn't like the UMSL course very well. He added that the Big Blue course "is on a golf course, it's hilly but not this abrupt."

Bob Hudson attempts to relieve the cramps in his back while leading Dave Delaney of Millikin after three miles last Tuesday.
