Noon Forum Will Begin In November

The Noonday Forum, a program initiated last year by the Student Activities Office, will get under way Monday, November 3 in room 100, Clark Hall, at 11:45 a.m. The Forum programs will continue daily until next May.

The Forum will meet at 11:45 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and at 12:15 Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Miss Stephanie Kreis, who works in the Student Activities Office located in room 117, Administration Building, is in charge of the program. According to Miss Kreis, the purpose of the Noonday Forum is to provide a place for students to hear speakers, participate in informal discussions of topics, and see movies.

Admission to the Noonday Forum programs is free. Funds for the program come from the student activity fee. This year's budget is $7000, compared to last year's budget of $3395.

Miss Kreis said that in cases where guest speakers are expensive to bring to campus, there may be "an additional charge of approximately fifty cents per person to hear a certain guest speaker. This additional charge will be avoided if at all possible," she added.

Some of last year's speakers included Marcus Raskin, Julian Bond, Charles Koen, and Lawrence K. Roos.

The Forum met at 12:00 daily last year, but this year the starting times will be flexible to allow for greater attendance by students. Miss Kreis said, "If there is a failure of student participation, the Forum may be cancelled." She encouraged students and faculty members to provide suggestions to make the program more successful.

Moratorium Draws Positive Response

by Matt Mattingly,
Current Staff Reporter

In separate interviews with Dean of Student Affairs David R. Ganz, Dr. Karl Stern and Dave Singer, the Current has learned that initial response to the Moratorium at UMSL has been favorable.

According to Dean Ganz, "I couldn't have been more pleased with the responsible attitudes of everyone; not just the students who participated in the Moratorium, but also those who weren't involved."

"You don't like to borrow trouble," he continued, "but in a case like this, you have to anticipate any contingency. Of course, as it turned out, none of our

UMSL student Jerry Vishy, who considers himself to be the campus skateboard champion, recently attempted to cross Bugg Lake. It was a good attempt, but he still wiped out 175 feet short of the other side.

Committee to Hold Representation Hearings

The student-faculty committee which presented two plans for non-faculty representation in university government will hold hearings next week to obtain suggestions from students, faculty members and administrative staff.

The hearings are scheduled Monday and Tuesday, October 27 and 28 at 2:30 in room 410 Benton Hall, and Wednesday, October 29 at 3:30 in room 205 Clark Hall.

The following is a copy of the report which the committee submitted to the Faculty Senate October 9:

"The various proposals so far considered for enlarging university representation are, in the opinion of the Committee, of two basic plans:

Plan 1. To enlarge the present faculty Senate to include within it representation from students and other groups within the university community who are presently not represented. Proposals of this nature would transform this body into a University Senate which would represent all or most of the university community in a single legislative organization.

"Plan 2. To maintain the present divisions of Faculty Senate, Student

Central Council, and other individual university organizations, but to create new mechanisms which could improve communication and coordination between these separate bodies or which could institute new legislative procedures between them.

"Proposals for Plan 1, to enlarge the present Faculty Senate into a University Senate, differ primarily in the proportions of representatives from the different university groups. One example is to have a University Senate with representation in the proportion of 90 faculty, 30 students, and 10-15 representatives from other university groups, such as alumni, police, library staff, departmental secretaries, administrative secretaries, technicians, and physical plant workers.

"Should this plan be followed, the Committee recommends that, whatever the proportions, some method be established which would include at least one member from each of the latter groups mentioned.

"In the opinion of the Committee, Plan 1 has a number of important advantages:

- This plan increases the influence of the participating groups faculty, students and employees upon the administration beyond that of their separate and individual influences.
- It enables different points of view to be expressed and debated in a single place.
- This plan, therefore, allows for participation of all university groups as problems arise, so that decisions do not have to be reversed by otherwise separate legislative bodies because of inadequate information and faulty communication.
- This plan makes use of an already existing structure (the Faculty Senate) upon which to build rather than creating an additional one with replicated electoral pro-

University Releases Budget Estimates

by Tim Flach,
Current Staff Reporter

The University of Missouri will probably release in the near future an estimate of building needs by 1973 higher than those recommended in a study by the Missouri Commission on Higher Education, informed sources have reported.

The Commission suggested spending $396,490,331 for new construction and building renovations for the four campuses of the University. Of that amount, $21,- 473,553 is slated for UMSL.

Another $107,481,903 was recommended for the five state colleges and Lincoln University.

Spokesmen indicated that the University would question the formula used for allocating the funds. However, the theory of employing formulas has been accepted.

The study was based on formulas worked out by the Commission staff after meetings with administrators on how many square feet of classroom and laboratory space are needed per student.

The report is the first step to change the traditional lobbying of school officials for the appropriation of funds by the legislature. The Commission, attempting to decide the future of educational needs, took the study under consideration.

In the $21,473,553 proposed for UMSL, nothing was recommended for classroom space, $1.4 million for instructional space, $1 million for a library addition, $1.3 million for teaching laboratories, and $12.5 million for research laboratories, an auditorium, fine arts facilities, and health services.

The formula used assumed that fulltime day enrollment by 1973 would be 6557. About half that number would attend night classes. Current fulltime enrollment combined is 7580.

Grants Awarded to UMSL To Expand Black Studies

The University of Missouri - St. Louis has received $45,080 in special university-wide "Urban Problem Solving" funds to support expansion of a wide-ranging black studies program.

The funds are part of $99,880 received by UMSL to support five special projects to be conducted during the current academic year. Special grants are awarded annually to the four campuses to underwrite programs that stimulate involvement of the university's teaching, research and extension activities in helping to alleviate urban problems. Nineteen "Urban Problem Solving" grants, worth $336,743, have been awarded by the University of Missouri for 1969-70.

The grant will provide for an increased number of courses in such areas as black history, art, music, literature and other subjects. Three courses—"Afro-American Literature," "The Black American in United States Politics," and "Black History in the United States"—are being offered at UMSL this semester. Five others, some of which are scheduled to be offered next semester, have been authorized by the UMSL Faculty Senate. They are: "Group Prejudice and Minority Identity," "Introduction to the African Arts," "Black Americans in Education," "The Politics of Modernization," and "The City." Additional black-related courses currently are under consideration for incorporation into the St. Louis Campus curriculum.

The funds will also provide for additional instructors for black studies courses, as well as for the employment of a counselor-advisor to serve the needs both academic and extracurricular, of UMSL's increasing black student population. The allocation will also allow the establishment of a program in which upperclassmen serve as tutors for first and second-year black students whose ed-

Praise for the Faculty

The Current applauds both the stand taken by the Faculty Senate toward the Moratorium and those faculty members who participated in the teach-ins last week. Both actions reveal that some faculty members, at least, recognize that the learning process is enhanced, not endangered, by participation in a program which, although not officially listed in the University catalogue, is of value to every person on campus.

The University of Missouri is not isolated from the rest of the world; its students, faculty, and administrators are affected individually or collectively by "outside" events (Vietnam, for example). But are the events really "outside" the University? We think not.

However, President John Weaver's policy statement prior to October 15 would seem to indicate otherwise. The "classes as usual" policy cites the University's defense of the "right of free expression of opinion, including the right of peaceful assembly," but goes on to state that "such freedoms...cannot and should not be construed as a permit to interrupt the regular activities of the University or be a license for any faculty member to discharge his regularly assigned obligations." The statement concluded that it is the responsibility of faculty and staff members to "carry out their duties so that the educational missions of the University can be fulfilled without interruption."

We believe that the Moratorium was not an "interruption" of the "educational missions of the University." Is not the peaceful dissemination and discussion of facts and opinions about the Vietnam conflict "educational?" Was the allotment of one day of classes really an "interruption" of education? Certainly not.

The Faculty Senate's stand, when it recognized "the moral right of those faculty members who so desire to suspend their classes in observing the October 15 day of protest" demonstrates true awareness of the University's "educational missions." What better way is there for a university to help students become more knowledgeable about a contemporary issue than to allow for orderly discussion with the faculty? Does deviating from the normal routine for a day really nullify the positive aspects of a program such as the Moratorium?

The participation in the teach-ins, inside and outside the classroom by many professors added weight to the Faculty Senate's position, as well as assured the success of the activities October 15. It was a real demonstration that many faculty members here are concerned with more than just "classes as usual."

Looking for an Omen

Those who like to watch for omens certainly had a time of it last week. Two events, seemingly unrelated to each other, occurred within a twenty-four hour span: thousands across the country participated in a sane protest against the Vietnam war, and the New York Mets won the World Championship.

Not since the United States' fiftieth birthday, (July 4, 1826) when John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died within hours of each other, have events so conspired as to portend some momentous occasion. It is hard to determine what that occasion might be, but we hope that it denotes a quick end to the war in Vietnam.

The Mets, long the lovable losers of the National League, have suddenly made themselves World Champions. Anybody who would have predicted this outcome last April would have been carted off to an asylum. While most things weren't certain then, one thing was: the Mets would not finish higher than seventh or eighth. Everyone knew that.

Now, however, thanks to the Mets, we realize that anything is possible, and it is this realization which gives us hope concerning Vietnam.

Perhaps it is irrational to base such hope on an event like a World Series victory; maybe it is foolish to interpret events in such a way. But war is irrational, as is the United States' prolonged involvement in Vietnam.

So while the experts look for other signs concerning Vietnam, we'll watch our own.

Correction

The Current has been informed that the Faculty Senate's actions toward fraternal organizations on this campus ("Faculty Senate Lifts Ban on Greek Organizations," Current, October 16, 1969) is not to be considered as final. The Senate voted to recommend to the Chancellor that the moratorium be lifted and the accompanying policy be approved.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Because of the events of October 15th of this year, I undertook a task that many before me have undertaken, but a task that many more should attempt. I tried to understand just how we got involved in Vietnam and secondly, what is our present situation?

My search for truth led me to the Thomas Jefferson Library. I can only suggest that free-thinking students of UMSL drop their emotional fanaticism and do the same as I did.

1) Look in the Encyclopedia Britannica at the brief history of Vietnam from 1945-1956. Search to see what our government's attitude was during these years. Where did we place our support and agreement?

2) Read the Geneva Accord of 1954. (It can be found in the book, 'Major Peace Treaties of Modern History 1648-1967. Its call number is REF JX 121.18 Vol. 4) After you read it, ask yourself, 'Why didn't the U.S. honor their agreement?' I've found the answer, myself, lying in the emotions of 1955. But you must find your own answer because it is emotional and therefore not clearly black and white.

But, all this happened years ago. What of today? Five years ago there was a chance for the U.S. to place a democratic government in Vietnam. But today this is a lost dream. The Thieu-Ky government is a dictatorship with their political adversaries in prison. Those who disagree or voice dissension are quickly removed from the public scene. These leaders make up an elite group, living in posh surroundings while the peasants continue in poverty. This is the government that the U.S. government hopes to keep in power after we leave Vietnam.

But what of the government once led by Ho Chi Minh. In the north, dissenters are shot, or at best imprisoned. Freedom as we know it does not exist there either. But at very least, there have been land reforms. The distribution of wealth is not concentrated in those with political power. Instead, the government exists for the advancement of the peoples. Indeed, Ho Chi Minh was a friend of the Vietnamese.

The 40,000 U. S. soldiers who died in Vietnam died to put a democracy there. The U. S. soldiers who die there tomorrow will die for a dictatorship.

As a personal note, I, like many others, will graduate in June. I feel certain that I will be called upon to fight and perhaps to die. Should I betray my values and fight for a dictator? Or should I betray my patriotism and refuse induction? I don't know.

Sincerely,
Steve Colvis

Dear Editor,

It seems to me that a lot more could be accomplished on future Moratorium Days if the students, faculty and staff took some really constructive action. There's nothing wrong with standing around listening to speeches, but actions still beat words, any day!

Certainly a large percentage of us know someone stationed in Vietnam. Why not send a package to a serviceman once a month. He would be very happy to receive it, but the thought behind it would be appreciated most of all. Or, perhaps, the various organizations on campus could conduct fund-raising drives once each month. There are, I'm sure, plenty of kids in St. Louis going off to school these chilly mornings shivering against the cold because they don't own a warm winter coat. Or, everyone on campus could be requested to bring one can of food a month to be distributed to needy families.

There are a lot of people around here and the list of things that could be done, is practically endless. Surely the faculty and staff would gladly "get involved" in any one of these projects, and who knows - we might even bridge the generation gap in the process!

So why not put a moratorium on at least a small part of the loneliness, hunger and suffering right here in our own community now?

erage of political events as they affect the UMSL Campus."

Without discussing the poor taste, atrocious grammar and overall lack of coherence in the first column, I would like to know what makes Bill Church qualified to speak for the liberal point of view on this campus in the first place. Was he elected? Were several applicants screened concerning their qualifications to write about the important issues of our times?

I applaud the intention of the Current to present an alternate columnist on the conservative point of view. I would like to know how all segments of our campus feel on various issues. But after reading Church's puny effort it's hard to figure where he stands on anything.

When I invest my time listening to what someone has to say I hope to learn something from what he says. I think Mr. Church owes me something for the five minutes I wasted reading his column.

In closing, it is unfortunate that this drivel detracted from the paper's excellent coverage of the moratorium and the title, "Church's Gargage Can" is very appropriate for the first effort of "the liberals' official spokesman."

Dear Editor,

As most students know who signed up for certain sociology courses this semester, Mr. Paul Chassy is no longer teaching here at UMSL. Notwithstanding, he is very well remembered by his former students and his friends.

It is the opinion of most of the people who knew him that he was a dedicated teacher and individual. As a teacher of sociology he conveyed a deep passion for men and their society. He attempted to make his courses relevant and made them for most, a true growth experience. As a friend he is thought to be a warmly devoted and honest person. Clearly, he elicited strong responses from everyone with whom he came in contact.

He is perhaps best remembered for being the inspiration to the students who staged a protest sit-in last spring in the former Physics Annex, now the student lounge, which led to the subsequent turning over of the building for students' use, its original purpose. Had it not been for that demonstration, students would still be confined to the Blue Building and the cafeteria in the administration building both of which were inadequate for last years needs. There was a possibility that one of the lower levels of the library might have been used for this purpose. The consequences of the sit-in is that the students at UMSL for the first time have reasonably spacious facilities for their leisure use.

Mr. Chassy was a rare phenomenon in college teachers. He had the guts to recognize things as they were, and he was willing to offer his opinion on issues and stand behind his convictions in public. He was a man of strong commitment to his personal philosophy and he challenged others to be the same way. His personal determination and courage inspired his students to think for themselves and to commit themselves on issues and respond accordingly.

In recognition of his contribution to the university and the inspirations and enthusiasm which he gave to its students, we propose that the student lounge henceforward be called "Chassy Annex."

Dear Editor,

Today I found myself speculating on exactly what the worth of our Central Council was. I found myself attempting to decide in a vacuum. How does one decide if a council is doing its job, and fulfilling the trust placed in it, if it seems to be existing in its own snug, little cocoon. To determine what really is going on, a student or faculty member must go to the bulletin board hidden away in room 117. How many students know where to look if they're interested? The Current prints smatterings of what goes on at the meetings, but a blow-by-blow account which would paint the council as successful or delinquent in their duties would be a welcome aid. Perhaps instead of the caricature of a newsletter The Natural Bridge, the Council could run off copies of the minutes to be distributed. Not only the council members, but the entire school should see how the Council is proceeding.

Most students won't wander into 117 to find the minutes. If the minutes were available, we might even drum more interest in the student government. How many students know that any student can serve on a committee if he fills out a form in room 117 and is deemed worthy to serve? Put it where we can find it! If we could see what was going on in the heart of the council, perhaps new life could be pumped into what seems to be a sad, moribund student government.

Sincerely,
Lou Jobst

RAMPARTS SPEAKS: "This attempt to turn mass education into something which is truly for the masses is an effort that the trustees of the state colleges system aren't about to tolerate; but it is a demand that is going to arise in every urban college across the country. For this reason alone, the trouble at San Francisco State reaches far beyond the outer fringes of San Francisco's commuter belt. Berkeley or Columbia may be lingering in the background somewhere as ideals of campus radicalism, but even if you live in Kansas City, San Francisco State is close to home."

What are ideals of the campus radicals of Berkeley and Columbia? That the university belongs to the students and faculty and not to the Board of Regents or Curators. This was the banner of the Free Speech Movement at Berkeley in 1964. Those of you who remember Mario Savio know that his cause was to liberate the minds and bodies of the students from the oppressive political control of the state. San Francisco State carried the principle one step further to include the students and the faculty in an alliance against the politically oriented Board of Regents. Former President of San Francisco State, John Summerskill established many progressive innovations at State (an underground newspaper funded by the university, a Free University on campus) which brought the alliance into direct confrontation with the Board of Regents. Summerskill was trying to bring the education to the masses (black and white), and for this the Board of Regents fired him.

So where is the University of Missouri-St. Louis in this picture? Like State we are a commuter school in a white, middle class neighborhood (on the edge of the Black ghetto) and we are both members of a multi-university system controlled by a Board of Regents or Curators.

Black students from City College in San Francisco (a junior college) came to State in search of tools to help their people, but their every attempt at relevant education was rebuffed by the Board of Regents. Then it was those same black students who felt it was necessary to fight for relevant education. In St. Louis black students are coming up through the Junior College District and black high school graduates are becoming aware that the University of Missouri - St. Louis exists as a reality for inexpensive education. Another factor was added this summer when members of our faculty participated in Project Ahead which recruited high school drop-outs in the black ghetto into a program at Forest Park Junior College to raise them to levels of acceptance for various technical programs or to transfer to an accredited college. As a result of these three factors our black enrollment may swell with newly-motivated blacks who are eager for relevant education that will allow them to live as proud black men.

What's the problem? Let's put it in terms of one of the faculty members who worked on Project Ahead. "What is going to happen when they finish their program and decide to transfer here? Sure, we'll accept them at the admissions office, but will the students and faculty accept an increased enrollment of black students who are aware of their black identity?" Yes, we'll have education available to the masses, but does this mean relevant to the masses too? If it does, we'll have to change the attitudes of the university system. A black graduate of a California college put it on the line: "They didn't like the way I talked, walked or looked and they told me that before I graduated I had to learn to talk properly - they meant I was too black for them."

How are we accepting our black community on this campus? Sure we have a black studies program but it was on the terms of the Board of Curators, and you had better believe that the first time they start a truly black course at this university the Board of Curators will be breathing down some necks. Look what happened to Murray at State or when Cleaver was supposed to lecture at Berkeley.

A Black Studies Program belongs in a Free University which is owned and operated by the students for the students and is

All members of the University community interested in appearing or working on the University Players' production of Such Sweet Sorrow: An Evening with Shakespeare's Lovers, are invited to attend a meeting on Sunday October 26 at 1:30 p.m. in room 100 Clark Hall.

This will be the first in a series of workshops to be conducted by the director, Dr. John T. Onuska, assistant professor of English. Shakespearean acting style and diction will be discussed and scenes from the plays will be read and critiqued by all those who participate. The purpose of these sessions is to develop a familiarity with Shakespearean techniques.

There will be no other date for tryouts. Anyone planning to attend the first meeting should bring a copy of the complete works of Shakespeare or a copy of A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Nominations for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" will be open October 27-31. Any student who expects to receive a bachelor's degree or higher between September, 1969 and June, 1970 is eligible. Eligible students must have a cumulative grade point average of 2.5 or higher, have a record of participation and leadership in extra-curricular activities, service to the school and a promise of future usefulness.

Nominations may be made by any student, faculty member or member of the administration. Application blanks are available in the various academic deans offices and in the office of Student Affairs.

October 24 is the deadline for applications for five vacated positions on four student-faculty committees, according to Barry Kaufman, chairman of the Appointments and Elections Committee of the Central Council.

The positions available are on separate but still a part of the university. But a structured Black Studies Program within the politically white university makes black studies white. A Free University is education for the masses and, as stated before, no board of curators is going to tolerate provocative thoughtful education.

the Student Affairs, Athletics, and Library Committees; and two vacancies on the Publications Committee.

Applications for the committee positions, and also for two vacant seats on the Central Council, will be available in Room 117 of the Administration Building.

The American Chemical Society will have a speaker on Wednesday, October 29 at 4:00 pm in room 120 Benton Hall. Mr. Robert S. Flick, director of the Wastewater Department of the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District, will speak on "Water Pollution Controls and What the Public Can Do to Help." He will answer questions after his lecture.

A special, on-campus Federal service entrance examination will be conducted by the U.S. Civil Service Commission on Saturday, October 25 at 9:00 am in room 309 Benton Hall.

difference of opinion exists, this can't help but reflect to the credit of UMSL."

Dr. Stern, advisor to the Moratorium steering committee, expressed gratification at the extent of the turn-out for Moratorium Day activities. "When people talk about hundred percent turn-outs, and so on—even fifty percent—they're dealing with improbabilities; it's nonsense. However—at some time during the day—between thirty and forty percent of the student body participated in some phase of the Moratorium program; some of them stayed all day. Of course, that's just my estimate—but the Moratorium demonstrated that opposition to the Vietnam war is not limited to the so-called hippy element, but exists to a greater degree its functioning unwieldy. The Committee felt that this defect is balanced by the increased opportunities for participation of each of the groups in a single deliberative body.

d. Combining different groups, such as faculty and students, within a single body would inhibit free discussion. The Committee felt that such inhibitions, should they occur, would probably last for only a short time.

"Proposals for Plan 2, to maintain the present organized group divisions but to increase communication and coordination between them, were of the following types:

A. The Faculty Senate, the Student Central Council and non faculty organizations would elect members to a Joint Coordinating Committee (a "Supercouncil") which would consider issues presented to it or issues within its jurisdiction with the possibilities of a) sending approved proposals on to the Chancellor b) resubmitting rejected proposals back to the respective groups for further consideration c) sending disapproved proposals on to the Chancellor with its own recommendations.

"The committee felt that the main advantage of this proposal is that it maintains the integrity of the Faculty Senate as an exclusive faculty body in contrast to Plan 1.

B. The executive committees of the Faculty Senate and the Student Central Council shall hold joint meetings.

"The advantage of this proposal is that it does not create a new institution but acts to improve communication between those already existing. The committee, however, felt that this proposal does not really confront the question of participation of the different university groups in decision-making processes and offers little improvement to the present situation.

C. All committee reports of the Faculty Senate and the Student Central Council are to be submitted to both bodies with formal action to be taken separately by each body on matters within its jurisdiction.

"The advantage of this proposal is to improve communication. The disadvantage, however, was felt again to be that the proposal does not significantly address itself toward participation of students and non-student university groups in decision-making processes affecting the University.

D. To add more students to the present committees of the Faculty Senate.

"Since there is no legislative representation for students and non-students in this proposal, the Committee felt that this disadvantage, as in B and C above, is so basic that implementation of this proposal would offer little improvement to the present situation.

E. A formalized bi-cameral system be established whose two separate but equal houses consist of respective faculty student legislative organizations. Approval for action on all or most legislative matters would have to be obtained in both houses. Special joint committees on individual issues would be established as needed.

"The Committee felt that the primary advantage of this proposal, as of others in Plan 2, is that it permits each University group to maintain its own identity and major focus of interest. It also may permit more candid and uninhibited discussions within each group."

Columbia March Draws 3500 Students

The Current Columbia Bureau, comprised of Ron Brown, Ann Pautler, Chris Winter, and Bob Fick, teamed to provide the following account of the Moratorium activities in Columbia.

Protesters estimated at 3,500 marched silently and solemnly through downtown Columbia last Wednesday afternoon in a peaceful demonstration against the Vietnam war.

After a noon rally at the Fine Arts Building, the marchers, mostly University students, walked the eight blocks to the Federal Building on Cherry Street, led by students carrying a black coffin.

Merchants on Broadway displayed several American flags at the urging of the "Support Our Country" group of Stephens College coeds, while others posted bumper stickers that read "America-Love it or Leave it."

The marchers carried several signs: "War is not healthy for children and other living things;" "No extinction without representation;" "I should like to love my country and also to love justice;" and "Bring my dead brother back."

One protester carried a black flag on which a clenched red fist had been drawn.

Bystanders variously called the demonstration "unpatriotic," "a damn shame," and "a disgrace to the nation."

At the Federal Building the Columbia Moratorium Committee collected more than $600 to send Columbians to the March on Death to be held November 13-15 in Washington D.C. Each participant will carry the name of a dead American soldier on a placard to the White House.

During the ceremony at the Federal Building, speakers read telegrams from Senators George McGovern (Democrat-South Dakota) and Edward Muskie (Democrat-Maine) and Missouri Senators Thomas Eagleton and Stuart Symington.

One woman in her early 50's said she had joined a similar peace march 30 years ago against U.S. entrance into World War II. She said her son has received orders to report for a physical next week.

The Moratorium activities began at 8:30 a.m. when 800 people attended a convocation in Jesse Auditorium. The convocation lasted for three-and-one-half hours.

During a discussion, Dr. Richard Kirkendall, chairman of the history department, and Mark Michael, a graduate student, disagreed over General Maxwell Taylor's influence and motivation in the Vietnam war effort, as described in a leaflet distributed during the general's visit to Columbia October 4.

Dr. Kirkendall said the leaflet implies that the war reflects the fundamental weaknesses of our society. He said he prefers to believe that the war is rooted in the intellectual history of the nation. He described war as an overreaction to the failures of isolationism in the 30's and the assumptions that the U. S. can and should influence everything in the world. He called for a realization of the U.S.'s limitations, and a pull-back from the concept of globalism.

Michael traced the roots of the war to the economic policies related to U.S. vested interests in the Far East, the ideological belief in the communist conspiracy to resort to military means immediately when diplomacy fails.

In a memorial service held Wednesday night on the Francis Quadrangle, about 1200 persons assembled around the Columns listening, singing, praying and thinking about the Moratorium. Candles glowed in the wind and a few drops of rain fell, adding to the mood of the services.

Speakers included Reverend Maurice Kaser of the Calvary Episcopal Church, Rev. M. Glynn Burke, of the First Christian Church, and Rev. David Holt of the First Presbyterian Church. Students joined in singing "Blowin' in the Wind" and "Let There Be Peace."

Response to Oct. 15 Activities

Asked whether the turn-out represented genuine widespread commitment to the Moratorium idea, or to some extent merely a natural curiosity in the novelty of the program, Stern replied that there was no way of predicting what form future Moratorium protests would take, much less the students' reaction to them. "Something like the Moratorium involves a very individual expression of concern over the war, so I wouldn't care to comment on future developments. Possibly curiosity was involved, but it is also possible that many students who weren't involved last Wednesday might have been so impressed by the student response that they might become involved in the future. It's hard to say."

Sharing Dr. Stern's uncertainty as to future activities, was Dave Singer, vice-president of the Central Council and a member of the steering committee. "People have got to remember that the fifteenth was a day of preparation, a day to make a lasting commitment to the American people; ideally this is a commitment to continue working for the withdrawal of troops until the United States has ended its involvement in the Vietnamese conflict. If the October 15th movement is considered as a final action by most students then the extent of their commitment is shallow; if this is the case, the UMSL activities supporting an end to the war were a farce."

On the subject of the student turn-out on Moratorium Day, Singer was less uncertain. "The Moratorium involved the participation of more students than I've ever seen engaged in any single activity at UMSL--with the exception of going to classes."

Singer mentioned the possibility of a joint march with students from St. Louis and Washington Universities in November, but no definite plans had been made when the Current went to press.

Excellent Performances Are Feather In U. Players Hat

by Jonathan Morris

The University Players' production of Antonio Buero Valejo's In the Burning Darkness, presented this past weekend in the Benton Hall Theater, proved to be a very enjoyable evening of drama. The Players and Dr. Marlon Holt must consider it a feather in their caps.

This was the premiere performance of Dr. Holt's new English translation of the play by Buero who is one of the leading playwrights of contemporary Spain.

The play is set in a school for the blind where the students have seemingly overcome their handicap and live what they consider to be "normal," happy lives. Their tranquility is destroyed by Ignacio, a new student who refuses to accept his blindness and converts other students to his pessimistic view of life. He is opposed by Carlos, a student who defends the complacent attitudes of the school to the extent of killing Ignacio only to find that he has acquired Ignacio's desire to see.

Theater in repressive societies frequently serves as an outlet for social commentary. Buero must have written In the Burning Darkness for this purpose. Unfortunately, lengthy dialogue that the people of Spain held dear in 1950 will strike contemporary American audiences as excessive. Even Dr. Holt's excellent translation and direction could not overcome the wordiness of the play.

The production was redeemed, however, by a number of very fine performances. Dennis Skerik was excellent as Carlos, Chris McKenzie's performance as Ignacio was equally as good. Skerik and McKenzie worked very well opposite each other. Both had occasional difficulties handling Buero's lengthy dialogue. At times McKenzie seemed to let his hesitation over dialogue anger him, disrupting the consistency of his performance.

Karen Wiers was very good as Maria, Carlos' girlfriend who was attracted to Ignacio. Miss Wiers has a great deal of poise on stage and her performance was delightful to watch. She was especially good in confrontation with Ignacio in the second act.

George Dennis' performance as Miguel, the school's effervescent "mascot," was marred by a tendency to overact early in the play. This enhanced his comic lines but was a distraction at more serious moments. Fortunately, he overcame this tendency as the play progressed.

Miguel's girlfriend Elisa was played very well by Dianne Porter who successfully conveyed Elisa's suffering when Miguel ignored her to follow Ignacio.

John Nieman, Jr., was good as Don Pablo, the director of the school. Donna Netherton's performance as Dona Pilar, Don Pablo's wife, was disappointing in its inconsistency. At times she was good; quite often she was too remote.

Tom Adragna played Ignacio's father. Other students were played by Paul A. Morris, Bob Singer, Marla Marlow, Paul Civili and Bev Nolte.

Original music for the production was composed by David Flinn.

Kathy Crosby Talks About Bing, the Stage

by Ed Roland,
Current Reporter

"Could you tell us where you met Bing?"

That question, along with a variety of others, was part of an interview with Kathryn Crosby, the actress and wife of singer-actor Bing Crosby. The interview was conducted last Friday at UMSL by Donald Crinklaw's class in commercial writing as a regular class assignment.

Mrs. Crosby's visit was far from a regular occurrence. Currently appearing at the Sir John Falstaff Theater in the starring role of Jay Allen's, "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," Mrs. Crosby would not have been available for such an interview under previous theater policy. Mr. Crinklaw pointed out that it is possible that her visit to the campus has set new precedent, and he hopes to arrange more interviews for his class through the courtesy of the theater.

The interview, which was conducted during the regularly scheduled class period, covered a wide range of topics. Here are a few of her comments:

The Theater: "There are very few fields like theater where a woman can actually be as successful as a man."

Bing: "I met him at Paramount Pictures. I was under contract there and he had just returned from doing a very fine movie called 'Little Boy Lost' in Europe. I was writing a column called 'Texas Gal in Hollywood' for a group of citizen newspapers. I was walking back to our drama building and he was standing in the door of his dressing room...he saw me and said 'Hello Tex!'"

Brodie: "We had some people working with us this summer who said that 'Jean Brodie' is 'Hamlet' for a woman. There is enough depth and intrigue to this role to plumb anyone's spirit."

Reviewers: "I happen to have great respect for reviewers. Most reviewers have done their homework. Some of them are even a little overtrained--when they review a play like 'Mary, Mary' for instance. Any reviewer that can avoid seeing that play at least twenty times a year is very lucky." Politics: "My husband and I are registered in different parties. I change my vote according to the man...I sent money to Mr. Gene McCarthy. I feel very strongly about his positions."

St. Louis: "I think some of the action that is going on here is fantastic. You have corporation presidents working with bankers, churches, and every kind of civic group to make something new for all of the people of your city."

In addition to her acting, Mrs. Crosby is a registered nurse and an accredited school teacher in California. She teaches on a substitute basis in Hillsborough, California, where the Crosby family makes its home.

A former features writer herself, she has authored, "Bing and Other Things," an autobiographical account of her life before and after she became Mrs. Bing Crosby.

Although she considers her family her first concern, Mrs. Crosby has an impressive record as a performer. On the legitimate stage she has starred in Sunday in New York, Sabrina Fair, Peter Pan, Arms and the Man, Mary, Mary, and The Guardsman. Her motion picture credits include Rear Window, Arrowhead, Reprisal, Operation Mad Ball, and Anatomy of Murder.

Mrs. Crosby has also appeared on television in the Chrysler Suspense Theater, Ben Casey, The Hollywood Palace, and a Bing Crosby Special.

"The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" and Mrs. Crosby may be seen through October 26 at the Sir John Falstaff Theater located in the Spanish International Pavilion.

UMSL Forms Ticket Office

A ticket office to provide tickets to functions in the St. Louis area at student discounts has been started at UMSL. The office is located in the office of the Dean of Student Affairs in the Administration Building.

Initiated by Dr. John T. Onuska, assistant professor of English, reductions to events at the American Theater, Arena, Kiel Auditorium, St. Louis Symphony and other attractions, may be obtained on a group basis (minimum of 20) subject to various of event and producer.

The ticket office is presently attempting to get group rates to two events, the Al Hirt concert November 1, and the movie Hello Dolly, which opens at the Ambassador Theatre December 17. A minimum of 25 total seats (priced $2.00, $3.00, and $4.00) is needed for rate reduction to the Al Hirt concert at Kiel Opera House. The last date to make reservations and pay for tickets is November 27.

A minimum group of 50 is required for rate reduction for Hello Dolly.

Students interested in attending the movie or concert should contact Bernice Miner, room 206 Administration Building, or call 5211.

Sig Pi, Boyers Win Volleyball

UMSL's fall IM volleyball league has finished its season with Sigma Pi winning the co-ed championship and the Boyers taking the women's league title.

Sig Pi, who finished with a 10-0 record, credit this year's success to the excellent play of their co-eds; Rita Hoff, Debbie Korpai, Patti Bays, Karen Knoll, JoAnn Nugent, Pat Freeman and Jan Power. The other half of the squad consists of Tom Cradick, Vic Cadice, Denny Whelan, "Tulsa" Robertson, Mike Rutherford and Ed Farrell. Following Sig Pi in the race were Newman House, the Boyers, Pi Kappa Alpha and Try Tau.

The Boyers finished the women's volleyball season with a 7-0 record. These girls had one of the best teams UMSL has seen. Members of the Boyers are Linda Boyer, Jan Standfus, Pat Freeman, Jan Power, Debbie Beck, Carolyn Jordan, Paula Schneider, Donna Jacobi, Kathy Hoppe and Joan Fischer. Following the Boyers in the league were Newman and Alpha Xi Delta.

The next IM sport will be men's basketball to be played by three-man teams on 1/2 courts on Monday and Wednesday, and by five-man teams on full courts on Tuesday and Thursday. The deadline for signing up teams is Tuesday October 28.

Harriers Defend Title In Chicago Meet Sat.

UMSL's cross country team, their record extended to 5-1 after a victory last week over Culver-Stockton, will travel to Chicago Saturday to defend their championship in the Urban Alliance Meet, renamed this year the University of Chicago Invitational.

Teams in the Chicago meet, in addition to UMSL, will be UICC, UWM, Wayne State of Detroit, North Central of Illinois and Wash-bash of Indiana, plus the University of Chicago. According to cross country coach Larry Berres, North Central, which is known for its outstanding cross country teams, should be the team to beat. After losing many runners from last year's squad, the Rivermen hope to finish in the upper half of this year's meet.

Last Tuesday, UMSL defeated Culver-Stockton by the close score of 27-28. This was surprising because Culver finished well below UMSL in the Culver Invitational a week earlier. It was apparent that the wet course raised the times of both teams. As he has in every other meet this year, Kerry Robinson finished first for UMSL with a time of 23:25. Other finishing times in the meet were:

Rick Mann	C-S	23:37
Dick Martin	C-S	23:43
Bob Hudson	UMSL	23:55
Charles Lister	UMSL	24:06
Doug Murray	C-S	24:30
Frank Neal	UMSL	25:04
Keith Otwell	C-S	25:31
Hank Bauer	C-S	25:42
Dennis Joiner	UMSL	27:39

Following the Chicago meet, UMSL will run on the road against Principia October 28, Greenville October 31 and SIU-Edwardsville November 4 before returning home for a dual meet with Washington University and Principia November 8.

Centers Hurt As Practice Begins

UMSL's District Sixteen basketball champions opened practice last Monday for the defense of their crown.

The news so far from the workouts has been bad, with injuries hitting all four center candidates. Greg Daust, last year's rebounding and scoring star, sprained his knee in practice Monday and will sit out two or three weeks. Another 6-7 center, "Broadway" Bruce Ryan, also suffered a sprained knee. Pat Green, 6-6 freshman from Southwest High School, dislocated his ankle during freshmen tryouts and could miss the entire season. Denny Whelan, 6-5 senior forward who sat out last season with a dislocated knee, is trying a comeback as a back-up center. In practice now, Coach Smith has been using 6-4 Chuck Henson at center. Henson played forward and some center last year.

The basketball Rivermen are well stocked at the forward and guard positions. Transfer Greg Scott joins last year's lettermen Henson, Whelan, Denny Caldwell, Doody Rohm and Joe Laukemper at forward while transfer Ron Carkhum will join them when his eligibility begins at mid-semester. Last year's guards Verle Sutton and Rick Utage will be joined by transfers Shedrick Bell and Bob Pikula.

Both the varsity and JV will have small fast teams this year. With the loss of Green, Junior Varsity Coach Arnold Copeland plans to move 6-5 Mike Dunlap into the middle. Other JV squad members include sophomores Mark Bernsen, Dave Krieger and John Ponciroli, and freshmen Terry Keller, Don Wilhite, Mike Martin, Bruce Bacott, Ray Steltz, John Killenberg, Marty Erech and Gary Keesling.

Both the varsity and junior varsity teams will make their first public appearances at Meet the Rivermen Night, Friday, November 14 at Normandy Junior High Gym. The varsity will begin their season Monday December 1 at Viking Hall against William Jewell College. The junior varsity will travel to Lebanon, Illinois Thursday December 4 to start their season against the McKendree College JV.

Kickers Face Western After Benedict's Upset

by Brad Stevens

UMSL's Soccermen will meet a vastly improved Western Illinois team this Saturday at Heman park at 2:00 p.m. The Rivermen really proved their worth last Saturday as they buried St. Benedict's in a field of mud 1-0.

Western will be looking to avenge a 7-0 loss last year to UMSL. Western started a heavy recruiting program after last year's season and have signed seven high school all-stars out of the Chicago area and four out of St. Louis. According to Coach Don Dallas, "They'll be a good opponent for us."

UMSL upset the St. Benedict's Ravens last weekend under the worst playing conditions imaginable. The two teams began playing in a sea of mud, in a windy steady rain with the mercury down in the 40's. What looked like some form of sadistic torture turned into an exceptional soccer game. It was not until 1:19 in the fourth period that the game was decided on a goal by Tim Fitzsimmons which had been set up by a pass from Luis Campos.

Coach Dallas praised his team in glowing terms calling this victory a complete team effort. "Our backfield consisting of Butch Ryan, Frank McHugh, Tim Kruse, and Greg Kramer played an outstanding game. John Garland has been exceptional at playing a good mid-field position all year as did Fran Buehler who came off the bench last week. Our forwards, Luis Campos, Tim Fitzsimmons, Joe Pipitone and Tom Tucker really got moving. It was an overall team effort."

St. Benedict's only other loss of the season came at the hands of the Air Force Academy in Colorado in their season opener.

Bill Naucke was hurt in the third period last week as he suffered a knee injury and was unable to continue at that time. The extent of his injury was not known at press time.

Berres Wins UMSL Open

Larry Berres, Chuck Smith, Ed Closson and Jack Coombs were the winners in each category of the first annual UMSL open golf tournament held last Friday at the St. Charles Golf Club.

Berres was the overall winner as he came in first in the championship flight. The twenty participants were grouped into three categories or flights on the basis of their scores on the first nine holes. Those who scored 43 and under were placed in the championship flight, 44-47 in the A flight and 48 and over in the B flight. Berres finished with a 74 (38-36) followed by John Killenberg with 78 and Miles Patterson with 79. Chuck Smith won the A flight with an 84, followed by John Shultz with 85 and Dick Smethana with 88. Ed Closson and Jack Coombs tied for the B flight lead with 94. Vic Cadice finished third with a 99.

Hendin's Headlines

A Playmate, season basketball tickets, Meet the Rivermen Night, pep rallies, Miss UMSL, Homecoming, and a jumping frog contest. These are just a few of the activities planned by the Steamers Club this year.

Tomorrow, the Steamers will sponsor the appearance on campus of Playboy Playmate Dianne Chandler. Dianne will be on campus, through the courtesy of Falstaff, from 10:30-11:30 a.m. in the lobby of the Administration Building. Everyone is invited to stop by to visit with her.

Season Tickets

Starting November 3, the Steamers will be selling season basketball tickets. For only six dollars, each purchaser can see twelve exciting Rivermen home games including the December 27 game at the Arena. Regular price of each game is $1.00, so you save 50%. In addition to the savings, season ticket holders avoid the wait in line at each game. Also, each season pass purchaser will receive free from Falstaff a set of six juice glasses with the Rivermen insignia. Tickets will be available from Steamers members, at Meet the Rivermen Night, and at a table in the lobby of the Administration Building from November 17-21.

The Miss UMSL candidates will be introduced at Meet the Rivermen Night November 14 and the new Miss UMSL will be crowned at half time of the first basketball game December 1. This year's Miss UMSL contest will be somewhat different from last year's. All girls entering the contest this year must have been at UMSL for at least two semesters, have a 2.0 accumulative grade point average, present a petition with 50 signatures on it (each UMSL student may sign only one petition), and pay a $5.00 entrance fee. The fee will be used to pay election expenses and to buy flowers and charms for the court. Petitions are now available in Room 117 of the Administration Building. Completed forms and entrance fee may be turned in to the Steamers mail box in 117 anytime until Friday November 7 at 5:00.

All candidates will appear before the selection board on November 10 and the five finalists will be notified in time for their appearance on the 14th. Voting will take place November 24, 25 and 26. The selection board will consist of Miss Kay Cushman, assistant professor of French; Mr. David Ganz, Dean of Student Affairs; Dr. William Hamlin, professor of English; Sam Bommarito, president of the student body; Marty Hendin, president of the Steamers; Margie Kranzberg, a member of the student court; Kerry Robinson, a member of the cross country team; and LaRoyce Stevens, last year's Miss UMSL. Steamers' Vice-President Ed Farrell is chairman of this year's Miss UMSL contest.

Bus Trips

Steamers' bus trips this year will include Cape Girardeau, Mo. (December 9), New Orleans and Martin, Tennessee (December 18-23), Chicago and Milwaukee (February 6-7) and Kansas City, Mo. (February 14) in addition to all post season playoffs. Everyone is invited to go on the bus trips.

The next meeting of the Steamers will be Monday October 27 at 7:00 in room 208 of Administration Building. Everyone is invited to attend.
